PROTEST ON ABANDONMENT OF C.N.R. LINE

T. Reid, M.P., Hears Plan to Cut Out Mission-New Westminster Link Considered

Report Is C.P.R. Line Would Be Used

Canadian Press

New Westminster, Nov. 29.—Thomas Reid, Liberal member of Parliament for New Westminster, to-day stated he had been informed abandonment of the main Canadian National Railway line through the lower Fraser Valley was being seriously considered and that he had written to S. J. Hungerford, president of the C.N.R., to protest such a move.

Mr. Reid said his information was the proposed abandonment would be from a point connecting with Mission City on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He said he had explained to Mr. Hungerford that, if such a change were made, the city of New Westminster would have no direct rail connection with the Canadian National Railway except through a local branch line of the C.P.R.

QUESTION ABOUT SHOPS

He declared the change might mean elimination of the C.N.R. shops at Port Mann, B.C. He said the change would also place the C.P.R. in a dominant position on the Pacific because it would mean all Canadian traffic entering the port of Vancouver would have to be first [illegible] by it.

The change, he said, would mean complete isolation of the terminal elevator on the Fraser River

TRAIN HITS CAR, KILLING DRIVER

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Nov. 29.—His body terribly mangled when the taxi he was driving was struck by a locomotive in South Edmonton last midnight, Harry Killips, twenty-seven, died in a hospital four hours after the smash. John Blair, passenger, escaped virtually unhurt.

Fog hanging over the city, with resultant poor visibility, is believed to have been responsible for the accident.

PRESIDENT OF BOLIVIA QUITS

Turnover Brings Resignation; Vice-President Sorzano in Control

Associated Press

La Paz, Bolivia, Nov. 29.—President Daniel Salamanca of Bolivia resigned to-day.

The president's resignation followed by less than twenty-four hours an announcement by Vice-president Jose Luis Tejada Sorzano that he himself was assuming "the direction of public affairs" in the absence of Salamanca, who was with the troops in the Chaco Boreal.

Commission Hears Stores' Suggestions of Regulation

Federal Inquiry Board Told By Eastern Canadian Chain Executives Elimination of "Loss Leaders" Would Be Beneficial; Views Differ on Wage Legislation

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Chain store executives made their first suggestions to-day to the parliamentary mass buying commission. In letters to Joseph Crowder, merchandising investigator, the heads of three chain organizations gave their opinions on minimum wage laws, standard hours of labor and the use of loss leaders.

A letter from R. H. Hommel, president of Stop and Shop Limited, read:

"Mr. Berg (general manager) joins with me in the belief that, if it were possible, some sort of regulation should be established (by co-operation preferably, or legislation if necessary) to

"1. Establish a minimum wage for all male employees.

"2. Standard hour week.

"3. Elimination of so-called loss leaders.

"You can appreciate the fact that it would be utterly impossible for any one concern, or type, to follow out the above ideas without the co-operation of all in the same line of business."

WAGE QUESTION

"1. Minimum wages for males.

"While thoroughly in accord with the principle of minimum wages for females, I am doubtful of the advisability of the principle as applied to males. I am afraid the minimum might too often work out to be the maximum. Males are expected to develop initiative, executive ability and resourcefulness in their employment, and it seems to me there is much to be said in favor of avoiding any system which might tend towards wages

ULM PLANE AT OAKLAND, CAL.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 29.—Charles T. P. Ulm and two companions who plan to fly back over the Kingsford-Smith trail to Australia, landed at the airport here to-day from Los Angeles, en route to Vancouver, B.C.

Their transpacific flight will probably start from Vancouver, he said on arrival.

The Ulm party expects to leave for Vancouver to-morrow if the weather is favorable.

Install Bishop At Impressive Rites

With all the magnificence and color of ritual connected with solemn occasions of the Church of Rome, Rt. Rev. John Hugh MacDonald, D.D., newly appointed Bishop of Victoria, was formally installed in office at an impressive ceremony at St. Andrew's Cathedral yesterday evening. Two archbishops and five bishops, in their purple robes, watched the service from the sanctuary. A vast congregation crowded the cathedral.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, attended by Capt. W. Hobart Molson, Lieut. J. R. Roy, R.C.N., and Capt. R. L. Mitchell, occupied special seats near the altar, as did Premier Pattullo and members of his government, and Mayor Leeming and members of the City Council. The Canadian Navy and Canadian Army were also represented.

The scene in the cathedral was a brilliant one, officials and dignitaries being in full dress uniform

The papal colors of white and yellow were hung from the ceiling to the four corners of the cathedral. Papal insignia also marked the doors and windows. The flowers on the high altar were in the same colors.

The new bishop entered his cathedral for the first time from the outside, walking with his retinue from the Bishop's Palace on View Street. He passed up the steps through a guard of honor composed of Knights of Columbus, in full regalia and swords. At the door of the cathedral he was received by Rev. Father Ronald Beaton, who has been administrator of the diocese, and con-

Washington, Nov. 29.—The United States paused in its far flung activities to-day as its millions observed a day of thanksgiving.

TWO HELD IN CHICAGO RAID

Man and Woman Seized By Police; Man Said to Be C. Gideon

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Squads of state's attorneys' police descended on the Union bus station here to-day in a raid which prompted reports that federal agents had seized John Hamilton and the widow of George "Baby Face" Nelson.

The officers, under Lieut. Frank Johnson, covered their movements with such secrecy that police of the district believed the prisoners were in fact Hamilton and the woman, sought since Tuesday, when Nelson and an aide, still unidentified but thought to be Hamilton, fought a bloody battle with government agents at Barrington, Nelson dying later.

H. H. Clegg, directing the federal agents' hunt for Nelson's helper and the woman, denied either had been taken.

Chicago police officials also professed ignorance of the reported raid.

Lieut. Johnson disappeared with his quarry, and witnesses said the prisoners were a man who had arrived on a St. Louis bus and a woman who had been waiting for him. The man later was reported to be Charles Gideon.

The two were wanted for questioning in connection with a bank robbery—that was as much as police officials could learn.

Clegg, after two hours, emerged from the federal offices with a denial that his men had any part in the capture.

"I have no information about any arrests to-day," he said.

"I don't know yet who was with Nelson on Tuesday," he declared.

ONTARIO OFFICIAL IS REINSTATED

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 29.—M. A. Sorsoleil, suspended Deputy Minister of Welfare, removed because of statements regarding immorality of school children, was reinstated by the Ontario Cabinet to-day.

Announcement of the reinstatement was made by Hon. David A. Croll, Minister of Welfare, after the cabinet had been in session nearly three hours.

No indication was given whether there had been any opposition to the reinstatement.

DUKE FLIES OVER NEW SOUTH WALES

Associated Press

Newcastle, N.S.W., Nov. 29.—The Duke of Gloucester, hot and dusty, arrived at the airdrome here today while 12,000 miles away his brother was driving through cheering crowds to be married at Westminster Abbey.

He experienced one of the hottest days of the Australian summer. When the Duke of Kent and his bride were sitting at a wedding breakfast, the King's and Queen's third son and only member of the family absent from the wedding, was preparing to retire for the night.

MOSCOW ENDS CARD SYSTEM

Canadian Press

Moscow, Nov. 29.—The assembly of the Soviet General Executive Committee to-day proposed the suppression of bread cards and other rationing devices, beginning January 1.

With the proposal goes a plan to raise wages so as to make it possible for everybody to buy bread and flour in the open market at a price midway between the present high prices and the special prices for those with cards.

The plan, which was to go through a number of formalities before it is enacted into law, is regarded as marking a milestone in the development of Soviet economy, and indicating the definite victory of the collectives in the grain battle.

It means the Soviet government is now assured of a plentiful supply of grain, and will be able to allow the distribution to go through the open market instead of being rationed at special prices for Soviet employees, and allowing the rest of the population to buy the remainder at "scarcity prices."

B.C. Could Produce Gasoline Is Claim

Hydrogenation of Coal Would Open Source For All Province's Needs, Says Mines Inspector

As B.C. prepared to-day to study by commission the economics of the coal and oil situation in the province, assertion by James Dickson, chief inspector of B.C. mines, that this province could produce enough gasoline and fuel oil for all its needs by hydrogenation of coal took on added significance.

Mr. Dickson made this remark yesterday in Vancouver at the meeting of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

He said $18,000,000 could be conserved within the province annually and enormous benefit done the coal mines through erection of a modern hydrogenation plant.

British Columbia annually sends out $12,000,000 for importation of gasoline and $6,000,000 for fuel oil, Mr. Dickson said. This money could be kept at home and employment for additional hundreds of coal miners provided through use of a hydrogenation plant. The plant, using B.C. coal, could produce all the gasoline and fuel oil needed in the province, Mr. Dickson declared, and making the province independent of any outside source of supply.

Last year fuel oil importations alone displaced 1,000,000 tons of coal. The value of the province's 1,300,000 tons of coal produced was estimated at $5,600,000, and development of coal as a source of oil and gasoline supply would greatly benefit the coal industry and keep millions of dollars at home, he said.

Of the $40,000,000 annually spent in importing oil and oil products into Canada British Columbia contributed $8,000,000.

Ovations From Throngs In London For Duke of Kent And Princess He Marries

Scenes Before Wedding Ceremony, During Service in Westminster Abbey and During Return of King's Son and Princess Marina, His Bride, to Buckingham Palace, Unequalled For Years in London; King and Queen Accompanied By Kings and Queens of Denmark and Norway at Ceremonies.

Canadian Press and Associated Press

London, Nov. 29.—With the pageantry of old England and the solemnity of two religious rites, Marina, beautiful, smiling Princess of Greece, was wedded to-day to Prince George, Duke of Kent, the tall, handsome and youngest son of the King and Queen.

They were united according to the ritual of the Church of England in Westminster Abbey and by the rites of the Greek Orthodox Church at a subsequent service in the chapel of Buckingham Palace.

All the grandeur and tradition of the British Empire were typified in the rituals and pageants of the day.

Their romance, which began in the mountains of Jugoslavia, on the estate of the late King Alexander, was consummated with their pledging of their troths in history-steeped Westminster Abbey before the most glittering assembly of Europe's high personages which has gathered here in more than a decade.

A short while afterward the union of the Duke and the Princess was sealed a second time with the solemnization of the ancient and symbolical Greek Orthodox service when they had returned to Buckingham Palace [illegible]

MEMORABLE SCENE

Kings and queens, dukes and duchesses, and lords and ladies looked on under the flickering mellow light of tapers in candelabra and menorahs as the Archbishop of Canterbury, his resonant voice echoing and re-echoing through the domed and vaulted Abbey, led them through the marriage lines.

The colorful uniforms of the men and the handsome dresses of the women, their decorations and their jewels, shimmered and sparkled under the softly reflected light of the venerable Abbey, where lie the remains of the nation's great.

NO BREAK IN PLANS

Despite the hundreds of thousands who jammed the route to the Abbey and taxed police, the wedding went off in clocklike form. The Duke and Princess Marina were pronounced man and wife at 11.13, only thirteen minutes after the service had started.

They intoned their vows after the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Duke's voice was slightly tense and strained, while Princess Marina's was calm with a soft tone. It showed just a slight trace of accent.

Throngs which only a few minutes before had acclaimed the passage of the wedding party from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey packed row on row of gayly decorated stands erected on the Abbey grounds and in adjacent streets as the venerable, white-haired Archbishop pronounced the wedding lines of the Church of England.

The Duke of Kent called his bride simply "Marina."

She said, "I, Marina, take thee George Edward Alexander Edmund, to be my wedded husband."

The word "obey" was used in the service and the Archbishop pronounced them man and wife.

CANADIANS AT WEDDING

Hon. G. H. Ferguson and W. A. MacAdam Among Those at Abbey in London

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 29.—A score of Canadians were among the brilliant company that witnessed the royal wedding in ancient Westminster Abbey to-day, while hundreds of others saw the royal processions.

Canada House, barely off the processional route, was decorated with the flags of Britain, Canada, Greece and Denmark with an enormous maple leaf edged by 150 electric bulbs over the entrance. The building was flood lighted through the week in keeping with the rest of London's fine decorations.

With the exception of Lieut.-General Sir Henry Burstall, of the Second Division of the Canadian Corps during the Great War, who wore full dress uniform, the men among the Canadians attending the ceremony wore court dress.

The Canadians invited were Lieut.-General and Lady Burstall, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, and Mrs. Ferguson; Dr. L. Lemieux, agent-general for Quebec, and Mrs. Lemieux; W. A. MacAdam, acting agent-

PROCEED WITH INQUIRY PLANS

Commission Counsel to Be Named Soon; Big Problem Involved

Counsel will be appointed shortly to gather evidence for the Royal Commission on the coal and petroleum industries of the province, it was announced here this morning.

While this was being considered the possible ramifications of the inquiry were the object of speculation.

The commissioner is given the widest investigatory powers, covering the economics of the situation from every angle. It was explained today, however, his task will be purely fact-finding, without recommendations.

Behind the inquiry is a long controversy on the effect of fuel oil competition on the coal industry of the province. This has been dealt with by the Economic Council for the last six months, but is now taken out of their hands.

The government is seeking the answer to dozens of questions about oil-coal competition.

Are present coal prices justified?

Are present gasoline prices justified?

Are gas prices held up to pay for fuel oil production so it can compete with coal as fuel?

Would an increased fuel oil tax give protection to coal?

While these specific points were to be covered, the large issue was which way the coal industry, having reached the crossroads, is going to go. For this reason the commission will seek evidence on the economic value of both the coal and oil industries.

Suggestion the government might go into price-fixing, as a result of the inquiry, was negatived, although it was pointed out the government had power to do so.

GREAT HOST OF WITNESSES

Archbishop Speaks of Millions Who Hear Royal Wedding Ceremony By Radio

Canadian Press and Associated Press

London, Nov. 29.—The Archbishop of Canterbury in addressing the newly-married Duke and Duchess of Kent at the service in Westminster Abbey today said:

"Never in history, we may dare to say, has a marriage been attended by so vast a company of witnesses, for by a new and marvelous invention of science countless multitudes in every variety of place and home are joining in this service.

"The whole nation—nay, the whole empire—are wedding guests. We wish you happiness, but our wishes cannot give it. Nor can it come from outward circumstances. It can only come from yourselves, from the spirit that is within you.

"You cannot choose what changes and chances are to befall you in coming years, but, you can choose the spirit with which you meet them. Let it be the spirit of the noble vows in which you just plighted your troth each to the other. . . .

"To-day your separate lives—with their own memories, hopes, temptations and trials—are merged in one. Will you bring into this new life, each for the sake of the other, the best that you can be.

"Let your deepest bond of union be in that inward region of the soul where conscience and true ideals dwell, for there you come near to God and God comes near to you.

"Keep there the reverent remembrance of Him. Then His protecting hand will guide you and by His eternal love the love you bear each other will be ever strengthened and enriched. . . .

"I am sure that that heart is now speaking through my words as I say "God bless you both, God guide you, God keep you always."

Crowds To-day Set Record For London

Correspondent Describes Scenes During Royal Wedding; Duke and Duchess of Kent Go to Himley Hall, Staffordshire

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Birmingham, Eng., Nov. 29.—The honeymoon train bearing the Duke and Duchess of Kent arrived here at 6.30 p.m. (10.30 a.m. Victoria time) and the couple left for Himley by motor car five minutes later.

They are to spend the first part of their honeymoon at Himley Hall, Staffordshire, country home of the Earl of Dudley.

CROWDS ABOUT ABBEY

London, Nov. 29.—A dense throng crowded around Westminster Abbey to-day hours before the wedding of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina of Greece was to take place.

Although a drab sky and a drizzle of rain ushered in the royal wedding morning, the eager crowds saluted it with a great show of gaiety. In holiday humor, they were packed four-deep along Whitehall.

The sun, which was due to rise at 7.41 a.m., was unable to pierce a grey blanket of "Scotch haze."

Brilliant Scenes At Royal Wedding

Christian and Queen Alexandra of Denmark occupied the places of prominence among the royal guests nearest the brilliant, white-decked altar with its flickering candles, costly golden plate and altar pieces. Not far away sat former King George of Greece.

The diplomatic corps, in uniform or court dress, sat nearby.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, and Mrs. Ferguson were present with a group of other distinguished personages from the Dominion.

The entire cabinet, a number of former cabinet members and other government functionaries occupied other places. Six of the Duke of Kent's servants sat in special seats.

WORE UNIFORMS

The Duke of Kent, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of York, like their father, wore naval uniforms.

Although the official arrangements called for no best man, as such, the Prince of Wales actually performed those duties.

When the time came for Princess Marina to lay down her bridal bouquet, he took it carefully and placed it near the King's chair. Later he dexterously handed his brother the wedding ring.

At the end of the ceremony, when the royal guests were preparing to leave, the Prince of Wales briskly stepped forward and handed his father his plumed hat.

Despite all this accuracy and fast thinking, however, the Prince of Wales actually was the most nervous person in the wedding party. While the Duke of York stood quietly, he fingered the collar of his uniform, looked to the right and left at the guests, hitched at his belt, and turned the pages of his programme.

While the service was proceeding the great crowds outside were able to follow the ceremony through loud speakers with practically every man standing bareheaded.

It also was broadcast throughout the world.

[illegible] PROCESSIONS

Three gorgeous processions exemplifying the pomp of royalty took the wedding party to the Abbey for the service.

The King in uniform and the Queen in fur coat and striking blue dress drove from Buckingham Palace in the first of these. They rode in a state coach, accompanied by a detachment of the Household Cavalry, brilliant in scarlet uniforms.

Princess Marina and her father, Prince Nicholas, rode in the second procession, and the third was made up by the Duke of Kent and his brother, the Prince of Wales. The Duke wore a naval uniform, while Princess Marina wore an ermine over her silver wedding gown.

ENTERED BY WEST DOOR

As the thousands in the packed stands watched, Marina, on the arm of her father, Prince Nicholas of Greece, entered the west door of the Abbey, where the eight bridesmaids awaited her.

The two younger bridesmaids, Princess Elizabeth, eight, and Lady Mary Cambridge, ten, were dressed differently from the six older attendants. They wore knee-length frocks of material resembling a soft brocade, with a background of white and covered with silver spots. The frocks, with frilly skirts and plain bodices, were veiled with white net. Their shoes were of white and silver fabric.

The third of the younger bridesmaids, fourteen-year-old Lady Iris Mountbatten, thanks to her height, was able to walk with the older attendants. They wore frocks of white crepe, interwoven with a silver thread, with picturesque long sleeves flaring until they were a foot wide at the cuffs. The bodices, crossing over at the back, were finished with a slight cowl at the neck.

Each bridesmaid carried the rose of England, symbolical bridal flower. Pearl necklaces were their only ornaments. The English rose also was worked into the silver lace of Marina's bridal gown.

THE SERVICE

The full tones of the Abbey organ filled the ancient edifice as the wedding procession passed through the gilded choir stalls and thence up five short steps to the altar itself. A choir of seventy chanted the hymn "Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost."

Very Rev. Foxley Norris, Dean of Westminster, then advanced and read the introduction to the marriage ceremony, the exhortation to those about to be joined in wedlock.

The Archbishop of Canterbury officiated at the actual ceremony of marriage, presiding at the speaking of the vows, the exchanging of the rings and the pronouncement of the couple as man and wife as they knelt at the altar.

The reading of the lesser litany prescribed by church ritual and the Lord's Prayer followed. The domed Abbey resounded with the voices of the guests as the responses to the latter were led by Rev. Cyril Armitage, precentor of the Abbey.

The Archbishop of York, in robes and wearing the emblems of his high church office, then pronounced the prayers for "perfect love and peace," followed immediately by the pronouncement of the blessing by Dean Norris.

ARCHBISHOP'S ADDRESS

The beautiful notes and words of the anthem, "God be in My Head," then resounded through the Abbey. As the last note died away the Archbishop of Canterbury delivered the formal address.

He counselled the "Let your deepest bond of union be in that inward region of the soul where conscience and true ideal dwell, for there you come near to God and God comes near to you."

After the address the hymn, "Praise, My Soul, the King of Heaven," was sung. Again the Archbishop of Canterbury took his place to deliver the final prayer and benediction as a deathlike hush fell over the assemblage.

REGISTERS SIGNED

The National Anthem and the playing of a special anthem, "Alleluia! Alleluia!" specially composed for the occasion, completed the ceremony save for the formal signing of the registers.

The bride and bridegroom and their attendants moved off to the Chapel of St. Edward the Confessor for this ceremony as the last notes of the special anthem died away.

Two registers were signed by the bridal couple and their official witnesses. One was the register of the Abbey, the other the government document in which the marriages of all royalty for more than the last 100 years are recorded.

GREEK SERVICES

As the bells of the Abbey began to peal the wedding party formed up again and drove back to Buckingham Palace for the second ceremony of the day, a Greek Orthodox marriage in the private chapel there.

Archbishop Strenopoulos Germanos, head of the Greek Church in England, officiated at the second ceremony, performed in a setting of regal splendor in the private chapel of the London home of the King and Queen, shortly after noon.

The scent of incense filled the chapel as the guests, including the members of the immediate families, watched the couple go through the rites of this centuries-old ceremony.

The Archbishop, who had attended the Abbey ceremony, wore his magnificent robes, set off by a heavy chain supporting his massive emblem of office around his neck and topped by his black veiled headpiece.

CARRIED TAPERS

The Duke and the bride entered the richly-decorated chapel bearing lighted tapers and were escorted to a table in the middle of the room, where the Archbishop awaited them.

The Archbishop, a picturesque figure with a white beard, in the ceremony of blessing the rings, first took them and handed one to the bridegroom, saying:

"The servant of God, the Duke of Kent, is betrothed to the servant of God, Princess Marina, in the name of God, the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, amen."

With the ring he made the sign of the cross over the head of the bridegroom, and then, with the second ring, went through the same ritual over the head of the bride.

The words of betrothal pronounced three times to both the Duke and his bride, the Archbishop then placed the rings on the third finger of the right hand of each.

CROWNED THREE TIMES

Both the duke and his bride were crowned three times by the archbishop as he repeated words similar to those of the bethrothal ritual. As this was completed the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, acting as supporters, took places behind the bridal pair and interchanged both the rings and the crowns three times. This was accompanied by benediction.

Next followed the ceremony of the drinking of the wine. The archbishop first taking the cup and the red wine within, blessed it, then passed it first to the bridegroom and then to the bride, who in turn drank of it.

HYMNS SUNG

One more ceremony completed the ritual. Escorted by two priests and accompanied by the royal brothers, the duke and his bride circled about the table while the choir, unaccompanied by musical instruments chanted hymns.

The procession ended in front of the table, where the archbishop spoke a few words of advice concerning their marriage, delivered the final blessing and ended with a special prayer.

This was the first time the Greek Church ceremony had been performed for any member of the royal household on British soil.

WEDDING BREAKFAST

Immediately afterwards the wedding party proceeded to the state dining-room, where the wedding breakfast—actually falling nearer lunch time—was served to 120 guests.

Five wedding cakes, parts of which were cut for delivery to children in hospitals, were the centre of attraction at the breakfast

AFTER CEREMONY

After the wedding service in Westminster Abbey the Duke and the new Duchess left the ancient building at 11.50 a.m.

Followed by the bridesmaids, they came out of the west door to the accompaniment of the wedding march.

Bells of the historic Abbey clanged from its towers in a peal of 5,040 changes, which took three hours and twenty minutes to ring.

Alone in a glass-windowed coach, the newly-weds headed for Buckingham Palace along a route different from the one they had followed to the Abbey, so that added thousands might see them. St. James's Palace and Piccadilly were included on this route.

Five minutes after they had left, the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales and other royal guests departed. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of York were Prince George's "supporters" in the wedding.

DELAYED BY OVATIONS

The path of the bride and groom from the Abbey was one constant ovation, dwarfing the ones given them when they went to the church separately to be wed. It caused them to be thirteen minutes behind schedule when they reached Buckingham, the first delay of the day.

Outside the palace a massed multitude, whose part had ended when the gates closed behind the last coach, milled about, many not knowing what next to do. Others were prepared to wait until 3.50 p.m., when the newly-weds were to appear again, honeymoon-bound, for Himley Hall, country home of the Earl of Dudley.

Shortly before 1.30 p.m., the newly-weds appeared on a balcony and stood for several minutes waving to [illegible]

The King and Queen came out in response to more cheering. The King stooped down and picked up his little granddaughter, Princess Margaret Rose, and she waved her tiny hand to the cheering subjects of the man who held her.

The appearance of the royalty on the balcony relieved a tense situation as the crowd outside was impatient for the appearance of the bride and groom and had raised the chant:

"We want Princess Marina!"

WEDDING BREAKAST

The wedding breakfast started twenty minutes late. The kings and queens of Great Britain, Norway and Denmark sat at the head table.

The royal collection of gold plate was used at each table in the room. When the meal was concluded, King George proposed the toast to the health of the bride and bridegroom: meanwhile, the royal servants drank the health of the duke and duchess in champagne given by the King.

After the breakfast, the Duke and Duchess together made the first cut in the nine-foot-high wedding cake, using the Duke's sword. Pieces of the cake were distributed among the guests.

This was the first time during the day's prolonged ceremonial in which the Duke and Princess had a moment of relaxation.

The couple left the palace for Paddington railway station at 4.10 p.m. while great crowds lined the way to cheer them.

THE SEND-OFF

As they left the palace they were pelted with miniature silver shoes, tiny horseshoes, ribbons tied in true-lovers' knots, and rose petals by the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York.

The two elder brothers of the groom ran after the honeymoon carriage through the forecourt of Buckingham Palace, tossing the emblems of good luck.

Queen Mary and the other members of the royal family waved their goodbyes from a balcony of the palace.

WAVE TO THRONGS

The Duke and Princess rode in an open carriage drawn by four Windsor greys. The bareheaded Duke and the smiling girl beside him were greeted with wild cheering. They waved their hands gaily in response.

The Duke had changed from his uniform to a brown suit and the Duchess was wearing an almond-tweed going-away costume. It was trimmed with fur at the collar and cuffs. Her hat matched the rest of the outfit.

The ride lasted twenty minutes, then the carriage arrived at Paddington Station at 4.30 p.m. They went aboard the train and it started out for Himley four minutes later.

LITTLE PRINCESS ATTENDS

London, Nov. 29.—One of the most interesting sights in the royal wedding party in Westminster Abbey to-day was pretty little Princess Margaret Rose, daughter of the Duke of York, dressed in a chic little matching coat and hat of white, a blue dress, half socks and white shoes, sitting at the feet of her mother watching the ceremony. Margaret Rose, who was too young to be a bridesmaid, sat on a red plush stool which had been brought especially for her from Buckingham Palace.

Margaret's entrance into the ancient Abbey, eagerly clutching the hand of her mother, caused a whisper of expressions of admiration through the big church. The princess proved to be a typical little girl. She first sat rigidly forward, then she twisted sideways on the stool; first she clasped her hand between her knees as she leaned forward, then she sat bolt upright.

Several times she reached up and grasped her mother's hand, pulling her down to whisper something in her ear. Twice, in the whispered admonition of her mother, she solemnly pulled down her dress and carefully folded her coat across her knees.

general for British Columbia, and Mrs. MacAdam; W. C. Noxon, former agent-general of Ontario, and Mrs. Noxon; Sir George Badgerow, distinguished surgeon, and Lady Badgerow; Sir Campbell Stuart, Lady Eaton of Toronto, Prof. J. C. McLellan of Toronto; Miss Elizabeth Montizambert, Mrs. Kathleen Bowker, Madame G. P. Vanier, wife of Col. G. P. Vanier of the High Commissioner's office; Mrs. A. B. McRae of Vancouver and Mrs. F. J. Crawford of Toronto.

GOWNS DESCRIBED

Mrs. Ferguson wore a gown of smoky blue marocain crepe cut with large sleeves, deep pleats on the shoulders and high neck lined by two diamond buttons. Her hat was brown, and carried a paradise plume. She wore a Canadian mink stole.

CONSERVATIVE LEAD IS CUT

Majority of Only 2,600 in Putney By-election For British Commons

London, Nov. 29.—A drastic drop in the Conservative majority was recorded to-day when the Conservatives retained Putney in the Commons by-election. Marcus Samuel, Conservative candidate, was elected yesterday with a majority of only 2,663 over Dr. Edith Summerskill, Labor candidate. In the last general election the Conservatives had a majority of 21,136 in a straight fight with Labor.

The by-election, necessitated by the death of Samuel Samuel, member for Putney ever since 1918, resulted in a vote of 15,599 for the Conservative and 12,936 for Labor. In 1931 Mr. Samuel was re-elected with 27,318 votes to 6,172 for the Labor candidate, J. C. Lawder.

It was the forty-sixth by-election since the last general election, thirty-nine of which have resulted in no change.

Of the others, Labor recovered six seats lost in 1931 and won one seat traditionally Conservative, East Fulham.

ASKS RECORDS BE DESTROYED

Vancouver Chiropractor Will Sue If Fingerprints and Photo Not Done Away With

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Dr. Walter Sturdy, Vancouver chiropractor and leader in the long fight for legislative recognition of the chiropractic profession successfully concluded last year, to-day launched action to have police photographs and fingerprints, which he claims were taken and filed without legal right, removed from the files and destroyed.

The case is believed to be the first of its kind in British Columbia.

Twelve years ago, when the practice of chiropractic was an offence under provincial law, the Medical Act, Dr. Sturdy was convicted of practising medicine illegally. He was then photographed and his fingerprints taken and filed.

He claims such records may be taken legally under the federal Identification of Criminals Act, which applies only to a person charged with, or convicted of, an indictable offence. He holds this act does not apply to any offence under provincial statutes.

Legal notice served on the mayor and city clerk and Chief Constable John [illegible] to-day demands destruction of the records within twenty days and states that if this is not complied with court action will follow, including a claim for damages.

MESSAGE TO DUKE FROM CANADA

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Congratulations of the government of Canada were conveyed to the Duke of Kent in a cablegram dispatched by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

The text of the cable, which was sent to the duke at Buckingham Palace, follows:

"The members of His Majesty's government in Canada join with me in extending respectful greetings and warm congratulations to Your Royal Highness on your marriage to the Princess Marina, with the earnest hope and prayer that Providence may bestow upon Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Kent its choicest blessings."

GIFTS ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION

London, Nov. 29.—The wedding gifts to the Duke and Duchess of Kent from Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and the Canadian cabinet attracted particular attention to-day. They consist of two antique gold loving cups, the handles being writhing golden snakes each engraved with the capital "A" encircled with laurel leaves.

They are mystery cups in a certain sense. Sir Cecil Harcourt Smith, His Majesty's surveyor of works of art, said some doubt surrounded their exact history and how they came to return on the market. "The Queen," he added, "is much interested in them and I know she has theories of her own concerning their history."

YUKON PIONEER DIES SUDDENLY

Canadian Press

Dawson, Y.T., Nov. 29.—Philip M. Kelly, sixty-one, chief mining recorder for the Yukon, collapsed while skipping a rink yesterday evening at the opening bonspiel of the Dawson Curling Club and died almost immediately.

Mr. Kelly, a pioneer of '96, was widely known throughout the Yukon and highly regarded in his official capacity. He is survived by the widow and two sons in the Yukon, and a widowed daughter, Mrs. Phyllis McEwen, in Vancouver.

Crowds To-day Set Record For London

Buckingham Palace. From it she had a good view of the immense crowd outside the palace, many of whom had been there since before she retired after midnight.

The warmth of the weather for this season went a long way to compensate spectators for their long watch.

MANY MESSAGES

The Duke of Kent was astir early at York House and after breakfast read a host of telegrams arriving arriving from all parts of the world.

By 8 a.m. all choice points of vantage along the whole route from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey were taken up with a good-humored crowd, held back by phalanxes of blue-garbed bobbies.

The crowds were most dense around the Victoria Memorial in front of the palace, at Parliament Square and at the Abbey. When gates were erected on Parliament Street a solid bank of people swarmed forward against them, making it necessary for mounted police to force them back.

London has not witnessed such scenes since the coronation of the King in 1911, but its thoughts and memories went back still further to seventy-one years ago yesterday when the Danish Princess Alexandra became the bride of the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII. She was the mother of King George V.

CARPET BEFORE ABBEY

Workmen were still engaged in laying a red carpet in front of the Abbey as fashionably dressed persons, equipped with field glasses, began filling reserved seats in the grand stands.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the first privileged guests arrived at the Abbey, in formal evening dress and uniforms. By 9 a.m. they found it a task to force their way through crowds near the west door, and police were called to clear a space.

Crowds in the whole Abbey sector were so dense that police could hardly hold back the weight of the spectators, pressed against ropes. A majority of the onlookers were women, many of whom, maidens and matrons alike, were sporting saucy "Marina" hats.

Every window giving a possible glimpse of the Abbey was crowded hours before the ceremony, and spectators clambered up roofs among the chimneys.

PERISCOPES USED

Below them hard-fisted "navvys" and fur-coated women stood shoulder to shoulder. Some held periscopes, while others were prepared to use the mirrors in their vanity cases to enable them to get a reflected view over craning heads.

The Duke of Kent and his eldest brother, the Prince of Wales, sent separately to the West End where the bridegroom had calls to pay. As late as 9.45 a.m. the duke, hatless and sitting beside the driver, drove about Jermyn Street, parallel to Piccadilly. He took the crowd by surprise, but a moment later he was recognized and cheered lustily. He waved his hand in return.

BAND PLAYED

A colorfully - uniformed Guards' Regiment, with shrill pipes, was applauded when it took its place along the procession route.

Lusty cheers were given the Lord Mayor, richly robed, when he arrived by coach, followed by other dignitaries of the city.

As the time approached for the three royal processions to leave Buckingham and St. James's Palaces for the Abbey, the sky was clearer, but still leaden.

KING LED PROCESSION

King George and Queen Mary headed the royal procession from Buckingham Palace, en route to the Abbey, departing at 10.36 a.m., right on schedule.

Among the notable people who drove to the Abbey just after 10 a.m. to take their seats were Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and his daughter Ishbel, who were recognized and cheered. They were followed by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, and Mrs. Baldwin.

The white-maned Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, attired in court dress, was one of the last arrivals. He waved at the crowd in response to an ovation.

With every possible person squeezed into the Abbey sector, the multitudes became even thicker along Piccadilly. Many stepladders were placed behind the railings of the park there, accommodating as many as four each.

The stream of cars to the Abbey stopped as if by magic at 10.15 a.m., when the last guest, except for the royal suites, arrived.

TRAVELED IN COACH

As the King and Queen left Buckingham Palace in a glass-windowed coach, drawn by bay horses, they were followed by coaches bearing the Kings and Queens of Norway and Denmark, former King George of Greece, Prince Paul of Jugoslavia and Princess Nicholas of Greece, the bride's mother.

The King and Queen arrived at the Abbey at 10.50.

The Duke of Kent, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, left St. James's Palace for the Abbey at 10.44—and the programme was moving with clock-like precision. The only cars which moved through Whitehall after 10.15 bore the royal cipher.

Princess Marina, accompanied by her father, Prince Nicholas, and her attendants, left Buckingham Palace for the Abbey two minutes after the bridegroom had left St. James's.

CHEERS FOR KING

Likewise the procession of the Duke of Kent from St. James's was a passage through aisles of cheering people. He entered the Abbey at 10.56.

EARLY ARRIVALS

London, Nov. 29. — The handful of early ones who arrived with camp stools at Westminster Abbey yesterday evening to secure vantage points for to-day's wedding grew to formidable proportions long before sun-up.

By 3 a.m. the crowd numbered several score. They were mostly women, and were well provided with wraps, food baskets and vacuum flasks.

With the approach of dawn the scores mounted to hundreds. Street hawkers carrying camp stools did a brisk trade, hiring them out at two shillings each, while others sold morning newspapers, programmes of the wedding ceremony, hot drinks and roasted chestnuts.

The squatters settled themselves happily on the edges of the sidewalks for their long hours of waiting. Encased in rugs and other wrappings, they watched workmen put finishing touches on the decorations.

LOSES PAY CLAIM

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Claim of E. D. Crone, air engineer of Quesnel, B.C., for $1,300 from Neal Evans of the Neal Evans Transportation Co., Bridge River, B.C., has been dismissed by Chief Justice Aulay Morrison in the first Supreme Court trial ever heard in Quesnel.

SCHOOLS OPEN AT BLAIRMORE

Alberta Town Children Attend Classes as Usual on Day of Royal Wedding

Calgary, Nov. 29.—One the seventeenth anniversary of the Russian Revolution Blairmore schoolchildren were given a holiday, but to-day, the wedding day of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina in London, they attended classes as usual.

All other schools in the Crow's Nest district were closed, but, allowed only one holiday a month under the School Act, the Blairmore board had no authority to declare the school closed to-day.

Blairmore has a Left Wing Labor town council and school board and on November 7, to commemorate the Russian Revolution, a school holiday was declared.

DOG'S GREETING CAUSES DEATH

Chattarcy, Wash., Nov. 29.—A hunting dog's happy greeting of Mrs. Marvel Harbour of Spokane, his mistress, caused her death near here yesterday.

Mrs. Harbour and her husband, Arthur, had been hunting rabbits with shotguns. They separated to hunt around a small hill, with the dog following Harbour. Mrs. Harbour returned to their parked automobile first.

The dog, seeing his mistress at the car, ran to her and leaped on her in greeting. The gun was discharged, the full load entering her heart.

Free Staters To Be Citizens Soon

Canadian Press via Reuter's

Dublin, Nov. 29.—After the new citizenship bill becomes law "nobody in the Free State will be a British subject," President Eamon de Valera said during debate on the bill in the Dail yesterday afternoon.

"It will be an impertinence for the British to call Free State Nationals British subjects after the bill becomes law," he added.

The bill is intended to give Free State citizens Free State nationality so far as other countries are concerned, though it has been estimated that in practice they will actually have their choice of being known as Free State or British subjects.

COPPER "RAIN" SEEN IN CHINA

Canadian Press

Canton, China, Nov. 29.—A curious tale of a copper "rain" that fell in the district of Ching Yuan, in Kwangtung province, and that caused a wave of consternation and awe to spread throughout the villages, has been brought to Canton by travelers who declare they witnessed this peculiar weather phenomenon.

According to the travelers, early one evening a formation of white clouds was noticed over several villages. These clouds suddenly turned a dark red in color and then began gradually to disappear. Shortly after midnight the last vestiges of the clouds had gone, and the villagers, [illegible] awaited spectators, retired for the night. Soon after, a queer pattering was heard on the roofs. Investigation showed the roofs and the streets in the villages were covered with a thin layer of small globules of copper.

WOMAN DIES IN FALL FROM CAR

Associated Press

Pendleton, Ore., Nov. 29. — Mrs. Nora L. Perry, fifty-nine, Portland, was killed yesterday when she fell from an automobile driven by her son-in-law, Eldon J. Evans of Portland.

The tragedy occurred about three miles east of Echo on the old Oregon Trail. The door of the coach came open and Mrs. Perry, apparently asleep, fell to the highway and rolled through the guard rail on the curve into a deep cut below the road.

Warned by his daughter's scream in the back seat, Evans was unable to grasp his mother-in-law in time to save her. Her skull was fractured and the right arm broken. The body was brought here, pending funeral arrangements.

Declares Japan Watches Russia

Viscount Saito, Ex-Premier at Tokio, Says Tension in Orient Growing

Associated Press

Boston, Nov. 29.—Viscount Admiral Makota Saito, former Premier of Japan, in the second of a series of two articles published in The Christian Science Monitor, scoffs at the possibility of war between Japan and the United States, but views the Russo-Japanese situation more seriously.

He says Japan's proximity to Russia, with Tokio just four and one-half hours by air from Vladivostok; the numerous border incidents and the growing power of Russia's land, sea and air forces make for a situation in which Japan must not "relax its vigil."

He defends Japan's policy in Manchukuo and contends that in time the new state will prove itself. He says the establishment of the state has been a step in the right direction towards relieving the "acute tension in east Asia."

RED REGIME IN CUBAN AREA

Some 6,000 Families in "Realengo 18," Set Up As Communist Group

Associated Press

Havana, Nov. 29.—The Ministry of Justice disclosed yesterday that an organization known as "Realengo 18" has taken control of 500,000 acres of Cuban territory and set up a "Red Regime" where people pay no taxes and ignore the Havana government.

The independent regime, it was revealed, was a outgrowth of the armed defiance of government troops early this month in the hill regions of Guantanamo by landowners who refused to be dispossessed.

"Realengo 18," is under an organized "Red Regime" which has taken over the functions of government in an area of more than half a million acres occupied by more than 6,000 families, declared Dr. Raul de Cardenas, Secretary of Justice.

"Their leader is a young negro named Lico Alvareg who declared, as spokesman for the Realengistas, that 'we are ready to die rather than let our lands be taken from us'."

The secretary said the Realengistas had gone far beyond the bounds of "Realengo 8" which included about 10,000 acres of lands belonging to the Cuban government.

TOWN IN TUNIS SCENE OF FLOOD

Bousse, Tunis, Nov. 29.—A violent tempest yesterday inundated this town, isolating it, but no loss of life was reported. High winds smashed boats in the harbor and surging waters cut off the roads leading into the interior. Several houses were blown down.

CO-OPERATION IS ADVOCATED

S. G. Blaylock Tells Mining Men of Success His Company Has Had

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Co-operation between employers and employees on a basis fair to both is the only solution of problems of industrial relationship, S. G. Blaylock of Trail, B.C., president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, declared here yesterday in an address to British Columbia members of that body.

Understanding and goodwill can be achieved through "co-operative committees" rather than through the old system of trades unions, he said.

"Co-operative committees do not mean the surrendering of either the rights of the employer or the employee; but provide the machinery for sane consideration of the ideas of each," Mr. Blaylock said.

"I am convinced most of the dealings between employer and employee to-day result in leaving the parties farther apart and more antagonistic than ever. This is almost certain to be the result of conferences which are arranged only when trouble is actually under way.

SHOULD BE DISCOUNTED

"Legislation is the last resort, in my mind, and the very worst method of handling labor problems. These problems should be discounted before they arise ,and discussed when both parties are able to act reasonably and impassionately."

Mr. Blaylock said his own company, the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company Limited, had practised these ideas for sixteen years. He said profit-sharing bonuses had to be withdrawn when necessary and reinstated when possible. On the whole, he said, wages had been very considerably increased. He told the members group insurance and pensions had been provided free of charge to the workers and prices of supplies had been reduced even in face of increased cost.

EMPLOYEES CARRIED

Thus, he said, the company was able to carry all its 5,000 permanent employees throughout the "depression." In the sixteen years the co-operative committees had functioned, 300 employees had served on the committee and union organizations had been dropped one after another by the men, he declared.

Mr. Blaylock said he had nothing against the idea of unionism. He said his company employees had dropped the unions of their own volition, feeling the co-operative system had more possibilties.

He warned others who might consider taking up the scheme that the "first essential of success is that you must play 100 per cent fair with your committee. They must have full parliamentary privileges, and suggestions must be given the fullest and fairest consideration."

"I do not believe government operation of industry is a solution or is feasible," he concluded. "I believe that, while we have human individualism, human ambitions, human hopes and fears, successful socialism is as far off as the millenium."

WANT FASTER MINE SURVEYS

More Intensive Geological Work in Province Sought, Mr. Pearson Says

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—The Dominion government is being urged to speed up and intensify the geological survey of British Columbia, Hon. George S. Pearson, Provincial Minister of Mines, stated yesterday in addressing members of the B.C. Division of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in convention here.

Mr. Pearson declared this province was far behind in information available as to its mineral resources. Vast parts of the province had never been explored properly, he said, and it was the unexplored country that was most attractive to many prospectors. For this reason, he said, more extensive geological information would prove of great help.

"The present tendency is to develop known and rich properties," he declared. "It is my opinion the department should be encouraging the opening of new territory.

"The only interest of my department is in the man who wants to put his money into the ground, not in turning over stocks at a profit or loss," he said. "The man who puts money into mining must expect to take unusual chances.

TO HELP MINE SPECULATOR

"There is a vast difference between the speculator in mining properties and the gambler in stocks. My department will do what it can to see the mining speculator gets a run for his money. We are trying to see information is authentic. We try to see the purpose of the promoter is honest. Speculators in mining ought first to ascertain if information is reliable before putting up their money."

WORK OF ENGINEERS

Engineers go side by side with scientists to win universal recognition for their contribution towards the progress of civilization, C. P. Browning, chairman of the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, declared yesterday in opening the convention.

The position of the engineer was most difficult, Mr. Browning said. On the one side the mining engineer represented capital and on the other the workman. He must produce for the one and act with justice to the other. Mere efficiency in engineering was not enough. Human engineering had taken the place of the old slave-driving of the past, he said.

M'GEER GIVEN NOMINATION

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—G. G. McGeer, K.C., M.P.P., yesterday was nominated officially for the position of mayor of Vancouver for the 1935-36 term. Mayor L. D. Taylor entered his papers November 13, seeking re-election.

LEAGUE HEARS JUGOSLAVIA

Report Charges Known Assassin Harbored By Hungary

Canadian Press

Geneva, Nov. 29.—The arrest of the man who was destined to murder King Alexander of Jugoslavia was requested from Hungary by Belgrade as long ago as August 1, declares the dossier submitted in suport of Jugoslav charges against Hungary which was made available at the League of Nations headquarters yesterday.

Documents establishing Jugoslavia sent a series of urgent notes to Budapest demanding the arrest of Mio Kralj, the assassin (otherwise known as Peter Kalamen and Vlad Georgieff) and that Hungary refused these requests, are contained in the memorandum which has been presented to the League Council for action.

The memorandum is a seventy-eight-page one. League observers declare the Belgrade protest exceedingly grave because it speaks of the direct responsibility of the Budapest government, whereas Jugoslavia's original letter to the League Council referred only to Hungarian authorities.

Kralj is accused in the dossier of having been friendly with Hungarian army officers, a free resident on Hungarian territory, and bearer of a regulation Hungarian passport which enabled him to proceed to France for the planned murder of the Jugoslav monarch.

The memorandum was construed here to-day as directly involving Dr. Tibor Eckhardt, Hungarian delegate to the League of Nations, in the accusations.

CHOICE IN HUNGARY

A summary of the memorandum, revealed by an authoritative source, shows Jugoslavia deems Hungary's responsibility resulted from the following three points:

(1) The choice of criminals was made on Hungarian territory among terrorists who were lengthily prepared for the execution of such acts.

(2) These criminals were permitted to leave Hungary freely and were provided with Hungarian passports.

(3) The assassinations were the result of [illegible] action, inspired and aided during a year on Hungarian soil.

The summary charges that due to the toleration and assistance given by Hungarian authorities, the band was drilled and the terrorists were able to organize a school of crime in Hungary.

"From this gang of organizers of murder was selected the executioner," the memorandum declares, adding that the attitude of Hungary after the murders showed Hungary had neither interest nor desire "that the facts preceding or accompanying the crime be cleared up.

EVASIONS ALLEGED

"Faced by an international inquiry, the Hungarian government adopted a policy of systematic negation characterized by evasions and contradictions," the summary says.

Jugoslavia justifies its action in submitting the problem before the League Council, asserting it considers the crime could not be regarded as an isolated and individual manifestation of criminal anarchy.

"The crime of Marseilles is a natural culmination of a conspiracy against Jugoslavia for a long time organized and nurtured abroad," the summary declares.

"Jugoslavia requested the collaboration of the Hungarian government," the summary states in conclusion. "Far from according to it help in the repression of terrorists plots, the Hungarian authorities favored them."

FORMER ISLAND PASTOR IS DEAD

Canadian Press

Maxville, Ont., Nov. 29.—The Glengarry presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was informed yesterday that the minister it had called less than twenty-four hours previously for Dunvegan Church had dropped dead just before he had received the telegram.

The minister, Rev. W. T. Beatty, who had held pastorates in British Columbia and Manitoba, had latterly been living in Toronto. He was appointed to the Dunvegan pastorate Tuesday. His death occurred Tuesday night, a short time before the telegram extending the call to Dunvegan was delivered.

BURIAL AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Nov. 29. — The body of Rev. W. T. Beatty, who died suddenly in Toronto, arrived here to-day for burial.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Beatty came to Canada as a student thirty years ago and his first pastorate was at Lyleton, Manitoba. He also held pastorates in British Columbia. He lived for a while in the State of Washington, and two years ago returned to Canada, taking a pastorate on Vancouver Island.

To Make Survey Of Electric Light

New Westminster, Nov. 29.—The offer of J. Muirhead, consulting electrical engineer of Vancouver, to make a complete survey of the New Westminster electric light system was accepted by the city council Monday night.

The first section of his investigation, which will be to find the actual cost to the city of selling electric current, is to be completed by January 8. The second part will deal with the possibility of the city establishing its own generating plant. At present New Westminster buys its electric energy from the B.C. Electric Company and retails it to city consumers.

The third section will comprise a complete plan for an electrical distribution system.

Stevens In Toronto Debate

His Side in Discussion of Big Business Wins Students' Discussion

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 29.—"The manipulators of big business are the real government of Canada," declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., before University of Toronto students at Hart House yesterday evening.

The former Minister of Trade and Commerce was guest speaker at a university debate on the resolution, "That in the opinion of this house big business is a curse when directed solely by the profit motive."

"Now don't get we wrong," he continue. "I do not say, nor would I admit, that the leaders of big business personally interfere with the operation of the government, but the very nature of the laws of the country and the character of this big business, as defined in the resolution, exerts an economic influence which supplants government control."

Mr. Steves was the last speaker for the affirmative and at the conclusion of his address the house voted 307 to 88 in favor of the resolution.

Leaders of the teams were S. F. Rae of University College, for the affirmative, and J. S. Woods, Trinity College, for the negative. Both were capably supported by strong teams of debaters. A. S. Smith presided as Speaker of the House.

Mr. Stevens said he had turned to the financial page of his newspaper during the day and read there the statement of a large and powerful bank.

"Now far be it from me to criticize any bank whose power and strength is denoted by such figures," said Mr. Stevens, "but it is my contention that banks are not meant to be a safety deposit place for government bonds. They are the custodians of the moneys of the people to be loaned out for the development of industry and business. Loans to business men of Canada are about one-half of what they should be.

CONDITION OF WORKERS

"And here is a fact of which I am ashamed, and I am sure you will be too. In the Montreal, Toronto and Windsor districts there are 100,000 workers living under conditions that would be a disgrace to mid-continental areas, leave alone Canada."

The greatest crime of the age, said Mr. Stevens, was the refusal of big business men to accept responsibility for those working under them. "I may be accused of being sentimental," he said, "but we can afford some sentimentality, for there is doggone little of it in big business."

Referring to the tremendous executive salaries paid by one firm, he said that if the firm had paid one-third of these salaries to its executives, which would have been quite sufficient to get along on, it would have meant a saving of $1,000,000 a year, "and would have given every one of their 5,000 employees living below a decent standard an additional $200 a year. But these executives were paid for their capacity to go out and buy better than someone else, or to get more out of their workers for less."

Defining "big business," Mr. Stevens said, "I would classify a concern within the ranks of big business when it achieves a dominating position within its commercial or industrial group. When one speaks of big business as a curse, I take it that what is meant is that big business is an evil thing with a bad effect on society."

HISTORY OF MERGERS

Mr. Stevens suggested that mere "bigness" did not particularly mean efficiency, nor did it ensure financial success. On the contrary, in the majority of cases in Canada it had resulted in failure and serious loss to the investors. Two outstanding examples of this in the modern business world were the cases of Ivar Kreuger and the mighty utilities empire of the Insulls. These were conspicuous examples, but nevertheless were typical of thousands of cases of the crash of big business.

"In our own country," said Mr. Stevens, "between 1900 and 1933 there were 374 consolidations of incorporated companies, absorbing 1,145 firms. There were two peak periods—in 1910, 1911 and 1912, when forty-nine mergers occurred, involving 193 firms; and in 1927, 1928 and 1929, when 161 mergers took place, involving 439 firms. It will be noted these two periods account for more than one-half of all consolidations over a period of thirty-three years, and," said Mr. Stevens, "it also will be noted that these two periods mark the peak of commercial booms."

As to public financing, new issues during 1921 to 1933 amounted to $192,236,000, said Mr. Stevens, and of this $171,087,000 was issued in 1927, 1928 and 1929.

MOST IN FEDERAL FIELD

These consolidations resulted in the incorporation of 111 new companies, of which seventy-four were under the Dominion Companies Act, twenty-two under the Ontario Companies Act, eight under Quebec, and seven divided among the other provinces. This demonstrated the preference for Dominion incorporation, said Mr. Stevens, and indicated the federal government could exercise a large measure of control if desired.

PROVINCES HAVE CONTROL RIGHTS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Judicial opinion is to the effect the Parliament of Canada is not vested with jurisdiction to interfere with the management of particular trades, nor to prohibit practices in local or particular undertakings which enhance costs or profits, said Secretary of State C. H. Cahan in an address to the University Club of Ottawa yesterday.

He asserted parliament might not authorize a commission to increase or to restrict the production of local industries, nor to regulate prices, nor to prescribe or restrict profits to private enterprise, nor to determine what are unfair profits, nor to prohibit the making or taking of such profits.

"It has, I think," went on Mr. Cahan, "been clearly decided that many matters, now being discussed in the public press and elsewhere, relating to the prevalent complaints regarding hours of labor, salaries and wages of employees, price spreads, costs and profits, are exclusively within the jurisdiction of the provincial legislatures."

Seattle Tramway Refinance Plan

Associated Press

Seattle, Nov. 29. — Renewed attempts will be made to refinance the municipal street railway through federal loans and concessions from the Puget Sound Power and Light Company, the city council utilities committee has decided. The federal government will be asked to loan $10,000,000, and the company will be asked to accept $4,336,000 in cash for the $8,336,000 still due on the purchase price, a member stated.

APPEAL TAKEN IN REIFEL CASE

U.S. Government Seeks Reversal of Part of Court's Decision at Seattle

Associated Press

Seattle, Nov. 29.—An order allowing the government to appeal from part of a court decision in the $17,250,000 civil suit against the Reifel liquor interests and others was signed by Federal Judge Jeremiah Neterer.

The government is appealing from the court's orders quashing service of process on the Vancouver Breweries Ltd., and dismissing them from the case. An appeal also is pending from the quashing of a writ of garnishment against the Hemrich Brewing Company of Seattle.

Petition for the order allowing appeal was signed by Sam E. Whitaker and Tom De Wolfe, special assistant United States Attorneys-General, and by District Attorney J. Charles Dennis.

In its suit the government seeks to collect custom duties, penalties and internal revenue taxes on huge amounts of liquor alleged to have been smuggled into the United States from British Columbia several years ago.

NOMINEE FOR BANK BOARD

J. N. Harvey of Vancouver Candidate For B.C. Place in Central Bank

Canadian Press

ancouver, Nov. 29.—J. N. Harvey, Vancouver financial agent, who had agreed prior to the recent meeting of shareholders of the Bank of Canada to permit himself to be nominated as a British Columbia representative on the directorate of the bank, announced yesterday he had decided to leave his name in nomination.

W. C. Woodward received a majority vote as the province's favored nominee at a recent meeting of 100 shareholders.

Mr. Harvey contends the shareholders' meeting did not conform to the scheme laid down by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to insure geographical representation.

The act says the directors shall be elected in three occupational groups. Class A consists of those engaged in farming, mining, fishing, etc. Class B consists of manufacturers and merchants. Class C includes all other occupations.

The Chamber of Commerce scheme allocated the two Class B directorships to eastern provinces and reserved a place in Class C for a British Columbia man.

NO CONFLICT SEEN

Mr. Harvey contends that, since Mr. Woodward is a merchant and is eligible to run only in Class B, the meeting did not adapt itself to the scheme designed to insure eastern support for the British Columbia nominee. Mr. Harvey says, too, that since his nomination goes into Class C there can be no conflict between himself and Mr. Woodward.

Mr. Harvey states one of his main interests in running is his strong belief in a broadening of credit and an equalization of interest rates as between east and west, factors which the bank would influence through its dealings with the merchants' banks.

AN IMPORTANT INQUIRY

THE FUEL INDUSTRY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA is such an important one that anything which can be done to put it on a better and more profitable footing should be good business for producer and consumer alike. For this reason it is gratifying to learn that the provincial government has appointed a commission, with Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald, of the Court of Appeal, as its presiding officer, to inquire into the following matters respecting coal mined in or imported into British Columbia, and used for fuel purposes in this province:

(a) The cost of production;

(b) The manner and cost of preparation for the wholesale and retail trades respectively;

(c) The cost of transportation;

(d) The cost to dealers in British Columbia;

(e) The cost to consumers in British Columbia;

(f) The profits made by persons or corporations owning or operating coal mines in British Columbia;

(g) The profits made by persons or corporations engaged in the business of buying and selling coal in British Columbia.

It is to be hoped, too, that during the course of the inquiry cognizance will be taken of the lot of the coal miner. As The Times has pointed out frequently, he is a very much misunderstood person. Generally he is regarded by many people as a worker with a constant grouch. From time to time he may translate his grouch into abstention from work—which means he strikes in protest against the wages he is paid and the conditions under which he labors in the bowels of the earth.

We on this island have more than a passing interest in the coal mining industry. Victoria merchants can tell by their ledgers when it is prosperous and when it is in the doldrums. So it is to be hoped that the inquiry which the provincial government has instituted, and which Mr. Justice Macdonald will conduct, will produce something of real value to producers, retailers, and consumers alike.

HAPPY UNION

VICTORIANS THIS MORNING OVER the air heard the preliminaries, the ceremony itself, and the various formalities which accompanied the marriage of the Duke of Kent, King George's youngest son, to Princess Marina of Greece. This transmission through the ether was one more triumph for science.

Victorians are especially interested in this alliance between a most popular British prince—who has visited this city—and a princess from the Balkans, because it seems to have been not a marriage of convenience, but a real love match. If all one has read about them is only even half true, this alliance bids fair to be blessed with everything every normal-minded being would wish.

There is, however, something about to-day's happenings of which British people may be permitted to boast. Never was there a suggestion that the skulking would-be assassin would disturb the solemnity of the imposing cavalcade. The members of the British royal house go about without any special protection. Obviously, of course, there is near at hand some unobtrusive member of that famed organization known as the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard; but his presence is usually superfluous, and he generally goes back to his desk with a feeling that he has wasted a few hours in which he might have been hunting up some criminal.

Apart, however, from these unimportant details, the event in London to-day aroused the interest of the whole world, and it may be taken for granted that the good wishes of many peoples, including those who do not use the English tongue, will go out to the young couple who have now ended their separate lives and joined them in one. Canada and the Canadian people will wish them good health and happiness—a life well lived.

METHODISM VS. MILITARISM

THE PEACE COMMITTEES OF SIX Methodist conferences in Kansas, Nebraska, and Missouri, which met recently in Topeka, says a writer in The Literary Digest, have voted to fight militarism in all its forms.

Beginning with the endorsement of the League of Nations and World Court, the committees condemned "economic exploitation and imperialism, the private ownership of munitions industries, armed intervention in foreign countries for the protection of any and all investments of American capital, and the protective tariffs which create tension."

Every Methodist pastor in the three states was urged to focus public attention on attempts of college students to do away with compulsory military education, and to "discourage attendance at Citizens Military Training Camps." It was recommended also that "the Reserve Officers' Training Corps would be investigated . . . to determine the interest of munition-makers in its support and maintenance." The resolution recited:

> We deplore the fact that such institutions as Civilian Conservation Camps and the Boy Scouts of America are being used to spread militaristic propaganda.

The report favored systematic peace propaganda, and that the Methodist Church withdraw its ministers from the chaplaincy in the United States Army, substituting therefor pastoral care under the church's own control. Subsidy for men serving in the armed forces also was recommended.

A FATHER'S PROBLEM

A ST. PAUL YOUTH, AGED EIGHTEEN, went out on a holdup one night recently, got involved in a fight with police, and shot and killed a patrolman. He got away and dragged himself home, seriously wounded. When he got home, his father quickly learned what had happened.

What should a father do in such a case—nurse his son back to health, keep his mouth shut, and pray that the whole affair could be hushed up, or step forward with Spartan courage and let the law take its course?

This St. Paul father took the latter alternative. He called a doctor, then he called the parish priest—and then he called the police, and saw his son taken away to jail to be indicted for second-degree murder.

"It was the only decent thing to do," he says. "I hope no other father has to do what I did."

This man had about as hard a decision to make as any father could face. He met it with considerable fortitude.

BISHOP MACDONALD

THE ADHERENTS OF THE ROMAN Catholic Church and civic dignitaries yesterday heartily welcomed the newly-consecrated Bishop of Victoria—the Rt. Rev. John Hugh MacDonald of Antigonish, Nova Scotia. The ceremony of consecration which took place at St. Andrew's Cathedral was a most impressive one.

Bishop MacDonald comes to Victoria with a background of distinguished service in the faith to which he belongs. Like his predecessors in the high office to which he has been elevated, he no doubt will become a prominent factor in the promotion of the best interests of the community.

Roman Catholic bishops who have occupied the high office which Bishop MacDonald now has come to take over have always shown themselves ready to play their full part in works designed to improve the lot of their fellow men, and The Times joins in the hearty welcome extended to Bishop MacDonald yesterday.

IMPORTANCE OF ALASKA

IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTICE THAT the Russian Communist newspaper Pravda predicts that Alaska will probably be an important battlefield if the United States and Japan ever go to war.

This newspaper spokesman for the rulers of Russia asserts that "the almost untouched wealth of Alaska attracts the appetite of Japanese imperialists," notes the United States naval authorities are contemplating the development of bases in the Aleutian Islands, and calls Alaska "one of the decisive battlefields of the north Pacific phase of a future Pacific war."

All this is interesting, not so much for its prediction of trouble, but because it is a reminder of the enormous potentialities of the great territory in the far northwest. It is interesting, too, of course, because Alaska is British Columbia's northern neighbor.

United States development of Alaska so far has barely scratched the surface. Some day this great region will be one of the most valuable features of the republic's national economy.

A contemporary says "armaments are hard on taxpayers." That is exactly what the taxpayers think. It is the reason why Canadians are in no mood to spend any more money on armaments than they are obliged to spend.

Premier Bennett seems to think that his government will have not the slightest difficulty in getting re-elected when it goes to the country next year. Well, all Mr. Bennett has to do is go to the country and find out what the country thinks about his administration. After all, the people are the final judges—and their verdict is final.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

A BRAVE DRIVER

The Edmonton Journal

When Fred Hayes, truck driver, discovered that his car was aflame in the middle of the town of Olds, he drove it clear of the community before abandoning it. As he escaped from the cab the first of ten barrels of gasoline he had aboard exploded, throwing flames hundreds of feet in the air. Subsequent explosions set nearby trees alight. What would have resulted had the sea of fire been loosed in the town may be easily imagined. In a movie drama Mr. Hayes would have ended up with a medal or something. Perhaps he will in real life. He has it coming to him.

SPIDER HALTS A JAIL BREAK

The New Orleans Times-Picayune

Jesse Pardue, thirty years old, prisoner at the state penitentiary, Nashville, Tenn., had a spider to blame for failure of his escape plans. Warden A. W. Neely said that Pardue slipped away from a construction crew and hid under the floor of an unfinished building, from which he planned to continue his break.

There some hours later guards found Pardue nursing a swollen foot where, he said, a spider had bitten him. Pardue is serving a five to fifteen-year sentence for robbery.

PANTHER PLAYS POSSUM

The Los Angeles Times

Kenneth Roscoe of Upper Mattole, Cal., has advertised claims on a huge panther. It will be known he said, by a bullet in its body. Roscoe has not yet figured out how it got away from him. He said he encountered it on a sheep range and shot it in the body. The animal keeled over on its back and lay still. Suddenly its feet began to kick and in another moment it rolled over, got up and disappeared in tall timber, tail swishing.

A THOUGHT

Now set your heart and your soul to seek the Lord your God; arise, therefore, and build ye the sanctuary of the Lord God, to bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the holy vessels of God, into the house that is to be built to the name of the Lord.—I Chronicles xxii 19.

To yield reverence to another, to hold ourselves and our lives at his disposal is not slavery; often, it is the noblest state in which a man can live in this world.
—Ruskin.

Loose Ends

Don't listen to fellows like Dr. Clemens, who are only biologists after all—listen, instead, to the jolly British Tories talking radicalism without knowing it—and to the profound ideas of our noted contributors.

By H. B. W.

OUR FAITH

I FIND it is dangerous to write columns about our sea serpents. No sooner had I written a touching obituary to Cadborosaurus, who had been found dead on a beach near Prince Rupert, than Dr. Clemens, the eminent biologist, announced that the creature was only a basking shark. The sea serpent news has been so rapid in the last few years that you can't afford to write a line about it before 3 o'clock on the day the paper is issued. If you make any remarks overnight, as I did, you are sure to look ridiculous to-morrow by some new discovery in the morning.

Nevertheless, I am not going to allow my views on these more important things of life to be dwarfed and dominated by a fellow like Dr. Clemens. He is only a biologist after all, and sea serpents have nothing to do with biology. Sea serpents are like religion. They must be taken on faith. You can't dissect a noble idea like that in a laboratory. You can't count its bones and examine its spines and then rush out and declare that it is only a basking shark or a northern sea cow (Rhytina Stelleri).

All good ideas have had to resist the attempts of fellows like Dr. Clemens to undermine them. There isn't a cosy, comforting thought in the whole gamut of human experience and aspiration; there isn't a spiritual concept in the universe that scientists haven't brutally assaulted and tried to tear to pieces.

Largely they have succeeded, but not quite. Victoria's touching faith in Cadborosaurus after innumerable disillusionments, shows you that science is not everything. Don't pay any attention to Dr. Clemens, who says he "still doesn't believe in sea serpents." Why, most likely a man like that doesn't even believe in Santa Claus.

SO SIMPLE

THE DOUGLAS Credit System, which already is the most fashionable urge of the intelligentsia in England, has penetrated at last into these wilds. The Colonist the other morning published two letters to the editor explaining the system and a report of a speaker who was making it thoroughly plain. The net result of all three efforts was to make the whole business more unutterably unintelligible than ever.

The trouble with the unhappy Douglas Credit System, which is really quite simple, and may be quite sound, is that its friends make it appear so complicated that the average man thinks it must be crazy. He thinks that about anything he can't understand. The other monetary reformers kill their theories in the same way.

To put over a plan like that it is no use the Douglas Credit people talking about their "a plus b theroms," their "national dividends" and their "just prices." For purposes of practical politics, you have got to ignore all such details, which the public never understand, and get a slogan like "Balance the Budget," or "Save the Pound," or "Solve Unemployment," or "Blast a Way Into Foreign Markets," even though, as actually occurred, you unbalanced the budget, let the pound slip, leave unemployment unsolved and ruin your foreign markets.

JOLLY RADICALS

NEVERTHELESS, Douglas Credit is likely to gather support because it has a new name with a smooth, respectable sound. All such plans, though their advocates will deny it stoutly, inevitably lead to a pretty rigid control of our economy by the state. They involve at once the public control of finance, which is the first step in socialism. They involve drastic price fixing and control of wages, and state supervision of foreign trade. In actual fact, that is socialism, whatever you call it, for after all, it doesn't matter who actually owns the machinery of production if the state is managing it as if it were the owner.

But never mind. You have jolly retired English gentlemen in Sooke rallying to the support of Douglas Credit and writing to The Colonist, with Latin quotations, to say that they are utterly against socialism and all that sort of dangerous rot, but, by gad, this is something different. This idea was hatched in genteel society, not by a lot of beastly radicals.

Thus the name of your idea is almost everything. There is no use preaching communism in this country, but you can make the milk men of the Fraser Valley share their income equally among themselves under the Natural Products Marketing Act on a basis of pure communism, and that precisely is what they are going to do. There is no use preaching socialism, but if you can think up a name like Planned Economy, or Douglas Credit, people will listen to you. If some clever fellow would wrap up revolution in some such name as the Cambridge Plan, or the Good Old British System, most likely we'd alter the whole economic structure within the year.

But it is all to the good that fine old British Tories are going in for radicalism without knowing it. It all helps us along the road towards some compromise, a little nearer the distant goal of sanity. We have already moved fifty years in the last two, without knowing it, and we are not going back. Where we are going nobody knows. Never mind. Nobody ever has.

HOT STUFF

DOUBTLESS you have been reading, with much more attention and intelligence than you read this column, the glittering effusions that some of the more eminent movie stars have been writing for this newspaper. You have listened to Miss Colbert telling you that she is not beautiful, which is true, but she doesn't believe it. You have heard a long string of vacuities, sodden with heavy wisecracks, from the ineffable Mr. Lee Tracy. Lately Miss Jean Harlow, the lush lady with the platinum hair, has been writing in deadly serious vein to tell you that all the movie people do is work. (But surely not quite all, Miss Harlow!)

You have read all this tripe, and you will go on reading it, even though nothing in the paper will be so utterly meaningless and dull. The classified ads are far more informative. Even this column contains more information. But you will read it because of the names attached, even though (as I suspect in my deepest heart) the movie stars' columns are ghost-written. (That, [illegible], means that they are written by a ghost, who is usually a broken-down police court reporter.)

You will read them because even for the strongest-minded of you the tinsel and glitter of Hollywood has an irresistible attraction, and the pictures of Miss Harlow aren't so hard to look at either. But if the same sort of stuff were written by an unknown John Smith, or by the Prime Minister of Canada, or even by me, you wouldn't read through the first paragraph.

Miss Harlow has only to state that she works twenty hours a day; Miss Colbert has only to say that she really doesn't know how to write, which is a profound truth; Mr. Tracey has only to tell you of his yacht and Chinese cook; and you gobble it up in dripping chunks. But if I were to utter the most profound thought in modern times, as I frequently do; if I were to say something strong enough to shatter the world, as often happens, you would only yawn and say you wish that fellow would write about traffic policemen or utensils in Windsor, Ont. That's what it means to have a name in electric lights, and some charming curves.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

TO GARNER MEMORIES

O, I would garner memories
From every land on earth,
So at the last when I sit down
Besides my quiet hearth
To fold my hands and nod and dream
Above the embers there,
I can see Alpine peaks agleam
Or breathe Spain's amber air.

I shall not mind the loneliness,
Though time goes limping by,
For I shall walk the Bund again
And hear the sea gull's cry;
And I shall see the Southern Cross
Aflame just as to-night,
As clearly then shall I behold
[illegible]
So while I'm sailing overseas
To islands far away,
I treasure up bright memories
Against a distant day.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
NOVEMBER 29, 1909
(From The Times Files)

The unprecedentedly heavy rains of the last few days have not only broken records for the last twenty years, but have caused no inconsiderable amount of damage in the low-lying districts of the city. The traffic has been suspended on the E. and N. Railway owing to washing away of numerous culverts and bridges, and Victoria has been cut off from time to time from communication with the outside world.

While the building increase of the city for the eleven months of the year totals about $600,000, the permits issued for this month are considerably behind the figures of last year and also away behind those of last month.

In another effort to settle the differences of the two factions in regard to the removal of the Chinese josshouse in Chinatown, a row broke out last night in the Chinese schoolhouse, Fisgard Street, where parties were assembled to act on the matter.

The fifteen mile race between Marsh and Stanley will take place as arranged, but not at the place announced. The race will be held in the skating rink, instead of the horse show building.

Port Townsend, Nov. 28.—The heaviest weather of the year swept the lower Puget Sound yesterday, lashing the waters into tremendous seas of such severity that navigation was limited to the runs of regular scheduled steamers.

WARNING!

The Times urges its correspondents to restrict their contributions to 500 words. It positively will not print lengthy communications.

These letters must be plainly written on one side of the paper only, and must be accompanied by the names and addresses of the writers, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

Letters will not be re-written for publication. If they are not legible no attempt will be made to read them.

Letters not used will not be returned to the writers.

Letters containing offensive personal reflections will not be printed.

These rules, which henceforth will be carried out absolutely, are designed as much for the protection of our patient readers as for that of The Times.

SPIRITUAL PROBLEMS

To the Editor:—If ever Victoria could boast of a profound thinker, that is your correspondent A. B. Sanders, whose letters are always full of up-to-date and correct information, displaying sound reasoning and cool, irrefutable logic. After giving his six fundamental reasons why the present depression is of an altogether different nature to former events of economic disturbances, he postulates "the end of an era, the close of an epoch."

Ever since its beginning over five years ago the press all over America has taken the smallest sign of improvement to mean the rapid approach of better times, the return to normal conditions and good old prosperity; yet it is apparent to any earnest student of the economic history of the race that there can be no going back to normal times in spite of the statements of even intelligent and progressive editors.

No, the world will never go back, neither can the old prosperity return—prosperity that depends upon selling to one's neighbor and on going into debt by receiving credit. The world is moving forward and the age of gold is passing.

In the stirring days of the bank crisis in the United States, February, 1933, and the rosy excitement of Roosevelt's New Deal, America quickly forgot the startling disclosures of the Technocrats. Their revelations were so startling and gloomy that the people wanted to forget them. Their findings are not pleasant, yet others than the Technocrats have been talking for several years about the growing menace of mechanical power to our civilization.

Mr. Babson, during a visit to Fort Myers, asked the great inventor, Thomas Edison, what new radical inventions he could visualize for the near future. Mr. Edison replied: "Babson, I do not pose as a preacher, but let me tell you that if there is a God, He will not allow us to advance much farther materially until we catch up spiritually. A great fundamental law of science is that all forces must be kept in balance. When any body or force goes off at a tangent there is a smash. This applies to America as it has to every nation before it."

Some think that curtailing production would remedy conditions; until recently we thought that prosperity depended on plenty of everything, now our experts are inclined to believe that scarcity will bring back prosperity. We seem to have a perverted idea as to what prosperity really means. It was John Ruskin who said: "The flower of production is consumption pure and simple." But men are not interested in how much humanity can eat, only how much they can buy. All production is merely for the sake of selling, not for consumption, and in the present breakdown the man-made system of economics stands self-condemned, and the present world crisis actually means the end of our money civilization. At its root the cause of our troubles is not economical but spiritual. Modern machinery, however, has prepared us for the age of abundance, wherein those who enter it can buy "without money and without price."

Miss Betty O'Brien, 1070 Richmond Avenue, had two tables in the afternoon, the players being Miss Eileen Thain, Mrs. Wheatley, Mrs. Stephen Jones Jr., Mrs. Keith Dorman, Miss Frances Jones, Miss Florence Vey, Margaret Whyte and Miss Margaret Merrick, Miss Rhoda Goward, 1307 Transit Road, entertained when her guests were Miss Margaret Adam, Doris Woolison, Miss Doris Rines and Miss Gwendolyn Wood.

W.B.A. Luncheon. — Queen Alexandra Review No. 1 W.B.A. will hold a luncheon at the Hudson's Bay Company on Monday, at 12.30 o'clock.

Old Dutch says:

Use Old Dutch—it is the safe, sure way to Healthful Cleanliness.
To be sure of Healthful Cleanliness the invisible impurities which are often a menace to health, must also be removed with the visible dirt.

This is what Old Dutch does; its particles possess natural detergent qualities—they erase the dirt and by a process similar to "adsorption" take up and carry away all impurities.

Mr. John Pugh, the best man, is to the right of the bridegroom, while in front is little Evelyn Leckie, the flower girl.

ANTIQUES TEA AT Y.W.C.A. DRAWS MANY VISITORS

Premier Pattullo Opened Attractive and Successful Affair Yesterday; Lovely Specimens of French and Georgian Periods Displayed

Visitors to the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon metaphorically rubbed their eyes on entering the building, for the spacious lounge had "gone Louis Seize," with elaborate gilded mirrors hanging from its walls, exquisite gilded cabinets and ormulu tables, delicate gilt chairs, and lovely Dresden ornaments enhancing the French period atmosphere.

The occasion was the "antiques tea" staged under the auspices of the "Y" committee, with Mrs. Richard Felton as general convener, and the affair was an unqualified success from both the artistic and social standpoint

OPENED BY PREMIER

Premier Pattullo, who was introduced by Mrs. Roy Angus, the president, congratulated the association on the splendid work it is accomplishing, not only in Victoria but throughout the Dominion.

He had an especial interest in its work, he said, because of the fact that his sister, Mrs. Percival Foster of Toronto, is national field secretary of the Y.W.C.A. The Premier wished the local "Y" success, not only on the present occasion, but in all its undertakings.

The tea arrangements were particularly attractive. Mrs. Alex Stewart had charge of the main dining-room, where tea was served from a table covered with a lace cloth and arranged with beautiful silver candelabra with tall green lighted tapers, and a central bowl of pink chrysanthemums and antirrhinums.

Mrs. H. M. Cassidy had charge of the tea arrangements in the lecture-room, where a beautiful filet and embroidered cloth covered the table, which was centred with a bowl of single Sunset chrysanthemums, with matching candles in handsome candelabra. The candelabras and handsome silver tea-service used in each tea-room were generously loaned by the Antique Galleries for the occasion.

ASSISTING AT TEA

Pouring tea were: Lady Barnard, Mrs. C. S. Quainton, Mrs. Hermann Robertson, Mrs. Alex Gillespie, Mrs. Arthur Walsh, Mrs. J. H. Fletcher, Mrs. Alfred Carmichael, Mrs. C. S. Beals, Mrs. David Leeming, Mrs. Donald McAdie, Miss Agnew, Mrs. W. H. Molson, Mrs. John Hart, Mrs. Gordon Hunter, Mrs. Gordon Sloan, Mrs. J. O. Cameron and Mrs. George Straith.

Assisting in serving were the following members of the Beaux-Arts: Misses Patricia McConnan, Mary-Lou Ross, Connie Hobbs, Clementine Sanderson, Doreen McGregor, Margaret Vantreight, Eve Lytton, Orrie Branfoot, Dorothy Mercer, Lorraine Pendray and Nan Eve.

GEORGIAN ANTIQUES

Prior to the serving of tea, the many visitors spent an enjoyable half hour inspecting the treasures displayed in the lounge and in the drawing-rooms. Under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Bartholomew and Mrs. Marian Guthrie of Murdoch's Antiques, the drawing-room had been converted into a drawing-room and dining-room of the Georgian period.

A figure dressed in the costume of the period was seated at an embroidery frame in the drawing-room to lend character to the setting. In this room and also in the adjoining dining-room, lovely specimens of work of the greatest cabinet-makers of that day were displayed, together with very beautiful old Georgian silver, exquisite glass and china and objects d'art of the period. Even the pictures on the walls conformed to the 1770-1820 period which was reproduced.

IN THE FRENCH PERIOD

The main lounge of the institution was given over to the French period, the gallant days of Louis XV and Louis XVI being recalled in the wide brocade chairs designed to accommodate the expansive hooped skirts of the ladies, in the elaborately gilded mirrors and pier-glasses, the inlaid card and occasional tables.

Fine old tapestries and paintings lent an appropriate background to the French room, which had been most effectively arranged by Mr. and Mrs. H. Currie of the Antique Galleries.

ADD EQUIPMENT TO HOSPITAL

Jubilee W.A. Votes $1,024.68 For Much Needed Furnishings

Valuable additions to the equipment of the Jubilee Hospital will be made through the medium of the Women's Auxiliary, which, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, voted sums totaling $1,024.68 for this purpose. Mrs. John Phethean, the president, was in the chair.

The various donations were as follows: $600 towards the portable X-ray; $76 for linoleum for the utility room of the women's medical ward; $150 for linoleum for the men's medical ward; $48 for three goose-neck standard lamps for the maternity floor; $115.50 for three croup kettles; $27.50 for an electric baker for the third floor, and $7.68 for curtain material.

Mrs. Phethean announced that the total number of pieces received at the linen shower had amounted to 970, pillowslips from Mrs. Henry Heisterman and Mrs. F. Cameron being inadvertently omitted from the list of gifts already published.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to all who had assisted in making the shower such a success.

Miss Mitchell, who was present at the meeting, expressed her deepest thanks to the W.A. for again assisting the hospital by means of the annual linen shower, and asked that the cash received at the shower be used for buying sheets.

Mrs. J. L. Crimp reported two sewing meetings held in November, and Mrs. P. E. Taylor rejorted $8 received in dues from Mrs. H. R. Beaven, Mrs. D. R. Ker, Mrs. Alan Morkill and Mrs. H. Billingsley.

I.O.D.E. Travel Talk—Wednesday evening, December 5, Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie will give a travel talk at I.O.D.E. Municipal headquarters, View Street, on her recent trip around the world. Mrs. Mackenzie is regent of H.M.S. Resolution Chapter, I.O.D.E., and the proceeds will augment the chapter's work in the Peace River, and for the secondary educational work which the chapter has undertaken.

The many friends of Mrs. H. S. Jones, who has been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital since September 23 when she was seriously injured in an automobile accident, will be pleased to learn that she has so far recovered from her injuries as to be able to return to her home, 1386, Oliver Street.

Lieutenant-Commander F. L. Houghton and Mrs. Houghton and their two children will leave on Wednesday evening next for the mainland on their way to Halifax, where they will spend Christmas, and from where they will sail for England, where Lieutenant-Commander Houghton will attend the Staff College at Greenwich. In farewell to them Major W. H. Dobbie and Mrs. Dobbie entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at their home on Esquimalt Road.

The christening of the infant son of Captain and Mrs. Victor Gordon-Lennox took place recently at St. Peter's Church, Eaton Square, London, England. The child was given the names of Henry George Charles and the godparents were the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada; Mrs. Lawson, Helen, Duchess of Northumberland, Mr. Thomas Hankey, Miss Dimsdale and the Earl of March. Captain and Mrs. Gordon-Lennox and their son are visiting in London with Mrs. Gordon Lennox's parents, Admiral Sir Charles and Lady Kingsmill of Ottawa.

Under the auspices of the W.A. of St. Mark's Parish Church, a silver tea was held yesterday afternoon in the parish hall, with Mrs. W. A. McMillan and Mrs. W. L. Llewellyn acting as hostesses for the occasion. Edna Jacques delighted the guests with the recitation of a number of her own compositions, interspersed with short talks on her literary work. Mrs. E. E. Wilson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. O. Jull, rendered several vocal solos. The tables were decorated with autumn flowers and foliage and, as a result of the tea, a substantial sum has been added to the funds of the women's auxiliary.

Among the guests registered at the Dominion Hotel are: Capt. J. Barberie, Vancouver; Mr. R. P. LaBelle, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Watkins, Spokane; Mr. H. J. Gray, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. R. Trelveck, Tofino; Rev. Father M. M. Sweeney, Vancouver; Mr. W. B. Davidson, Vancouver; Mr. J. W. Canonville, Vancouver; Mr. C. S. York, Vancouver; Mr. F. G. Shears, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Jack Wolfenden, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McNeil, Ladysmith; Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker and family, Parksville; Mr. R. W. G. Clarke, Mr. C. E. Edmunds, Mr. J. C. Clarke, Capt. A. H. Rippon, Vancouver.

MISS ROSETTE LEE
young Victoria violinist, who, by special request, will play at the reception to be given to-night at the Empress Hotel to Rt. Rev. J. H. MacDonald, whose installation as Bishop of Victoria took place yesterday evening. Miss Lee is well known to local audiences, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lee, 834 Broughton Street, Victoria. To-night, when she plays "Liebestraum" and "Kula Wiak" (Weiniawski), she will be accompanied at the piano by her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Chapman.

From His Hip to His Heel One Long Ache with SCIATICA

Of all the miserable, vitality-draining pains, sciatica is certainly one of the worst. Here is a blacksmith who says he "Took pills and tablets by the bushel"—then T-R-C's quickly stopped the trouble. Read this letter from Edmond Landry, Drapeau, Que.

"Three years ago I had terrible Sciatica that made my right leg ache like toothache from my hip, where it was worst, down to my heel. I am a blacksmith and for 3 months I did not lift a hammer, although I took pills and tablets by the bushel. Things were getting pretty bad when I read an advertisement for T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). I got a $1 box. The very first dose gave me relief. By the time I had finished that $1 box I was completely better and able to work. T-R-C's also get rid of the worst headache in 20 minutes."

Time and time again T-R-C's have given safe, speedy relief from painful Sciatica; also from Acute Rheumatic suffering, Painful Neuritis, Neuralgia (including Tic Douloureux) and Lumbago (Lame Back). Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—Enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the misery-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 50c and $1 everywhere.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1934

According to astrology this should be a fairly fortunate day with good luck attending earlier hours, although some adverse aspects are active.

Good news is forecast for the public mind is likely to be open to positive and constructive ideas. It is well to make the end of the month a time for optimistic planning.

This is a fortunate sway for interviewing bankers and for adjusting financial affairs. Loans and co-operation are forecast for men and women engaged in business.

Building continues under a favorable direction of the stars which presages success for new colonies, but they will develop in unexpected ways that stress independence.

Sudden changes of weather with intense cold in many parts of the country are prognosticated. Preparation should be made for a long winter. Dealers in fuel, furs and woolen garments will profit. The wise will make their necessary purchases without delay, for astrologers foretell sharp rises in the cost of keeping warm.

This is a most auspicious rule of the stars under which to give generously to charities, since in many cities there will be distress that lasts through many weeks, the stars indicate.

Shopping continues under a planetary government favorable to substantial holiday trade extending to merchandise that represents supreme luxury. Furs and jewels will be in demand, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of success especially presaged for writers, actors and musicians.

Children born on this day will be vigorous and energetic. Subjects of this sign are tremendous workers. They attain any goal they vision.

Johann Andraes Dippel, opera singer, was born on this day, 1866. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Guillaume Adolphe Bouguereau, French painter, 1825; Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain), noted writer, 1835.

SOCIETY FOLK STEAL BEACONS

London's Bright Young People Take to Removing New Traffic Signals

London, Nov. 29.—London's "Bright Young Things" of smart society have found a new way of passing those difficult hours between the closing of the night clubs and the arrival of the milkman—that is, removing Belisha Beacons.

About half a dozen people have been arrested since the arrival of the "globes" for damaging them or taking them away, and the other night a mass removal of six was attempted and successfully carried out.

Taking them from the Paddington area, the miscreants motored through London and carefully deposited them outside the Ministry of Transport.

The night watchman in a building near at hand said that he saw a car drive up, and two men alighted. They were too muffled up for him to be able to see their faces. They took six beacons out of the car, placed them in the road, with a hurricane lamp by them, and drove off.

An official of the Ministry of Transport said that the "thieves" brought a grave responsibility upon themselves, because the absence of the globes might lead to the death of a pedestrian. He went on to quote Southey's poem, "The Inchcape Rock." It tells the story of an abbot who put a bell on a rock, after seventy ships had been wrecked there. "Ralph the Rover" cut the bell away, and was later wrecked on the rock, and he and the crew of his ship were drowned.

The Ministry of Transport official is to be congratulated on his knowledge of poetry. He might compose an ode to the traffic lights, on the theme of "Turn to me, thou green-eyed goddess."

GETS JUDGMENT FOR BACK WAGES

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Miss Phyllis Clark was awarded judgment for $701 and county court costs by Chief Justice Aulay Morrison in Supreme Court to-day for back wages due her under the British Columbia Female Minimum Wage Act against Mrs. Gertrude Goodall.

Miss Clark alleged she was employed by Mrs. Goodall in Barclay Manor as housekeeper, general and tea room attendant and chamber maid for [illegible] a month and her board and lodging. She claimed the difference between what she received and $14 a week to which she claims she was entitled.

Centenarian To Receive Estate

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Judith H. Dorey, centenarian of Janvrin Harbor, Nova Scotia, will receive the entire $2,200 estate of her son, Charles Geo. Dorey, who died here last August. Mr. Justice Denis Murphy in the B.C. Supreme Court here yesterday authorized distribution of the estate, and directed it was not necessary to follow the usual course of waiting a year from the date of death.

Belmont United W.A.—The regular monthly meeting of the W.A. of the Belmont Avenue United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. Chapman, 1427 Gladstone Avenue, on Tuesday afternoon, with a good attendance of members. The president, Mrs. C. Wharton, was in the chair. After the opening hymn Mrs. Grove read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. R. P. Knott offered prayer. General business followed. The treasurer, Mrs. Knight, gave a report of the bazaar held last week, which was quite satisfactory. The regular meeting day coming on Christmas, it was decided to hold the next meeting on Tuesday, December 18. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which tea was served by the hostess.

GIRLS SOLD AS ARAB SLAVES

Nine Alleged "Leased" For $10 Year, Paid to Parents

Associated Press

Jerusalem, Nov. 29. — The Arabic newspaper Falastin said to-day it had learned that nine young girls, daughters of Bedouin tribesmen, recently were "leased" for domestic service at the rate of $10 a year, to be paid to the parents.

The "rental" virtually sells the girls into slavery, the paper said, [illegible] a five-year period.

The activities of an alleged "girl broker" are being investigated by police authorities and also a search is being made for the whereabouts of the "rented" young women, The Falastin said.

The publication named a man, who, it said, tried to obtain fifty girls at $10 a year "to be used in domestic service in the cities in the Arab village of Wadi Hamam."

Under the terms of the alleged contract, parents who "rent" their daughters in this manner agree to pay $100 damages if they demand the return of their children before the end of the five-year period.

Presbyterian C.G.I.T. Held Group Rally

A rally of the Presbyterian C.G.I.T. groups was held on Monday evening in the lecture room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. There was a good representation of the groups, girls from Hollywood, Knox, St. Paul's and Chinese groups being present.

Miss Frances Lightbody, girls' work secretary for the Victoria Presbyterial of the W.M.S., presided. There was a short programme, several of the groups contributing group songs, and Miss Rose Louie of the Chinese group sang a solo.

Greetings were brought by Miss Lillian Parfitt, president of the Victoria Leaders' Council. The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Mary Hill, national girls' work secretary, from Toronto, whose talk was most inspiring. Miss Hill left on Tuesday morning for Nanaimo, where a rally was being held that evening.

TEACH CHILD INDEPENDENCE AND RESPECT FOR AUTHORITY

The problem of discipline so seldom arises the first year that parents often are completely unprepared for dealing with it intelligently. During the first year they managed the child for his own good and they want to keep on doing so.

When the two-year-old takes the bt in his teeth and ignores the parental commands the mother is appalled and angered. She realizes how helpless she can be in the face of this rebellious mite and she is sure that this is the time to be hard and inflexible so that succeeding years may be easier.

TWO "RIGHT" ATTITUDES

Yet the child's whole future attitude toward authority may be soured by the parent's wrong conduct at this crucial period. The child has two things to learn, and they are completely antagonistic to each other.

He has to learn to be respectful of authority. His parents' management is his first taste of authority, but as he grows he bumps into the authority of other adults left in charge of him, of his teachers, his employer and others. All of these individuals have to have some control over him, and his submission to their control makes of him a good child, pupil, or employe, or his rebellion, a poor one.

HALF SUCCESS IS DISASTER

While he is learning to respect and heed authority he is also learning to control himself, to stand on his own feet, to make his own decisions, to build up self-reliance.

It should be obvious that a parent might be completely successful in teaching the child to be respectful of authority and yet because of his complete submission to others, rob him of the priceless ability to be self-reliant and to think for himself.

THERE AREN'T ANY RULES

It is because of the antagonism of these two goals that teaching obedience and discipline is such a vexing subject.

One cannot say to any parent "you must do this" and "you must do that" because such and such will be the result.

It is the parent herself who must keep her two goals in mind and offer the child sufficient exercise in the heeding of authority and sufficient exercise in using his own judgment to make him a well-rounded individual.

PARENT MUST KNOW

The parent must know when her authority is being unwisely dictatorial and stifling to the child's development. She must know when she is giving in so cravenly that he is not developing self-reliance, but merely an exaggerated sense of self-importance which will be crushed out of him when he comes in contact with other kinds of authority.

Obedience to authority and some kinds of discipline are vital needs, but it must be the right discipline and there can't be too much of it. The poor mother, with all the rest of her burdens, has to shoulder this one, too. She is the builder of a potentially successful citizen or an incorrigibly anti-social one.

Lady Lake Opens St. Martin's Sale

St. Martin's Young Business Women's Branch of the W.A. held a very successful bazaar yesterday afternoon, which was opened by Lady Lake, whose helpful words were much appreciated. Little Elizabeth (Booley) Harding presented Lady Lake with a bouquet of chrysanthemums on behalf of the branch.

The music during the tea hour was provided by the Warncliff trio and was greatly enjoyed by all.

The stalls looked very attractive, being decorated with colored crepe paper and Oregon grape leaves. The tea was served by Mrs. H. Rogers, convener, assisted by Mrs. Eade, Miss Prior, Miss Turkington and Miss T. Parker.

Mrs. Legget had charge of the home-cooking; Miss Wratten, Mrs. Prew and Miss Stocken, the novelty stall, and Miss Clegg, the candy and doll-guessing competition.

STUDENTS GIVE CHARMING PLAY

Esquimalt High School Dramatic Club's Entertainment Success

A large audience gathered in the Lampson Street School auditorium yesterday afternoon to enjoy the delightful entertainment provided by the Esquimalt High School Dramatic Club.

The proceedings opened with a violin solo, "Serenade," by Jim Young, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gladys Hewlings, followed by a pretty descriptive dance, "The Rose [illegible]," by [illegible].

A sprightly playlet, "Ten Minutes by the Clock," was the story of a youthful queen who, waking one morning to the trilling of the lark and the wild song of a passing Gipsy, longs to be as free as they. Determined to be no longer a slave to pomp, ceremony and convention, she shocks the court by demanding that her breakfast egg be boiled for ten minutes by the clock, instead of the traditional three minutes, thus creating a situation which gives rise to much quaint philosophy and unexpected results.

Margaret Lennox was very charming as the rebellious queen, Gerald Smith as the king, Carson Pecknold as Pompom, the king's butler, and Fred Pocock as the Gipsy were all efficient. John Shiner was sympathetic as the queen's page. John Burnett as the cook, Jack Pullen and Albert Farley as page boys and Doris Acreman as the royal housemaid all brought out the humor of their parts.

The costumes of mediaeval period were particularly becoming to the young actors. The play was produced by the principal, Miss N. Hewlings, the very effective scenery being the work of the staff.

The characters were all recalled and presented a chorus and tableau, "A Health Unto His Majesty" with much spirit.

The audience was seated at long tables, beautifully decorated with pink crepe and red roses, and dainty tea was served during the afternoon by the High School students.

The proceeds of the performance will be used for the school dramatic activities fund.

Held Social—The social evening held by Women of the Moose, Victoria Chapter No. 25 on Monday evening in the Moose Hall, 1121 Blanshard Street, proved a success. Senior Regent Elizabeth Jane presided. The sick matron, Mrs. Rose Isaacson, reported Mrs. Emma Fawcett improving and Mrs. Lillian Quaintane and Mrs. Mary Crabtree still very ill. Correspondence was left to the December business meeting. Senior Regent Jane gave the members the pass word for the ensuing six months. All Home Chapter members and members with no male affiliation in Lodge No. 1390 are requsted to send in the names of children under twelve years of age to Recorder Mrs. Helen Parker by December 10 for the annual Christmas tree treat. With Mrs. Evelyn Clark as convener, a committee was appointed for the dinner and card party to be held on Dcember 14, at 6.30 o'clock, in the hall. Tickets can be bought from any members. This committee will meet at the home of Mrs. Clark, 2534 Quadra Street, on Wednesday evening, December 5, to arrange final details. The meeting then adjourned until business night, December 10, members being asked to bring refreshments. Mrs. Evelyn Clark convened the whist drive which followed, nine tables being in progress. Winners of prizes were: Ladies' first, Mrs. Jean Lumley; second, Mrs. Pauline Huckin; consolation, Mrs. E. Clark; gentlemen's first, Mr. G. Hines; second, Mr. W. Fawcett; consolation, Miss D. Guelpa. A mock auction was held, Mrs. Helen Allan being auctioneer and Miss D. Guelpa helping, after which supper was served by Mesdames H. Allan, Margaret Robertson, Ruth Panting and Mary Pearce.

Pythian Sisters—Miss Vera Mesher, 1553 Esquimalt Road, has kindly loaned her home to Mrs. Maude Haines for a silver tea this evening. All members and their friends are cordially invited.

The LIFE STORY of PRINCESS MARINA

Written by GRACE ELLISON

Drama in Switzerland for the Family in Exile — the King of Greece Is Recalled by Enthusiastic Population, and Once More Is Banished — Princess Marina Wanted To Be an Actress

Instalment 8

The young King's death was a great grief to the young princesses. They recalled his last visit to them: for it is always a solace in sorrow to relate over and over again the last time one saw a loved one alive.

Princess Marina remembers waving her hand, as the car drove away from their home, in farewell to the handsome young King who stood lonely and desolate watching his family go, one by one, whilst he remained behind to guard his father's sceptre.

When a fine young man with, apparently, all his career before him, is cut off in the flower of his life, one accept's God's will and cannot ask "why." Nevertheless, one would be less than human if one could see the passing of a young life, wasted by so stupid an accident as a monkey bite, whilst trying to save a pet dog from the same fate, without a feeling of infinite sadness and very deep regret.

About this time, too, Queen Marie of Roumania came to visit the Greek royal family, accompanied by her son, then the Crown Prince Carol. It is useless to say Prince Carol was not in love with Princess Helen, but he certainly was at the time, and she with him.

That their marriage was shipwrecked so soon was not the fault of Princess Helen, schooled as she was in the responsibilities of her position. And none can ever accuse her of lack of dignity or courage, and never once has she done anything to forfeit the great respect and devotion the Roumanian people feel for her.

Princess Marina in her mother's arms.

Nevertheless, young girls, be they princesses or just ordinary citizens, love Roumania, and the engagement of her beloved Cousin Helen was a great delight to Princess Marina, as it was to her sisters and cousins.

REFUSING A CROWN

"It is always darkest before the dawn," says the old saw, and often this is true. The death of King Alexander left the Greek throne vacant, and the crown was then offered to Prince Paul, the youngest son of King Constantine. Without hesitation the Prince refused. How could he be expected to accept the crown of Greece when both his father and eldest brother, now King George II, were alive?

It is strange that when all these strange rumors about the Greek succession are set afloat, none seems to remember the loyalty of the Greek royal family towards one another. Greece has her king, and every member of the family recognizes him as their sovereign lord.

With the Greek throne still vacant, the party in power, confident of success, resolved to show its strength at the new elections. To their amazement they were utterly defeated, and a demand for King Constantine's return was formulated and an invitation sent to him to Switzerland begging him to return.

This invitation, however, King Constantine refused to accept before hearing the result of a plebiscite which he insisted must be taken. To the surprise of the world, 1,000,000 voted for the King's return, and 10,000 against it.

So King Constantine resolved to go back to the people who loved him and had recalled him by so overwhelming a majority. And strange it was that the Queen Mother, who at the wish of the people, had stayed in Greece after the funeral of her grandson, should have been asked to act as regent during the preparation for her son's return. The pendulum had indeed swung the other way!

"The Queen of the good old days," as Queen Olga was called, presided over the destinies of Greece till her son should come. In feverish haste, the country began its preparations. The Ascroff, the finest man-of-war, was sent to Venice to fetch the King who, after his brothers had returned one by one, Prince Nicholas and his family last, the King himself returned.

To describe the scenes of wild excitement which greeted King Constantine on his return would take many pages, and one wonders now how in his passage from the train to the cathedral, where a solemn Te Deum was sung, he was not torn to pieces by his exuberant people. In its delirium of rejoicing the nation lifted their beloved King to a high pinnacle of popularity for the second time, and one asks oneself how it could ever have ceased and how anything as base as political intrigues could ever again separate the King and his people.

EXILE AGAIN

Alas, the joy that ended the three and a half years of exile in Switzerland was only short lived; the next exile broke the King's heart!

In writing the story of Princess Marina's life, one cannot omit this important chapter which must, in spite of what anyone can say to the contrary, have left a deep and lasting impression on both her memory and her character.

However much training for a royal position may force one to control one's emotions, a person of Princess Marina's artistic temperament and with her histrionic talent must feel a situation very deeply. And sorrow either sweetens a nature by giving it sympathy and understanding, or it crushes the soul out of existence, leaving the character warped and embittered.

Princess Marina told me recently she adored the theatre and would have loved, had it been possible, for her to act. The very few times one has seen her on a private stage, her performance, especially in the difficult role of "Esther" in French, has been more than an amateur performance, and she could have been a great credit to our stage as well as the French.

And in this Greek tragedy set in the beautiful scenery of Switzerland, Princess Marina, though she did not play the title role, yet played a part. And for a drama to be perfect each one, however small his part, must play it well . . . this our Princess certainly did.

One can well imagine, loving Greece as she did, and still does, with what real joy Princess Marina returned to her native land. Festivities were given everywhere for the royal family, and although the princesses were young, they could not be denied the privilege of meeting their many friends again after three and a half years of exile.

Prince Nicholas had been deputed to announce the arrival of his brother, King Constantine, to the people, who were impatient to receive their sovereign. There was only one cry: "Ercheti"—he is coming, he is coming! The Prince was able, much to the delight of his daughters, to return to Athens via Corfu, Patras and Corinth, the most exquisite way of returning to the capital.

Few countries can boast of more lovely scenery than meets the eye at Corfu. Then the late King's villa, "Mon Repos," in which Prince Andrew used to live, is surrounded by masses of flowers, terraces leading right down to the blue sea, thick with olives, pines, cypresses, oranges and lemons, and a long blue horizon that never ends. All this is such a contrast to the dry grey soil of Greece; a real oasis.

Princess Marina used to love the perfume of the oranges bathing in the sun, and what was still better, to eat them hot from the tree.

WELCOME AT CORFU

As soon as they landed at Corfu, the people crowded round them in welcome, as they always did, and this time a reception was held at the old palace where there is a Lawrence portrait of King George IV and other sovereigns of the Georgian reign, and a big room bearing the initials of the Order of St. M.S.G., and also the emblem of the Ionian Isles. Princess Marina particularly noticed this picture of which the inhabitants were very proud, although it is only a copy of a celebrated masterpiece. They story of the Georges has always had a great fascination for Princess Marina, and she tells me she is now carefully re-reading all the books of that period from Thackeray to the more recent biographers of the "wicked uncles of Queen Victoria" as they are now known to posterity—a title that is not without a certain amount of affection, the stories we must own, particularly of George IV, make very interesting reading.

Quite recently Princess Marina was standing before one of the pictures of her father's exhibition in Paris—the subject was Corfu. "Isn't that a good picture of Corfu?" she exclaimed, jokingly. "Hasn't he just caught the real blue of the sea and those lovely cypress trees." I am surprised that Princess Marina has not painted landscapes as well as portraits.

The route from Patras to Corinth is one of real beauty and, fortunately, the boats are very slow. The view over the gulf, with the mountains on either side in the distance, is a subject which has attracted many artists—Princess Marina found again these lovely lights bathing in the hills against the blue horizon, in the scenery round Balmoral. But can Scotland really produce the exquisite [illegible] of Greece? [illegible] a Greek destroyer was sent to fetch the Prince and his family back more quickly to Pireas, and even to-day Princess Marina speaks with delight of that trip in the destroyer and insisted on going all over it, even to see the engines. Strange that, from her childhood, our Princess should have had such a great delight in anything connected with the navy.

"TOO OVERWHELMING TO LAST"

The demonstration of affection which greeted the King and all his family everywhere he went are sad indeed when one thinks of the bitter contrast of what was coming, and how soon the whole family was again to go into exile—no wonder Queen Sophie, with her inborn common sense, felt that this exuberance was too overwhelming to last.

The young princesses, after the festivities of Christmas, had to return to lessons. Presents were showered on them from all sides; presents from the rich and presents from the peasants; embroideries made by their own hands, and jars of Hymettus honey brought in those lovely bright blue pots from the country people themselves—if only the Greek politicians (and this applies to other countries as well) could have some of the fine instincts of love and country, fair play and generosity one finds in the humble peasants, what a different world we would have to-day!

On the first day of January, as on the twenty-fifth of March, Independence Day, two great festivities, the beginning of the year and the day which celebrated the beginning of the era of national independence, the royal family went in full dress to the cathedral, where a solemn Te Deum was sung. The princesses were always smartly dressed for these occasions and usually in white, with large white hats. That year, the music of the Orthodox Church, at all times beautiful, as it of necessity must be with no organ to accompany the voices, was more than usually beautiful.

The festivities of the New Year once over, Prince and Princess Nicholas decided that their daughters must resume their lessons which had been so continually interrupted. Princess Marina's school curriculum, in particular, had to be very carefully studied, as, to her father's sorrow, she knew very little Greek.

"It is impossible," he said, "for a Greek princess to speak, and above all, write slipshod Greek."

And so special lessons and special studies with "Kyria Anna" had to be arranged. Princess Marina, like many children who later astonish the world with their great deeds, was not a good pupil according to the world's accepted term of a "good pupil." She was obstinate, which is a sign of personality, and she would not concentrate when she was not interested.

Princess Marina loved the stories of Greek mythology. But she intensely disliked Greek syntax and Greek grammar, and no wonder! Once she even threw her Greek grammar through the window and then wept tears of repentance, not because she was sorry for this deed, but because the book had hurt a favorite dog. In her school days, as now, Princess Marina had a heart of gold. She could never be driven and would always give way when you appealed to her better feelings. She and her sisters used to quarrel very often, as sisters always do, but they made it up very quickly and were better friends than ever. Princess Marina has this great merit, her anger is soon over and she never sulks.

For French, German and English, Princess Marina now had professors from Athens. She was not very good at German. The German method of taking each word and carefully studying its pedigree may be the best method of education and produce the best results afterwards, but the French method, which appeals to the imagination, is far more attractive.

For this reason Princess Marina loved Prof. Roussel's lessons. He had written several books on the Greek theatre and used to read Corneille to his pupils and, to their intense delight and amazement, he often wept as he read the lovely verses of Racine. Nevertheless, much as these readings amused her at the time, she has never forgotten the beautiful lines of Andromaque or Esther, which called forth so many tears from her professor.

THE PRINCESS MIXED LANGUAGES

One cannot help wondering whether a knowledge of so many languages is, after all, a good thing. At that period little Princess Marina used to get very mixed with her English. Then, to save herself from disaster, she would choose a long word and trust to luck whether it fitted the sentence and the meaning or not. She would tell you the doctor "described" for you: the lawyer's "brief" she called unconsciously but clearly "a grief," and she would call anyone's "capacity" for endurance "his consistency," and when that somebody happens to be a horse, the result is very funny.

Princess Olga, who was a very much better pupil and took her lessons very seriously, saw in her sister's difficulty nothing at which one should laugh, and immediately set out to help her, and so did her mother and father. To-day, when her English letters are so well expressed she can be grateful for the teasing she had when a schoolgirl. As a reward, therefore, for Greek grammar learnt in spite of difficulty, comes a culture and knowledge of art which no one can take from her, and to-day Britain's new Princess in her new country will have [illegible] much appreciated.

When their daily lessons were over, the princesses rode with their cousins in the neighborhood. Their English groom was proud of them all, but what a responsibility to have to accompany six princesses, the one more daring than the other, and each trying to outdo the other in horsemanship! And the groom had had instructions to be very careful and not to let them lose their nerve — small wonder that the poor man exclaimed —"They were fearless, it was I who was afraid!" The princesses, too, used to bathe frequently at Phalleron, where they again tried all kinds of daring swimming feats. In Jugoslavia, with Queen Marie, a very fine sportswoman, Princess Marina was able to ride and swim.

THE WEDDING TO CAROL

At this time, end of the winter of 1921, Princess Helen, King Constantine's eldest and lovely daughter, was married to Prince Carol of Roumania at the Cathedral of Athens. An Orthodox wedding without bridesmaids but with the picturesque ceremony of crowns and many candles is always pleasing to behold, particularly for a royal wedding, when all the highest clergy of the land are called out to bless the marriage.

Princess Marina had been busy for weeks embroidering cushions and clothes for her cousin, the bride, and as Princess Helen was the first of the princesses to marry there was naturally intense excitement amongst the princesses, her young cousins. As she drove away, after the ceremony, all the princesses divided the bouquet, taking a piece of orange blossom, home grown, for good luck. Everything was going so happily in the Greek royal family when, alas, once more politics came to end their delight at being together again, wrecked their homes, drove them once more into exile, and King Constantine to his death bed.

It is not possible in a short chapter to dwell on the circumstances which led to the Greek debacle. Nevertheless, King Constantine was confronted with the terrible problem of knowing which course to pursue; either he must disavow the Asia Minor campaign, to which he had been so bitterly opposed, and in which he saw nothing but disaster; or he had to leave his co-religionists to the mercy of the Turks. Strange it is that Mustapha Kemal's policy towards the Greeks, and which he has now been able to carry out, was one of peace; whilst King Constantine's policy, if only he had had his way, was also one of peace.

"If only the powers could leave us alone," Mustapha Kemal said to me, " we can live at peace with Greece."

King Constantine said the same. Yet he was faced with the terrible legacy of this hopeless Asia Minor campaign left by his predecessor, Mr. Venizelos, and he had to make the best of it.

DISASTER FOR ROYAL FAMILY

King Constantine, as head of the Hellenic forces, accompanied by Prince Nicholas, left for Asia Minor. Queen Sophie took charge of the hospital service with nurses who had been organized by a British trained nurse. The Grand Duchess (Princess Nicholas) worked in the hospitals and the princesses were installed at Tator. They turned to the theatre for distraction and, in the lovely park of Tator, by a beautiful moonlight, performed scenes from "The Merchant of Venice." Princess Marina made a very effective Lancelot Gobot, though she has always preferred to play women's parts. The King returned to Tator after three and a half months in Asia Minor very much shaken in health. Asia Minor, in those days, was not what it is to-day, and the best of its inns is little better than a primitive stable.

Turkish soldiers had never been accustomed to have the best of comfort. A diet of bread and rice and coffee was all that was necessary; the severity of the climate, lack of sanitation, insects, all meant nothing to them, but for the Europeans it was fatal. In spite of the strict diet enforced by his doctors, King Constantine's health was shattered, he had received his death blow.

To help the war charities, Prince Nicholas organized in his own theatre a series of Greek tableaux in which Princess Marina and her sisters and cousins took part. She was, and always has been, every time it is repeated, very successful as a player. To the accompaniment of Gluck's beautiful music, "Orpheus," a procession of maidens passed bearing baskets of fruit and flowers. Princess Marina was one of them. The Prince was himself responsible for the whole of the stage management of the pageant. It was a great success. The King and Queen were present, and the little Princess Marina was much admired. Strange it is that the Greek royal family should be so fond of the theatre, and that in their sad exile, the theatre has always been such a consolation to them.

In June, 1922, the Grand Duchess (Princess Nicholas) had to go to Paris on business with her two eldest daughters, while Princess Marina went to England with Miss Fox. After staying in a Kensington hotel, Miss Fox decided to take a house in Waringham, where she and the Princess lived a simple, quiet, English country life.

REVOLUTION AND DEATH

Meanwhile the events in Greece came to their inevitable end. Towards the end of September, 1922, the crash came. The Greek troops in the wild mountains of Anatolia were too fatigued to continue, and the anti-royalist propaganda of demoralization brought on [illegible] [illegible]ficers organized revolution without letting the soldiers know what their real intentions were. They arrived first on the south coast, then went to Athens, using airplanes to drop pamphlets demanding the abdication of King Constantine and the accession of King George II. In the circumstances, there was nothing to do but accept; in two days, the King left again from Oropos in much the same way as he had left the first time. He was also accompanied by Prince Nicholas, and they all arrived safely at Palermo, tired, ill, yet out of danger.

King Constantine was now broken in health and, above all, broken in spirit. He passed away in Naples, very soon after his arrival in Italy, and, still denied the right of burial in his own land, his coffin is in the crypt of the Russian Church at Florence and beside him also, united, are his mother, Queen Olga, and his wife, Queen Sophie.

Meanwhile, the Grand Duchess (Princess Nicholas) and her daughters spent the most tragic weeks of waiting. The princess had a severe attack of diphtheria and the hotel where she was staying refused to keep her. They had great difficulty in finding a hospital for her, for Paris is particularly badly organized in the way of accommodation for patients suffering from contagious diseases.

PRINCE NICHOLAS SAFE

Hardly had she recovered, than the news that Prince Nicholas had been shot reached her and, fortunately, at the same time a telegram announcing his safe arrival in Palermo. That he was alive was something. His brother, Prince Andrew, too, only got away by the skin of his teeth and was brought back by a British man-o'-war.

As soon as she was able, Princess Nicholas joined her husband at Palermo. Then began their days of wandering again. They stayed for a short while in Merano, where the young princesses went for drives round the lovely country; Prince Nicholas went to Venice and afterwards joined his family at San Remo. Their next move was England, and it was there that Princess Olga met Prince Paul of Jugoslavia, who at once fell in love with her.

Although she loved him, Princess Olga would have waited a little, they had all been through such terrible suffering; the marriage, however, was fixed for the autumn of 1923 in Belgrade, and to Belgrade all the family went to celebrate this marriage which has been so happy in every way.

HAPPINESS IN JUGOSLAVIA

From the very first, Prince and Princess Nicholas liked their son-in-law, and the princesses found him a brother in the truest sense of the word. His home has been their home, and it was in his delightful house in Bohin, on the border of the beautiful lake which bears that name, that Princess Marina, like her sister, Princess Elizabeth, met her fiancee.

Prince Paul is a highly cultured young man, who was educated at Oxford and whose young son, Prince Alexander, is still in England at a preparatory school. Prince Paul always came to England with delight. He is a widely read young man, handsome, polished, kind, courteous and generous. Few people have his knowledge of pictures and his own collection is of the greatest value. In his many trips abroad in search of pictures and objects of art, he was accompanied by Princess Olga and one, if not both, her sisters.

After the terrible years of 1922-23, the worst of the storm was over. They had weathered it with courage and dignity, but it had not been easy. Public opinion was against them for a crime they had not committed. Prince Nicholas said he felt like a prisoner who had served a term in prison; the Grand Duchess never complained, and bore her lot, particularly ill health, with real courage and heroism, and a consideration for others which would be hard to equal.

In the autumn of 1923, Princess Marina went to school. Again the interrupted lessons were resumed.

DOROTHY PAGE FAIREST STAR

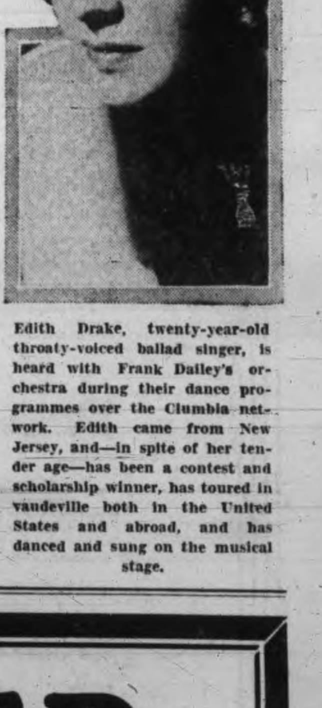
Titian-haired Singer on Jan Gaber's Supper Club Wins Beauty Award

Dorothy Page, titian-haired contralto on Jane Garber's Supper Club, has been selected "the most beautiful girl in radio" in a United States-wide poll of newspaper and magazine radio editors conducted by Radio Stars, monthly radio magazine.

A silver loving cup, symbolic of the honor, will be presented to her by Curtis Mitchell, editor of Radio Stars, during the weekly Supper Club broadcast Monday, December 3, at 5 p.m., P.S.T., over an NBC-KPO network.

For the slender twenty-four-year-old songstress, who came to the NBC networks only last spring after more than two years as soloist with a nationally known dance orchestra, the title means further recognition of the charm that a few years ago brought her fame as "the magazine cover girl."

WITH CBS BAND



Edith Drake, twenty-year-old throaty-voiced ballad singer, is heard with Frank Dailey's orchestra during their dance programmes over the Clumbia network. Edith came from New Jersey, and—in spite of her tender age—has been a contest and scholarship winner, has toured in vaudeville both in the United States and abroad, and has danced and sung on the musical stage.

ELGAR CHOIR REPEATS SUCCESS

North Saanich Singers Come to Town to Win Praise in Concert

The Elgar Choir of North Saanich, under J. W. Buckler, came into town yesterday evening and in the City Temple Auditorium gave a concert that opened the eyes of the Victoria audience of 200 that responded with enthusiastic ovations.

The choir was fresh from the triumph of its inaugural concert of the season when Stacey Hall, Sidney, was packed to the doors to greet it.

The features of the programme were the choir's rendering of Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," Fanning's delicately mystical "Moonlight" and Pinsuit's "The Sea Hath Its Pearls."

Josephine Charlebois, Rose Bowl winner at the last Victoria Musical Festival, as soloist of the evening, sang Rachmaninoff's "Oh, Could I but Express in Song," and Mozart's "Voi Che Sapete," in her prize-winning manner.

Enid Cole, the clever monologuist, gave a series of selections that swept the audience with her histrionic skill. Presenting the scene of the story and interpreting the roles of five or six characters, in dialect and normal speech, she showed the capabilities in her presentation of Fannie Hurst's "Humoresque."

Frank Tupman, Mr. Buckler, Jack Townsend and James Oakman and the members of the Imperial Quartette added distinction to the programme by their solo and choral contributions.

Firms at Glasgow, Scotland, are using horses whose color "represents" the business.

EVEN THOUGH LIBBY'S PINEAPPLE JUICE IS INEXPENSIVE YOU DON'T NEED TO BE AS PIGGISH AS YOU LOOK!
Thurber

AND — LOOK AT HIS PHYSIQUE!

It certainly looks as though Peter's going to have to increase the wife's allowance. One thing is certain, he's not going to cut down on his daily ration of Pineapple Juice, because Libby's Pineapple Juice is not only richer in Esters, the flavour carriers of the Pineapple, but it contains also plenty of precious vitamins, so essential in building energy. Yes, he eats Libby's Centre Slices of luscious sun-ripened Australian Pineapple as well. And boy, look at that noble physique!

LIBBY'S SLICED PINEAPPLE

It's just the centre slices of delicious Australian Pineapple, and the centre slices, of course, are the very choicest part of the fruit. They are flawless in form—loveliest in colour—more tender and most delicious in flavour, because they are richer in Esters, the flavour carriers, concentrated in the juice cells most completely developed in the fruit when sun-ripened on the plant. They bring you the glorious, ripe pineapple tang in its fullest perfection.

LIBBY'S UNSWEETENED PINEAPPLE JUICE

Libby's Unsweetened Pineapple Juice comes to you just as it is crushed from the fully sun-ripened fruit. No sugar is added. There is just the natural tang of the fruit as it is picked on the sunny plantations. Keep a supply in the refrigerator, chilled to the proper temperature, for use as a morning health drink or as an aperitif before dinner.

Your grocer has Libby's Pineapple products or can get them for you.

BOYS save the following Libby labels—Catchup, Tomato Juice, Tomatoes, Pork and Beans, Sauer Kraut. With these labels you can get camping equipment—tents, axes, knives, flashlights, hiking boots, etc. BOY SCOUTS can get official equipment. This is how you get started. FISH MATTERS BEFORE BOARD

Special to The Times

Duncan, Nov. 29.—The quarterly meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce was held in the Black Cat Restaurant, Tuesday night, with President R. Sanderson in the chair.

For the fish and game committee, Mr. Suddaby reported that following up the progress report received from the secretary of the Associated Boards of Trade for Vancouver Island, in which a letter from W. A. Found, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, stated that the handling, rearing, marking and distribution of Atlantic salmon and brown trout, hatched at Cowichan Lake, were under the supervision and direction of the staff of the biological station at Nanaimo. This reply was in response to a request that the control of sporting fish culture be under the direction of the Biological Board, as members of this chamber felt such was not the case and the mortality among the small fry was too large. The committee advised it had taken the matter up with the director of the biological station. The chamber also decided to co-operate with the Affiliated Fish and Game Protective Association of Vancouver Island in asking that the closed area for net fishing be extended to prohibit netting within three miles of the east coast of Vancouver Island, it being reported that seine netters cleaned up every kind of fish, leaving nothing for the commercial or sporting fish trollers. The co-operation of the Victoria chamber will also be sought.

A resolution was passed endorsing the action of Hon. George S. Pearson in endeavoring to conserve the herring supply and hope was expressed that he take similar action to assist in conserving the salmon fisheries.

Efforts will be made to have a series of the lectures in the mining schools held in Duncan.

The chairman of the mining committee reported that some mining activity had now started on Mount Sicker.

Complaint was made that fox farmers were being handicapped owing to the excessive license charged fur buyers from outside the province. The fox farmers will be invited to attend the next chamber meeting to give full particulars of their grievance.

Letters were presented from the drought-stricken area in Saskatchewan, to which a carload of fruit and vegetables had been sent, thanking the chamber and the people of Cowichan for their assistance.

A letter was received from Royal Oak inquiring about the shipment of fruits and vegetables to Saskatchewan.

A resolution was adopted commending the Price Spread and Mass Buying Royal Commission for their work thus far and urging its continuance. Copies of the resolution will be sent to the chairman of the commission, Premier Bennett, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Hon. H. H. Stevens.

ELKS PUT ON MINSTREL SHOW

Duncan, Nov. 29. — The Capitol Theatre was filled Tuesday evening for the minstrel show given under the auspices of the Elks for their Christmas cheer fund. They were assisted by the Cowichan Male Choir, with R. E. Macbean as musical director. In the circle were A. J. Johnson, J. B. Crysdale, A. G. Colk, W. S. Smith, W. Giles, G. B. Gamble, G. H. Coller, F. H. Parfitt, W. H. Hopkins, A. M. Clark, H. V. Bigwood, N. S. Southcott and John Dick. The part of "Bones" was taken by G. Weeks. C. W. O'Neill was interlocutor and Eli Plaskett "Tambo." The first half of the programme consisted of choruses and vocal solos by John Dick, L. Langlois, A. Gard, Eli Plaskett, A. E. Robinson, W. M. Gibson and F. H. Parfitt; minstrel trio by J. Mottoshaw, E. Smythe and F. Coller, and minstrel quartette by Messrs. Crysdale, Robinson, Parfitt and Gard. The second half of the programme was given over to vaudeville, with musical monologues by the Grainger family, a tap dance by Muriel Jarvis and Peter Swan, Major Warner in conjuring tricks, a tango dance by Miss J. Jackson and H. Wilson, and the Studio Club girls as the "Tappiokas," trained by Miss P. Carr Hilton, performed a tap dance, with vocal solo by Miss Huby. The Studio Girls were: Noel Johnson, Jean Buckham, Dorothy Bossoms, Helen Huby, Teresa Thorburn, Millie Sowerby and Heather Wren. The orchestra was composed of Bernie Ryall, piano; W. Allister, violin; N. Westwood, 'cello; P. Colliard, saxophone; A. Colliard, trumpet and F. Tait, drums.

Demonstration At Victoria W.I. Sale

An attractive display of baskets and trays made by Mrs. Sexton and her basketry class will be a feature at the sale of novelties, home-cooking and candy, which has been arranged by the ways and means committee of Victoria Women's Institute, and will be held in their new rooms at 635 Fort Street to-morrow afternoon and evening. Mrs. Sexton has kindly donated a tray, which will be disposed of during the afternoon.

Another feature will be an interesting demonstration given by Mrs. White and her weaving class, starting with the fleece and ending with the completed woven article, the loom to be used in the demonstration was made in Victoria.

Patrons wishing to play bridge will find tables in readiness for them during afternoon and evening. Afternoon tea will be served, and refreshments in the evening. Mrs. Lormier and Mrs. Blair Reid will act as joint conveners, assisted by an able committee.

FOR years doctors have advised mothers to keep children regular with Quaker Oats. Now experts have discovered why Quaker Oats does this. They have found that most food lacks a certain regulatory vitamin Quaker Oats gives.

Children deprived of this vitamin lose appetite, become irritable—constipated. But when Quaker Oats containing this regulatory vitamin is added to their diet, they eat heartily and constipation and irritability disappear.

This vitamin is commonly called the "yeast vitamin" —and it has been found that a dish of Quaker Oats contains more of this element than 3 cakes of fresh yeast. And remember, Quaker Oats are also irradiated with Sunshine Vitamin "D".

RUBY KEELER NEVER WRITES

Mrs. Al Jolson Always Telephones Or Wires Husband; Appear Together Soon

(Editor's Note.—Ruby Keeler writes the Hollywood column to-day, as the eighth in the list of twelve film favorites who are doing the job for Dan Thomas, The Times regular correspondent).

By RUBY KEELER

Poor Dan Thomas! Poor readers! Poor me! Last year, when Dan had his vacation, he and his charming wife were in Honolulu, where Al—that Al Jolson, my hubby—an I happened to be going at the same time. We had fine times together.

Now Dan is on his vacation again, not to Honolulu this time, and I was foolish enough to promise to write one column for him. It sounded easy. But it isn't. I'm not used to writing, anyhow.

I don't think I have ever written a letter to Al in my life. We always telephone or telegraph. It's so much easier. If I were a columnist, I'd just wire my copy in and let somebody else write it. Like this:

Dear Dan Thomas stop pretty soft for you stop leaving Al and me here to work for you while you have fun stop suppose we ruin your column or something stop what will you do then question mark.

What I should be doing is studying lines for our new picture comma Als and mine stop its Warner Bros quote casino de Paree unquote and is the first one we have ever made together stop wont that be exciting stop I play the role of Als dancing partner who never gets a second look from him stop you know Al and I have never even visited each others sets more than once or twice during each picture stop I wonder how it will seem to make love in the last reel to my own husband stop we arent rehearsing that sequence until the picture stars stop.

What does one do with a column that won't fill up? Maybe I should tell you about Dick Powell's new house. Al and I went over to see it a day or two after Dick got back from his personal appearance.

It's a sweet house. And it doesn't look exactly like bachelor quarters to me. I wonder! Everybody wonders.

The house is all on one floor except one little room and there's a radio hidden in the wall of every room. Dick started this house while he and I were working together in "Flirtation Walk."

He was so busy talking roof lines and closet space that we hardly ever saw him except for the scenes he made. Now the house is nearly done and we understand that Dick may give a big party when he moves in soon. Better hurry back, Dan, and get in on that one.

IS SHE GOOD AT GOLF!

Let's see. Oh, yes. I just tested out my golf and it's not bad. The studio wanted a trailer for "Flirtation Walk" and in it I had to drive a golf ball toward the camera and through a space about four feet wide.

I was afraid to do it, but everybody got back of reflectors and things, except the cameraman, and I drove. The ball went right through the open space and didn't hit anybody or anything. I'd tell Al about that, but I have a rule. I never brag about my golf to Al—much.

NEXT: Al Jolson.

Feminine Judge Would See More Women On the Bench

By MARIAN YOUNG

Modern problems in the Women's Court to-day would be greatly alleviated by more women lawyers, investigators and magistrates who have social welfare backgrounds, in the opinion of newly appointed Judge Anna Moscowitz Kross, only woman magistrate in Manhattan.

"After all," she said, "most of these cases should not be tried in a court of law. These young girls need expert examinations by psychiatrists and psychologists. The lives of our erring young women cannot be repaired by confinement to the workhouse or a renewal of freedom which will take them back to former living conditions.

"However, since our laws make practically no provision for such mental treatments, the next best thing is to have them appear before women judges who can sprinkle their judicial judgments with advice and mercy."

SEEKS CAUSE BEHIND OFFENSE

The brilliant woman who wears her robe with an air of dignity proved that she puts her theories into practice when, sitting on the bench of the Women's Court in New York, she recommended that certain girls be sent to hospitals for physical treatment before she sentenced them. And she proved it again when she spoke—as a mother would speak—to a seventeen-year-old girl had been associating with "bad companions."

Judge Kross does not use a judicial, censoring eye on those who are summoned before her. She conducts her inquiry with the personal, quiet confiding tone of voice as though she were giving advice to her neighbor. Those who come before her feel this sympathetic personality and invariably respond in telling her the truth, sincerely and honestly putting their cases before her and asking for the help that they intuitively are assured will be forthcoming.

The girl who graduated from New York University's Law School in 1910 (Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was in the same class) has gone far and accomplished much. Her experience in law always has dealt with the "under dog" and in crusading campaigns to give women an equal justice with men.

She is essentially sympathetic. She admits it and says she can't help it. But fair play is the big thing in her career. Though she firmly believes that women do not always get an "even break," Judge Kross promises that men and women appearing before her will receive equal treatment.

BELIEVES CAREER WOMEN MORE INTERESTING

Her kindly eyes flashed as she said that women have come to stay both in politics and in the law courts, but: "Since it is human to err, they will make no more mistakes and achieve nothing more outstanding than will men."

Magistrate Kross combines a successful home life and an obviously successful career. She thinks that women with jobs are more interesting to their friends, their husbands and certainly to themselves.

"It is easy to keep busy during the few years while the children are small. But when they go off to school that is another matter. And Mother finds herself becoming bored and wondering what she is going to do next. A career eliminates all that. It is something which is just as interesting when you are mature as it was when you were young."

Judge Kross has two small daughters, aged five and six, and her husband, Dr. Isadore Kross, is a surgeon on the staff of the Mount Sinai Hospital.

ROYAL OAK

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cariss entertained Mr. and Mrs. O. Lindgren, Miss B. Fowler and Miss B. E. Cuthbertson at tea on Sunday in honor of Mr. Lindgren's seventy-seventh birthday.

Rev. John Antle, superintendent of the Columbia Coast Missions, was a week-end guest of Rev. and Mrs. Comley, Royal Oak.

Mrs. M. E. McRae, Calgary, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jewell, Old West Road.

NANAIMO

Nanaimo, Nov. 29.—Members and adherents of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church celebrated their sixty-eighth anniversary in the church hall Monday night, when upwards of 150 persons sat down to supper provided by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The new pastor, Rev. W. Bell, paid tribute to the work of Dave Arnett, organist and choirmaster, and to the choir, in reviewing the activities carried on by the church. A programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered. Accompanists were Mrs. F. J. Newman and Dave Arnett.

PUDDING SEASON OPENS IN ENGLAND

Hon. J. H. Thomas Inaugurates It By Telling Some Funny Stories

London, Nov. 29.—J. H. Thomas, the Secretary of State for the Dominions, was in really good form when he was the principal guest at the ceremonial opening of the pudding season at the famous Cheshire Cheese in Fleet Street.

Talking about his strange experiences, he said that he had a queer one when he was made a Doctor of Law at St. Andrew's.

"God knows what it all means," he said, "but I am also a Doctor of Oxford, Cambridge and Wales; in fact if you want a good doctor you couldn't improve on me.

"But the astonishing feature about St. Andrew's is this: Stanley Baldwin is the chancellor there, and if anyone had told me that I would go on my knees to Stanley, he and I would have quarrelled.

"Now Stanley can say to me, 'Jim, you were on your knees to me last week'."

He related a story of the day in 1924 when he received the seals of office on becoming Dominions Secretary.

"After lunching with the King," he said, "I found myself free about 2.30 p.m., wearing my morning clothes and feeling the goods, with the prospect of £5,000 a year and having a good lunch at no cost.

"I was innocent in those days and I should have known that 2.30 o'clock was a ridiculous time to go to any government department.

"However I went there, and when I arrived, one of the attendants stopped me and said, 'Where are you going?'

"I said, 'To the Dominions office.'

"He said, 'What do you want?' and I answered that I was the new Dominions Secretary.

"He just turned to another fellow and said, 'Another shell-shock case'."

LUXTON

An interesting basketball game was played in Luxton Hall on Saturday between Unity Girls and the Cardinals, the former girls had an easy win, 44 to 29. The teams and individual scores were: Unity — Buddy Elston (27), Verna Edwards (13), E. Johnstone (4), L. Laird and C. Yeamans. Cardinals—R. Weeks (6), V. Hannan (2), V. Crosby (3), D. Elston (18), and N. Pelland. Wilbur Rhode refereed. Dancing followed the games, to music by Stan Cross's orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Smith and children, Calgary, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Baxter.

A card party was held in Luxton Hall on Monday, five tables of bridge and 500 being in play. Prizes for highest score in bridge went to Mrs. Macdonald, with consolation to Mrs. Heath; five hundred highest score, Mrs. Duncan; consolation, Mr. Musselwaite. The next card party will be held on December 10, and the proceeds will be for the Christmas hamper fund.

Rev. Mr. Keevil has left for New Westminster to take up his new post.

Two basketball games and a dance will be held in Luxton Hall on December 1.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—What are the advantages of being a bachelor? What are the disadvantages of being one? J. B.

Answer: The principal advantage of being a bachelor is that you are free. You can come and go as you please. You do not have to punch the home time clock. You do not have to rack your brain thinking up alibis when you stay downtown to play poker with the boys. If you want to stay at home of an evening and read, well and good. If you want to step out, also well and good. You are your own master.

You can spend your money on yourself. You can blow it in for a new car or glad raiment or put it in the savings bank. You do not have to see the dollars you have toiled for so hard go for groceries and coal and doctors' bills and baby caps and millinery and French importations.

You do not have to feel that as long as you live you are sold into slavery to your family and that no matter how hard you work you will never be able to get ahead any. For just about the time you get a little saved up Junior will have to have his adenoids out and Mary will have to have her teeth straightened and Tommy will have to go off to college, and Maud will feel that she can't hold up her head unless she has a car of her own.

Kipling says "he travels the fastest who travels alone." The bachelor can give up a poor job on the chance of getting a better one. The married man can take no such risk. The single man has many doors of opportunity opened to him that are shut to the married man. He can go to many places to which he could not take a family. The single man, especially the single professional man, is invited to many houses, where he makes valuable social contacts and to which the married man is never asked.

The bachelor does not have to submit to the dominion of any woman. He does not have to listen to curtain lectures in the silence of the night. He does not have to stand for criticism. He does not have to give an account of his every movement. He does not have to put up with his wife's people or her friends. When he gets tired of a woman or she gets on his nerves he can put on his hat and leave without any messy divorce proceedings.

These are some of the advantages that the bachelor enjoys. Some of the drawbacks are that, while he is free, even freedom has a price tag on it that often makes it cost more than it is worth.

It is true that he can go and come as he pleases without meeting any reproaches when he returns, but that is because nobody cares whether he ever gets back or not. He doesn't have to punch the home time clock, for there isn't any home, just a room in a boarding house or hotel or club. Nobody watching out for him. No light in the window for him. No loving hands to draw him across the threshold. No woman's face smiling at him and worshiping him and thinking he is the greatest man in the world.

True, he can spend his money on himself, but after he has bought himself a few garments and a car, what else is there for him to buy? Most of the money men spend is spent on women and there is more percentage in spending it on a wife and children than there is in spending it on gold-diggers. A family costs a lot, but it is the best old-age insurance in money and happiness that any man can take out. Maybe the bachelor does have more opportunities to make money than the married man, but it is a matter of record that few men ever save any money until after they are married. It is only after they have a wife and children to look out for that they settle down and begin to provide for the future.

In every human heart the dominant desire is for love and companionship and for somebody to belong to you. The married man has these and the bachelor lacks them, and that is what makes marriage a paying proposition. DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a professional man well past my youth. I have literally battled my way through poverty and adversity to a leading position in my profession. I am desperately in love with a beautiful and brilliant woman, but I have a rival who is younger and better looking than I am. He is what may be called a ladies' man, a fine dancer and a favorite with women and he is also a man of good mental ability and draws a larger salary than I can command. The lady is undecided in her choice between us. When we are together she is very gracious and expresses her admiration for my mental ability and my victories over difficulties, but in the presence of the other man she seems to favor him. Would you advise me in my efforts to win her to follow the same tactics I have in other matters where I have won out by keeping everlastingly at it? Does this method win hearts? X.

Answer: Certainly it does. There is no better technique for courtship than simply to camp on a woman's trail and never give up until she has married some other man. Nine times out of ten it is successful, because faithfulness is one virtue that women esteem in men more than any other, and unfaithfulness is the fault they fear most in husbands. Hence they argue that the faithful lover will make a faithful husband and is a good martimonial bet.

Then the man who is always hanging about makes himself necessary to a woman. She gets to depend on him for companionship and for the affection and admiration which are the wine of life to her. This may not seem to her at first like the romantic love of which she has dreamed, but by degrees it wears down her sales resistance and then some day she discovers that the persistent lover whom no discouragement has daunted is the one man in the world she wants to marry.

"Faint heart ne'er won fair lady." Women are proverbially given to changing their minds and the man who wants a girl is foolish to let any rival, however good looking, make him drop out of the race.

In your case, remember for your comfort that women do not put the stress on beauty that men do, and that they are far more intrigued by the way a man does things than by the way he looks.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—How can a girl tell if she is boy crazy? E. M. W.

Answer: Same way she could tell if she had the measles. It breaks out all over her and is an affliction she cannot hide. If you think about boys all day and dream about them by night; if every little pimply adolescent youth seems like a hero and a gift from God to you; if there is no pleasure in doing anything if boys are not along; if every landscape is a blight unless there is a boy in it; if the whole world revolves around a boy, then you are boy crazy. And may Heaven preserve you while the mental aberration lasts!

Uncle Wiggily Stays Home

By HOWARD R. GARIS

It was Thanksgiving Day in Woodland, where Uncle Wiggily lived. There had been a grand feast in the hollow stump bungalow and all the bunny children had eaten as much as was good for them.

All the other animal people in Woodland had also celebrated Thanksgiving. Now evening was coming on after a grand day and everybody was happy.

Uncle Wiggily gave his pink nose an extra twinkle or two and sat in his easy chair before a blazing hearth fire. The bunny boys and girls had gone out to play.

"I wish I were young enough to play," said Mr. Longears as he looked at his wife on the other side of the fire.

"Why?" asked Mrs. Longears.

ATE TOO MUCH

"To tell you the truth, my dear," answered the rabbit gentleman, "I think I ate a little too much Thanksgiving dinner. It was very foolish of me, but the things you and Nurse Jane cooked tasted so good I couldn't seem to help myself. Yes, I think I ate too much. That's why I wish I were young so it wouldn't look silly if I hopped out and stood on my head or turned somersaults or something like that. It would be exercise and exercise is good after you eat too much. Our little bunnies are getting exercise and they will sleep well to-night after the big Thanksgiving dinner."

"Well," said the rabbit lady, "why don't you go adventuring? That is a kind of exercise and it might make you feel better. Go out and look for an adventure, Wiggy."

"Thank you, but I think not," he said, closing his eyes, for he was beginning to feel sleepy. "I shall stay home and keep you company."

"Then I shall have something extra to be thankful for," laughed Mrs. Longears. "You don't very often stay home to keep me company. I thank you."

"Um! Um!" murmured Uncle Wiggily, his eyes now closed tightly.

"Oh, but say!" said his wife, "you aren't going to be much company if you go to sleep. Sit up and talk to me! Here we are all alone in the bungalow. It is Thanksgiving evening and though you are staying home to keep me company you are asleep."

ASLEEP AGAIN

"Oh, that's so! That isn't right!" said Mr. Longears, opening his eyes. "Yes, I must stay awake. I must be company for you. I must—er—I must—er—." Then, all of a sudden he fell asleep again. But before his wife could speak to him and awake him, something else made Mr. Longears sit up, wide awake. He heard a knock at the back door!

"I wonder who it can be?" whispered his wife. "Nurse Jane has gone out. You'll have to see, Wiggy!"

"It's probably some of the children," said the rabbit. He hopped to the door and opened it. Then, all of a sudden, in popped the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat. "Oh, dear me, and a basket of lollypops!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Oh, Police Dog! Police Dog!"

"Don't be afraid," said the Fox. "We haven't come to harm you, Uncle Wiggily. We just came to tell you how thankful we are for the fine Thanksgiving dinners you gave us this afternoon. Don't be afraid!"

Then the Bad Chaps went out, never harming the bunny at all. So he had something else to be thankful for. And if the dogwood tree will stop barking at the pussy-willow, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's jolly basket.

Messages of Hope At Baptist Convention

Vancouver Island Baptist Association Hear Rev. W. C. Smalley, Rev. G. A. Reynolds and Mrs. R. H. Boyer; R. M. McIntosh Elected New President

Bringing messages of encouragement and co-operation, Rev. W. C. Smalley, general secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada, and Rev. George A. Reynolds, pastor of First Baptist Church, addressed the closing session of the convention of the Vancouver Island Baptist Association, held in the First Baptist Church yesterday evening.

"Despite the depression and the lack of money," Mr. Smalley declared, "fourteen new churches have been opened up in Western Canada. I know of at least four groups of Baptists who are cutting logs in the bushes up north to build churches with. In the little town of Minnetonas, on the prairies, there are three Baptist churches in one city block.

"You may ask why did they not come together and build one large church. Well, one church has a German congregation, the other a Czechoslovakian, while the third church is made up of Ukrainians. They cannot co-operate, for they do not understand each other."

The general secretary went on to say that there were now forty-seven German Baptist churches in Western Canada, twenty-seven Swedish, and sixteen Russian-Ukrainian organizations.

There were so many different nationalities on the prairies, he said, and these people needed the gospel. Many of them responded to Christian teachings and had become excellent citizens.

GERMANY

Mr. Smalley spoke of the great gathering of Baptists from all over the world in Berlin this year, which he had attended. A huge crowd of 12,000 delegates filled the vast congress hall, and it was a wonderful thrill to think that one faith bound this tremendous audience together.

"I have told you a great deal about the prairies," he concluded, "but when I get back to Alberta I am going to tell those people a lot about Vancouver Island, and this wonderful convention we have had. I believe that gatherings such as these are an inspiration to the churches."

Mr. Reynolds gave a resume of the whole meeting. He noted that the keynote of the laymen speakers had been co-operation.

UNCOMMON

This word was not in common use in the Baptist denomination as a whole. The genius of the order was the fact that Baptists had stood for personal liberty. They refused to be dictated to as how they were to worship God. When something vital came up they could not act immediately for they had no central body, no governing council.

At the supper held before the evening session began, election of officers took place. R. M. McIntosh, of the First Baptist Church, was elected the new president of the Vancouver Island Baptist Association; George Waites, of Emmaunel Baptist Church, vice-president, and Frank Humphrey, of the Douglas Street Baptist Church, secretary. Angus Galbraith was appointed chairman of the laymen's committee, with Frank Humphrey as secretary.

The retiring president, Dr. William Russell, who had organized the whole meeting, welcomed the new officers and vacated the chair to Mr. McIntosh before the main address.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mrs. R. H. Boyer of Vancouver, secretary of the women's auxiliary department, gave a brief review of the church's work during the women's hour in the afternoon.

There were thirty-one Baptist churches in the province, eighteen of which were missionary churches. The Douglas Street Mission Church had the most baptisms to its credit, she stated. Sunday schools had shown a slight increase durin g1933, ninety-six new members having been enrolled.

The B.Y.P.U. had shown a decrease of seventy-eight members during the year, but this, she believed was due to the young people being lax in sending in reports. There were 4,304 members of the Baptist Church in British Columbia, which was also a slight increase above the previous year.

Mrs. Boyer reported that the amount spent by her church during 1933 was $79,306, of which $16,306 had gone for missionary work. The organization had nine schools in Bolivia, and the speaker felt that the money spent there had been worth while, for many had turned toward Christianity.

In India the number of baptisms had increased by over 62½ per cent, and in one section of the country alone there had been more converts than in the Roman Empire during the early period of Christianity.

PRAIRIES

The terrible conditions on the prairies was touched upon by Rev. Smalley, who also spoke to the women during the afternoon.

He had known farmers in the drought area who had received less than ¾ cent for cattle. One man had told him that he had been paid $2 for a steer. These conditions, he said, were a challenge to the Baptist people.

It was not a question of relief, for all the people in southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba were on relief. It was the fact that in those places were people who were forced to sell at any price, while others were not forced to buy.

"I have seen caravans crossing the prairies through the dust and the burning heat of the sun," Mr. Smalley declared, "trekking out of the drought regions into the north. And if you were to go up in these caravans you would find that there was not a man in them. They were being driven by women, for the men folk had gone on ahead."

He praised these heroic women, and claimed that when a history of modern Canada was written, they would receive their just due.

INDIA

Missionary work in India was a study in black and white. From a standpoint of conversions India was a glorious conquest, but from the administrative and financial side it was in a sorry state.

A few years ago $250,000 had been raised for the missionary fund in a "Save the Faith" campaign. Now there was only one more year's money left, and the problem facing the Foreign Mission Board was a serious one.

Mr. Smalley said that the Baptist Church was sending out no appeals to the drought area for funds. They could not. But the speaker felt that many people were making the depression an excuse for not giving.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Other women who spoke during the women's hour were Mrs. A. E. Taylor, Mrs. A. Dank (Nanaimo), Mrs. C. Spofford, Mrs. F. C. McKinnon and Mrs. D. M. Thompson. The Misses G. Marchant and Rosiemai Parfitt delighted the gathering with a duet. Mrs. William Russell occupied the chair.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Baptist Association were welcomed by the president, Dr. Russell, at a short devotional period which proceeded the afternoon session. Rev. Dr. A. S. Imrie, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, conducted the brief service.

Are You Nervous, Dizzy?

THOSE women who suffer every month — who may have side ache or nervous headache and those about to become mothers, will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what they need. Read what Mrs. Eric Forrest of 220 McLean Drive, Vancouver, B. C., said: "I had nervous headaches and a pain in my back that made me miserable. I was awfully weak, had to have help to do my housework. I had frequent dizzy spells, too. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it built me right up again, entirely rid me of that tired, nervous condition so I felt fine."

All druggists. New size, tablets, 50 cts., liquid $1.00. Large size, tabs. or liquid, $1.35. Write Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y.

In computing the number of words in an advertisement, estimate groups of three or less figures as one word. Dollar marks and all abbreviations count as one word.

In estimating the number of lines in an advertisement, count five words for the first two lines and seven words for each line thereafter. This is not an absolute guide to the number of lines, much depending on the length of the individual words.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one issue. Any claim for rebate on account of errors or omissions must be made within thirty days from the date of the same otherwise the claim will not be allowed.

Advertisers who desire it may have replies addressed to a box at The Times Office and forwarded to their private address. A charge of 10c is made for this service.

Subscribers wishing their addresses changed should notify this office as well as the carrier. If your Times is missing, phone E7522 before 8 p.m. and a copy will be sent by special messenger.

Announcements

BORN

DIED

ANDERSON—On Tuesday, November 27, at his home, 320 Menzies Street, John Anderson, aged eighty-three years. The late Mr. Anderson was born in Ontario and had resided here for fourteen years, having farmed for many years in Saskatchewan. He is survived by two sons, James Harvey, in Meaford, Ont., and Ernest N., in Saskatchewan; two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Drummond and Mrs. G. Michie of this city, and nine grandchildren.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from McCall Bros.' Funeral Home, Rev. Daniel Walker will conduct the service, after which interment will be in the family plot in Royal Oak Burial Park.

(No flowers by request.)

MEYERS—On November 27, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Miss Frances Meyers, in her eighty-sixth year; born in California and for many years a resident of this city.

The remains are reposing at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, from where the funeral will be held on Saturday, December 1, the cortege leaving the chapel at 8.45 a.m., proceeding to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock. Interment in Ross Bay Cemetery.

JENKINSON—On November 28, at the Aged Ladies' Home, Annie Jenkinson, a resident of Victoria for many years.

The remains are resting at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, from where the funeral will be held on Saturday, December 1, at 2 p.m., Rev. A. de B. Owen conducting the service. Interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Luke Holgate wish to express thanks to all their friends for loving sympathy and beautiful floral tributes in their sad bereavement; especially to Dr. R. H. Hunter, the supervisor and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital for their faithful and untiring services during his illness.

CHILD STAR AT THE PLAYHOUSE

Shirley Temple Being Featured in Great Success, "Baby Take a Bow"

Shirley Temple certainly is entitled to take a bow for her performance in "Baby, Take a Bow," which opened to-day at the Playhouse Theatre. The work of this five-year-old girl is really astonishing. She possesses the grace and intelligence of a grown person and a personality that will carry her far.

In "Stand Up and Cheer!" she was delightful in a little sketch with James Dunn. In "Baby, Take a Bow," she has an important part running the full length of the picture and she turns in a truly remarkable performance. She has not a trace of self-consciousness. Every gesture, every line is delivered with unstudied grace.

Joe E. Brown To Appear In Film

Joe E. Brown, the wide mouthed comedian, will come to the Dominion Theatre to-morrow, in "Six-day Bike Rider," a First National production.

The story, by Earl Baldwin, is crammed with hilarious situations, side-splitting gags, romance and heart throbs, and in addition carries enough thrills to make a melodrama.

Joe, as the village wise cracker and local Don Juan, becomes jealous of a professional trick bicycle rider, and tells the neighbors that he will "show" them by going to the big city and winning the great six-day race.

He takes his pal along with him and the two get jobs as messenger boys in order to eat until they get the big prize for the winning team. Joe sees his rival, imagines his girl has eloped with him, starts a battle and is thrown into jail on the very day the race is scheduled to start.

His experiences behind the bars, before he is bailed out, are amusing, but are nothing compared to the ridiculous situations in the race after he gets into it. This is not only riotously funny, but carries some of the biggest thrills ever shown on the screen.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Something new in set construction was introduced in Hollywood million-dollar production of Alexandre Dumas's "The Count of Monte Cristo" for release through United Artists and now at the Capitol Theatre, when real stone—hundreds of tons of it—was used to create fascimiles of sections of the historic Chateau d'If, for the prison scenes.

Tall Man Will Be Seen Here

Ernie Hite, one of the tallest men in North America is one of the featured stars with the latest Orpheum Vaudeville Circuit which will open at the Empire Theatre to-morrow. This amazing young man of only twenty years stands seven feet, eight inches in his stocking feet.

He is billed in the act of Lowe and Hite, and together they present something entirely new and novel. Eddie Lowe, for several seasons has been featured comedian and dancer in many of the successful Broadway musical productions. Hite is said to be the most graceful big man in the world. Despite his height he is a most agile dancer.

Three negro tap dancers will also be presented on this programme. A couple of young ladies, adepts with the banjo, will be heard as well. All in all, this programme offers much in the way of stage entertainment.

It will be presented also on Saturday afternoon and evening. There will be two performances at night.

Janet Gaynor, completing a three-month leave of absence from Movietone City, is back in Hollywood to begin work on her newest film, "One More Spring," which Winfield Sheehan will produce and Henry King will direct. During her prolonged vacation, Miss Gaynor, accompanied by her mother, visited European countries and spent a month resting.

TALL MAN TO APPEAR HERE

Tommy Lowe and Henry Hite are two of the featured artists with the Orpheum Circuit which will open at the Empire Theatre to-morrow evening. Hite is seven feet nine inches tall, and Lowe stands five feet five and a half inches. Hite's mother and father were of normal stature, and so are his seven sisters and four brothers. So was he until he was nine years of age. Then a certain little gland started going, and he began to grow. Just where Hite will sleep while in Victoria was a problem this morning, but it was expected some arrangements would be made before he reaches the city to-morrow morning.

NEW MARKERS FOR GRAVES

Bronze Type Suggested For Royal Oak Burial Park to Replace Cement

In an effort to add further to the attractiveness of Royal Oak Burial Park, trustees at a meeting yesterday considered the use of bronze grave markers for the future.

The bronze markers, in attractive but dignified designs, would be used by those who wished them in place of the cement ones, provided at present without charge. The price for the bronze substitutes would be as low as possible, and would furnish a permenent marker in place of the ones of a more temporary nature now in use.

The committee recently heard a report on the burial park outlining new draining projects which have been completed. A start will be made shortly on the construction of a road through the centre of the new section of the park, branching from the main road into it.

Tile pipes have been laid and connected with a twenty-inch drain, and the ground has been prepared for seeding operations which will most probably be started in April.

Elissa Landi At Columbia

A new star and superb entertainment are two contributions made to the screen by "Man of Two Worlds," now at the Columbia Theatre.

Francis Lederer acting sensation of the European and Broadway stage, is presented in this RKO-Radio production, which delighted a capacity audience last night. Heralded as an artist with irresistible charm and amazing talent, Lederer more than lived up to all advance notices.

Stellar honors are shared by Elissa Landi, who gives a strong and vivid portrayal as the blonde siren of the story.

Scientists invade the frozen north to snare specimens of animal life for the London zoo. There they find Lederer, in the role of Greenland's greatest hunter. During the expedition, he conceives a strange and idealistic passion for the photograph of the leading scientist's daughter.

The scientists return to London with Aigo. Bewildered and enthralled by the amazing world of civilization, Aigo begins to forget his young native wife in an infatuation for the cultured Mayfair belle.

ROYAL BRIDE'S SILVER GOWN

Princess Marina Stately in Gleaming Silver, Medieval Style

London, Nov. 29.—Like a princess of the Middle Ages—robed in shining cloth of silver — Princess Marina marched to the bridal altar for the ceremony linking her to the royal house. As she swept through Westminster Abbey, she wore a magnificent gown—jewel of a trousseau that has probably caused more interest than any since Eugenie became the Empress of Napoleon III.

It is cut on long, closely-fitted lines, with the rather high bodice and flowing sleeves recalling the Middle Ages and bringing memories of princesses who lived in mediaeval towers. Plain silver lace formed the broad, turn-back cuffs of the flowing sleeves and lined the fourteen-foot train which fell from the shoulders.

Distinction and simplicity are Princess Marina's choice in clothes. She has long been known for her taste and chic. Beautiful materials and simple lines mark her trousseau.

"I do not believe there has been any one since Empress Eugenie whose tastes have been calculated to have so wide an [illegible] Malyneaux, who designed the collection.

Three morning dresses, five afternoon frocks, six evening gowns and two coats comprise it. Beside these Princess Marina has added to the same colors as her frocks fifteen little "bell boy" toques which are widely copied in England and on the continent. Her bags, gloves and scarfs are usually in the same shades as her costumes.

Beige is the most favored color in her clothes, followed by dark and light blues. Among the most striking frocks are evening gowns of beige and soft pink designed on long slender lines and worn with sash girdles.

Failed to Observe Wednesday Holiday

Two Chinese convicted of keeping their stores in Chinatown open after 1 o'clock on Wednesdays were fined $5 each in the city police court this morning. They were Sing Gee, who pleaded guilty, and Dong Gin, proprietor of Wing Tai Co. who pleaded not guilty through his counsel, M. B. Jackson, K.C.

Dong was also assessed with $2.50 costs.

Sergt. A. H. Bishop and Constable S. McKenzie testified they had gone into Wing Tai Co. about 4 o'clock. The accused was behind the counter, and there was fresh meat on a block in the store. The constable had previously seen thirty persons go into the store and eleven emerge with parcels under their arms.

Premises above the store were used by a Chinese society; with a membership of 100, the accused told the court. His store was the only entrance to the rooms, and the men who police had seen come in were [illegible] been straightening up his accounts when the police came in, he said.

Mr. Jackson contended there was no sale of goods shown in evidence

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The affirmative were declared victors by a narrow margin at an amusing debate staged by the Speakers' Club yesterday evening, on the subject, "Resolved that the Sunday editions on the newspapers are taking a heavy toll of our forests without compensating quid pro quoto our educational, commercial or cultural national life." The affirmative was represented by P. B. Fowler, supported by J. A. Welford and Frank Cariss, and the negative by J. H. Hill, backed by Col. D. McGugan and Dr. T. W. A. Gray.

In giving the decision of the judges—the rest of the club—W. T. Cook stated that the vote had at first been a tie, but that on reconsideration the award had gone in favor of the affirmative.

R. C. Denny was chairman of the meeting, and Frank Paulding critic.

The annual meeting of the Guild of Health will be held on Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the chapel of the Memorial Hall.

Tickets for the Rotary Club's musical extravaganza, "Stop-and-Go," to be produced at the Royal Victoria on January 7 and 8, were distributed to the clubmen for sale to-day.

A revised set of regulations governing approval, sale, installation and maintenance of oil burners and oil burning equipment was issued by the government to-day and will be published in The B.C. Gazette.

This week's luncheon of the Credit Granters' Association will be held as usual in the Douglas Hotel dining-room at 12.10 o'clock to-morrow. The guest speaker will be A. B. Stewart who will talk on "Credit Sales Departments."

Bank clearings in Victoria, which were slightly down last week, were this week once again above those for the corresponding period of last year, according to the weekly statment of the Victoria Clearing House, issued this morning. The figures were $1,222,722, and $1,149,836 respectively.

For having a liquor in a cafe, James Barclay, Macaulay Point Relief Camp, was fined $50, with an option of thirty days' imprisonment, in the City Police Court this morning. Constable Arthur Phipps testified he followed the accused into the Royal Arms Cafe, Government Street, and had taken the bottle from him while inside.

The Fraser Canyon Forest Reserve, set up by the Dominion Government when it had control of the railway lands, has been cancelled by the province. Consisting of 2,230 square miles, the reserve was found to contain mostly non-agricultural mountainous territory, not suitable for commercial timber.

Readings from Kipling and discussions on the different features brought out in the writings presented, were the chief business of the Kipling Society's monthly meeting at the home of T. A. Simmons, 1549 Pembroke Street, yesterday evening. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

To check up on radio receiving set owners who have pleaded indigency as an excuse for not buying licenses, the Radio Branch of the Department of Marine has asked the city for a list of persons on relief. By determining genuine cases, the branch hopes to extend the time for those unable to make prompt payment for the licenses.

Rupert Leslie Cox, as official administrator, with Norman Whittaker as his lawyer, to-day sued Keth Scott Christie and Superior Stores over payment for a piece of property bought by Mr. Christie from the estate of Mary Ann Booth. Judge Lampman gave judgment against Mr. Christie for the amount of Mr. Cox's claim, plus costs.

Delegates who will represent the B.C. Joint Committee on Unemployment at the interview with Premier Pattullo on December 7 will be selected at a meeting in the C.C.F. Hall, 724 Fort Street, Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Four delegates will be elected, to accompany those already named in Saanich and Esquimalt. All employed and unemployed workers are invited to attend.

University Extension Association will hear an address Thursday evening, at 8.15 o'clock, by Professor C. W. Topping, S.T.D. (Wesleyan Theol. College), Ph.D. (Columbia), on "The How and Why of Social Change." The speaker will be introduced by Dr. Carrothers, chairman of the Economic Council of British Columbia. The public is cordially invited to attend this lecture, which will be given at Victoria College.

Work at union wages and a minimum of $60 a month is the main request of the campaign being launched by the B.C. Joint Committee on Unemployment, according to an announcement issued in Vancouver. The $60 is sought in cash, not scrip. "Should this not be allowed," says the notice, "we will ask that the present total relief allowance be increased 50 per cent with adequate and assured medical treatment."

To-morrow being St. Andrew's Day there will be Holy Communion, with special intercession for missions, at St. John's Church at 10.30 a.m. This will be observed as a Corporate Communion for the Women's Auxiliary, and all interested in the missionary work of the church. The church will be open for prayer throughout the day, and each mission field will be remembered at the specific hours of the day.

Failure of a quorum to turn out at Tolmie School yesterday evening, necessitated the postponement of the annual general meeting of the Saanich Ward Two Non-political Ratepayers. The meeting will be held on December 5. Future meetings were arranged for the first Wednesday of each month. To those who were present yesterday Dennis Hoare gave an informal report of the organization meeting of the Central Council of Saanich Ratepayers' Associations.

A large gathering of Colfax Rebekahs and friends enjoyed the splendid Scotch concert and social arranged by Mrs. M. Nicol and committee. The following artists contributed largely to the success of the affair: Vocal solos, Mrs. R. Nicol, Miss Josephine Dobbie, Miss Jean Dobbie, Messrs, Joe Dobbie and Billy McLean; Scotch dances by Miss Evelyn Watson, accompanied by Miss Eileen Grant on the bagpipes; violin solo, Allan Paver. Eric Paver ably accompanied the soloists. Community singing led by Billy McLean brought a merry evening to a close. The lodge will hold an afternoon bridge Wednesday, December 5. LONDON'S FACE IS CHANGING

Architecture Suggestive of Modern German Style, Says P. L. James

The modern German style is strongly suggestive in the "new face of London," states P. Leonard James, local architect, who has just returned to Victoria after spending fifteen months in Europe.

In the West End many of the famous old mansions are being demolished and replaced by modern apartment blocks or hotels, a change particularly noticeable in Park Lane.

In Oxford Street, close to Marble Arch, several important buildings have just geen completed, one of these being the Cumberland Hotel, which Mr. James says is planned on Canadian and American lines, with a bathroom to every bedroom, and notable for the extent and originality of its interior lighting features.

Adjoining the Cumberland, is a fine apartment building, the Mount Royal, occupying an entire block.

Vast housing schemes for the working classes, subsidized by the government, are being carried out in many part of England. Mr. James speaks of them as "blatant outpourings of brick and mortar" that are looked upon by many as "blots on the landscape."

There is also considerable activity in the smaller class of house construction for individual owners, states Mr. James. Much more than formerly, he says, the Englishman appears to aspire to possession of a home, in preference to renting one. This is rendered comparatively easy by the ready co-operation of the building societies, which in some cases advance as much as 90 per cent of the purchase price of a house.

The newer English houses are materially different in plan and general style to the pre-war type, Mr. James points out. They conform more to types familiar in Canada, in that they are laid out with more regard for labor-saving, good lighting and the utilization of all parts of the house for family needs rather than devote space to such occasional apartments as parlors, drawing-rooms, and so forth.

For the most part the houses are built of brickwork or concrete, although stucco is extensively used in exterior finishing.

There is a growing interest in England, however, in wooden or frame construction on the grounds of expediency and economy. Mr. James thinks it will only be a matter of time before frame houses similar to those in Canada will be erected in greater numbers throughout the United Kingdom.

In this connection, he adds, the publicity given to the advantages of B.C. cedar shingles and Douglas fir lumber by British Columbia houses is helping materially, and should ultimately benefit this province very considerably.

Many of the municipal councils are now using B.C. lumber in their building schemes, and architects, Sir Edward Lutyens among others, have specified cedar for buildings designed in Britain. Mr. James was informed while in London of one contractor who had $175,000 worth of woden frame construction on hand.

In the new residential sections a great range of architectural styles is displayed, from the traditional Tudor and Georgian to the ultra-modern box-like structures with flat roofs, intended to be used as roof gardens. "International" or "functional" are terms given to the new type of house by the new school.

Diversity of opinion exists among architects as to whether the new houses should conform to traditional styles, or break entirely away. Some structures planned by champions of the new order are little short of fantastic, in the opinion of well-known contemporary architects, and lively exchanges of views are taking place on the subject.

A competition was held in England a short time ago for house designs, and 500 sets of plans were submitted by architects. From this number, thirty-five were selected by a committee of experts, and the actual houses were built at Gidea Park, near London, the general public then being invited to inspect the finished results and offer criticism. For the most part the houses were of the ultra-modern type as far as exterior appearances went, flat-topped and box-like; but some of the interior arrangements were cleverly worked out with labor-saving devices to the fore.

BEER VOTE IN ROYAL CITY

A vote on beer-by-the-glass will be taken in New Westminster on December 14.

Writ for the plebiscite was issued by the government to-day and Joseph Dorgan was named returning officer.

The police commission there has recommended a vote be taken.

New Westminster twice previously voted against beer. In the general plebiscite of 1924 the vote was 1,695 for and 2,427 against. In 1926, at a special poll, it was rejected by 1,806 to 1,455.

MATCHES SOUGHT WITH FRENCHMEN

Following up plans for the entertainment of French sailors during the visit to the city of the training ship Jeanne d'Arc, early in January, officials of the City Hall to-day addressed letters to the ship to see if they could furnish sports teams for games against local clubs.

The local officials asked if rugby, soccer, basketball or swimming teams were included in the ship's company. If such teams are there, the Victorians plan a schedule of fixtures which should prove of particular interest to the visitors and the Victoria sports followers alike.

Funeral services for Miss Frances (Fanny) Meyers, who passed away Tuesday evening at St. Joseph's Hospital, will be held on Saturday morning. The cortege will leave Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 8.45 o'clock, proceeding to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where Rev. Father Gaudette will celebrate mass at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Major Tax Penalty Starts On Tuesday

The major penalty for delinquent payment of taxes, an increase in the charge of 5 per cent, will go into force on Tuesday, it was announced at the City Hall to-day. The increase will raise the total charge against unpaid levies to 8 per cent, three individual 1 per cent charges having been made since taxes fell due in October. Those wishing to avoid the increased charge must pay their taxes by next Monday at the latest.

CREATES DISHES FOR FASTIDIOUS

Henri Odiau, Relieving Chef at Empress Hotel, Will Make Circuit of C.P.R. Hotels During Winter

Creating dishes to please fastidious palates of wealthy people who spend their holidays at the Banff Springs Hotel, is the summer job of Henri Odiau, who is now relieving J. Anderegg as chief chef at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Anderegg will be back from his holidays next month and will immediately have to turn his attention to preparations for the Christmas festivities here.

When the regular chef takes over Mr. Odiau will proceed to Vancouver to relieve the chef at the Hotel Vancouver, spending Christmas at the mainland city, and from the first of the year he will in turn relieve hotel chefs in the service of the C.P.R. from the Pacific to the Atlantic coasts.

On New Year's Day, Mr. Odiau will be at the Hotel Saskatchewan in Regina, thence going on to the Royal Alexandra at Winnipeg, the Place Viger in Montreal and finally the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec.

Then he will take a short holiday himself, returning again to Banff for the summer season next year.

HISTORY OF CANDY TOLD

John Tabor Outlines Romance of Industry to Rotary Club

The [illegible] from the time when the sweet was but a honey-coating to a bitter herb pill to the present mass production of chocolates in a complicated technical process, was sketched to members of the Rotary Club to-day by John Tabor, in the course of a classification talk at the Empress Hotel.

Justifying his right to his classification as a distributor of confectionery, Mr. Tabor stated he had traveled from coast to coast in Canada for the last forty years, introducing various lines.

There was a romance to any business if it were traced to its origin and investigated in its various developments, he stated, before turning directly to the subject, candy.

ORIGIN OF CANDY

He placed the origin of candy at the time of Hippocrates, in the fifth century, B.C., noting that the old Greek had used as his remedies for various ailments exceptionally bitter herb pills. To make them palatable, he had coated them with honey, thereby becoming the father of candy.

Great Britain had been a pioneer and leader in candy manufacture in the 1850s and had been challenged to a certain extent by France and Germany.

Before 1845 candy had usually been considered the product of boiling sugar to a required consistency. Later had come the printed lozenges with their embossed messages.

PERSONAL INCIDENTS

Tracing still later developments, he referred to use of machinery instead of hand labor and then went on with a description of his own connection with the industry which he had entered at an early age in the Maritimes.

He drew a word picture of the glamorous country through which he traveled as a young man before turning to an account of the manner in which his superior product had won a market against foreign and domestic competition in Toronto.

Closing, he gave a description of a modern chocolate plant in Tacoma, Wash., outlining the various processes through which the materials went before they reached the distribution stage, which sent them all over the continent.

WORK OF BLIND

Following Mr. Tabor's address, Major Harry Watt, traveling representative of the Canadian Institution for the Blind and a former member of the Victoria Rotary Club, spoke warmly of the club's present leader, Morse Hatt.

He briefly outlined his work as field representative for the Institution for the Blind, in making the people "blind-minded." Cheerfully he told of his difficulty in facing his audience which he could not see. The various features of his work among the blind and the assistance the police and others had been to him in his work were described.

"Canada treats its blind as well, if not better, than the blind are treated anywhere else in the world," Major Watt declared, giving incidents to illustrate the institute's fine humanitarian work in preventive and constructive phases. The institute asked charity for the very young and the very old, but for the others it sought a chance in life, by public support of their work.

Telling some of the capabilities of the sightless, he stated science had found the blind better packers than those with eyes.

Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson of the Supreme Court went to Vancouver to-day to attend the meeting of the Eugenics Council of which he is a member.

EARLY RISERS HEAR WEDDING

Many Listened to Broadcast; Further Transmission Tentatively Scheduled

The broadcast of the royal wedding was clearly heard here this morning by those who tuned in at 3 o'clock in the morning to listen in on the direct transmission of the ceremony. Many More received the blattnerphone re-broadcast at 7 o'clock over CRCV in Vancouver.

The description of the procession and ceremony in Westminster Abbey came through with exceptional clearness. The words of the announcer were heard against a background of the noise of the crowd and military bands as the procession went to the Abbey.

During the wedding, the voices of Princess Marina and the Archbishop of Canterbury rang out clearly. There was no trace of foreign accent in the voice of the Princess. Prince George's "I Will" was so low that the microphones barely recorded it.

A tentative announcement of a further rebroadcast from the blattnerphone recording, to take place over the Canadian Radio Commission network, including CRCV, Vancouver, at 6.30 p.m. to-day has been made.

Short-wave fans received the broadcast direct at 2.45 a.m. on the B.B.C. transmission No. 2; rebroadcasts were heard on various transmissions at 7 a.m., 10.15 a.m., and 3 p.m., and a final rebroadcast will be heard to-night at 12.15 a.m., on transmission No. 1, over Stations GSD, 25.53 metres, and GSB, 31.55 metres. This broadcast will probably be poorly received on this coast.

The blattnerphone system, introduced by the British Broadcasting Corporation, and used four times on each of their empire broadcasts, uses a magnetized bobbin of steel wire as the recording medium.

BARBERS WANT SHORTER DAY

In Petition to Council Ask Shops Be Opened at 8.30 o'Clock in Morning

Alterations in opening and closing times, which are regulated by by-law in the city, are sought by forty hairdressing establishments in Victoria in a petition filed with the City Clerk to-day.

The barbers wish to change their opening hour from 8 o'clock in the morning to 8.30 o'clock. On Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays they wish to close at 6 o'clock, the hour at which they shut shop at present. On Wednesday they ask the same closing hour, 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and on Saturday they ask the time be changed from the existing 8 o'clock in the evening to 7 o'clock.

The petition, drawn up by C. L. Harrison, is signed by forty of forty-six recognized shops in town.

Has Held Municipal Office Previously

Fred J. Crowhurst, who has announced his candidature for a seat on the City Council, states that he has no apologies to offer for entering the race.

"I have had a great deal of municipal experience," he stated yesterday. "I was mayor and councillor of a town on the prairies for several years, and before coming to this country I served on a council in the old country. I also was a councillor in Saanich for one term."

Mr. Crowhurst was unsuccessful in his effort to get a seat on the council last year. He also failed in the provincial election when he ran as a Unionist.

NEW CHAIRMAN TO BE NAMED

Departmental Official Will Get Post as Markets Board Head

Appointment of a new chairman for the Provincial Marketing Board will be made shortly, Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, said this morning.

It is expected the post will go to someone now in the civil service who has legal training. The choice has not yet been made.

Selection of a new chairman was made necessary through the elevation of Col. Eric Pepler, the present incumbent, to the position of deputy attorney-general, and he is unable to continue the dual duties.

Pay Last Tribute To Freemason

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Thomas Lewis, who passed away last Saturday. Dean Quainton conducted the service at Christ Church Cathedral, assisted by Rev. T. R. Lancaster.

Relatives and many friends were in attendance and a large number of members from the Masonic Order and the Arion Club were present. Many beautiful floral tributes were received. At the church the hymn sung was "Abide With Me" and the members of the Arion Club sang their committall hymn, "Requiescat in Pace."

The pallbearers were: W. Bro. D. D. Muir, W. Bro. Philip H. Hughes, W. Bro. John Walton, Bro. H. A. Cox, Bro. William McDonald and Mro. J. A Birnie.

Rev. T. R. Lancaster read the committal service at the graveside in Royal Oak Burial Park, and W. Bro. W. R. Yule, W.M. of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 2, G.R.B.C., conducted the last Masonic rites.

CHEMAINUS HAS K. OF P. LODGE

New Lodge Is Instituted at Victoria Temple By Victoria and Duncan Members

A new Knights of Pythias lodge, Chemainus No. 60, was instituted recently at the Temple of Far West No. 1, Knights of Pythias, on Broad Street. The initiation work was done by Victoria and Duncan lodges.

C. Peterson, C.C., and Ed Perry, V.C., were installed by G.C. George Allison; F. Beecham, M.W., and A. Jones, prelate, were installed by P.G.C. Chris Behnson; J. Howe, K. of R.S., B. Vernon, M. of F., and D. Stevens, M. of E., were installed by G.K. of R.S. F. J. Harding of Vancouver; F. Work, M.A., W. Murray, O.G., and R. Jones, I.G., were installed by D.G.C. A. A. Hockley. Bro. George Todd was grand M.A. and Bro. J. Hughes was G.P.

In the course of the evening a banquet was served by Brother W. Carter, assisted by the Pythian Sisters of Island Temple No. 8.

Chemainus members have for some time past been affiliated with the Duncan Lodge. Difficulties of transportation, together with an increase in membership, led to the institution of the new lodge.

The meetings of the Chemainus lodge will be held in the K. of P. Hall in that city, and will take place once monthly. The first session will be on the second Thursday in December. Further details and a working programme will be announced on that occasion.

BABY'S FUNERAL

The funeral of Ronald Leslie Griffin, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin, took place yesterday afternoon. Many friends attended, and the casket was banked with many floral tributes. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick conducted the service, during which the hymn, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," was sung. Interment was in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Trade Commissioner Here On Saturday

Paul Sykes, who was to have visited Victoria from December 1 to 3, prior to his return to Tientsin as Canadian government trade commissioner, has been notified of a change of plans. He has been transferred to Hamburg and will leave Vancouver for his new post on Saturday. He will not be able to visit Victoria before his departure.

C. S. Bissett, formerly trade commissioner at Lima, Peru, has been appointed to Tientsin. He will leave Vancouver on Saturday and his only opportunity to interview Victoria firms will be during the stay of the Ss. Empress of Russia at the outer wharf in the afternoon. Mr. Bissett has not been in Tientsin before and is not in a position to advise exporters, but would like to see if they wish him to do something particular for them.

Appointments may be made through the local office of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, 117 Pemberton Building.

B.C. Government Appointments

Appointments by the provincial government this week include the following: Hugh G. Gordon of Kootenay Park, to be stipendiary magistrate; George Sawyer of Harrison Hot Springs to be coroner; Dr. J. S. Daly, of Trail, to be deputy coroner; Magistrate Noble Binns of Trail to be judge of the juvenile court; Leonard A. Dodd to be a member of the board of management of Greenwood and District Hospital, and Gordon E. Wride, Hedley, B.C., to be medical health officer and health school inspector for the district, replacing Dr. C. McCaffrey, who moves to Princeton, taking the place of Dr. J. R. Naden, who has left the district.

MANY AT FUNERAL

The funeral of Miss Katie Stewart Deans took place yesterday afternoon, Rev. H. J. Armitage officiating in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends, during which the hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Rock of Ages," were sung. The casket and hearse were banked with beautiful flowers. The following acted as pallbearers: J. Manton, C. F. Dawson, W. McMichael, M. Blackstock, J. Blackstock and F. Holland. The remains were laid at rest in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

ST. AIDAN'S Y.P.S.

The young people of St. Aidan's held their regular meeting in the assembly hall. Miss Mary Armitage sang two delightful solos. Miss Barbara Dawson spoke on the value of music in the home, and Miss Phyllis Williams on the value of pictures in the home, Kenneth Jennings on the value of flowers and plants in the home. Mr. Boorman spoke on rustic work of all kinds. Mrs. H. J. Armitage brought the evening's entertainment to a close by her talk on "Christ in the Home."

VICTORIA WEST UNITED Y.P.S.

The weekly meeting of the Victoria West United Y.P.S. was held Tuesday evening. A chapter of the book, "The Man Nobody Knows," was read in the devotional period. The society was asked to turn out in a body to a special service on Sunday evening which will be the anniversary of the church.

Another team of the Table Tennis Club has been selected to compete against four members of the Metropolitan Table Tennis Club on Wednesday evening, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Current events were taken up by Jack Price and discussed by the members, which proved both intellectual and amusing.

Next week Ken McAllister of the Federated Council of Youth will speak on "Current Events."

SALVATIONIST IS LAID TO REST

The funeral of Luke Holgate, who passed away at his home, Saanich Road, November 22, took place Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Relatives and a host of friends were in attendance, and many members of the Salvation Army were present to pay their last respects to their comrade. Beautiful flowers covered the casket and the floral racks at the chapel.

Adjutant L. Ede and Adjutant J. Sharp officiated, and the hymns sung were "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "I Need Thee," "Shall We Meet?" "O, the Voice to Me So Dear" and "I Know He Cares for Me." Miss Eva Bowles sang a solo, "Peace, Perfect Peace."

The pallbearers were: W. H. Bowles, William Radcliffe, D. E. Matthew, Edward Smith, J. F. Townsend and Nicholas Hick. The remains were laid at rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

McKechnie Cup Rugby Series Will Be Staged This Season

THE SPORTS MIRROR

TEARING ASUNDER the veil of mystery surrounding John A. Heydler's sudden resignation as president of the National Baseball League—unofficial baseballdom is buzzing with the story that both the National and American League presidents have been stripped of their power and that investigation of irregularities and scandal hereafter is in sole charge of the commissioner's office.

Inside baseball circles draw the inference that Heydler went beyond his jurisdiction in "tagging" the New York Giants and St. Louis Candinals in the waning days of the pennant race, and thus incurred the displeasure of certain magnates. Following the victory of the Cardinals in the world series with the Detroit Tigers Heydler made the announcement he was satisfied there was nothing "wrong" in the victory of the Cards in the National League. The St. Louis team came through with a great finish to nose out the Giants, who dropped a large number of their final games after appearing to have had the championship tucked away.

A prominent figure long associated with the national pastime had this to say regarding the Heydler resignation:

"Organized baseball does not wish to be investigated — especially now when we haven't a Babe Ruth on the threshold to 'save the day.' Hearings dating back from the Cozy Dolan-Jimmy O'Connell to recent syndicate baseball allegations have been conducted behind closed doors and as little publicity given the incidents as possible."

The American League was nearly ruined when Ban Johnson decided to clean the Black Sox mess and a majority of club owners long since decided that in the future all snooping and investigating must be done by that great bureau maintained for a particular purpose—Commissioner Landis's office.

"Discovery will not be a starter in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap at Los Angeles February 22," emphatically declared Owner Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt in a recent interview.

Thus, at least one of the outstanding possible condidates for the rich coast classic is definitely and positively "no dice."

The reason advanced for the withdrawing Discovery from the race is that Vanderbilt is unwilling to risk so long a trip for the son of Display, which was Cavalcade's keenest rival for the three-year-old honors this year.

"I don't think it would be doing my horse any good to subject him to a ride on the cars for four days. Anything might happen to him. The purse, of course, is a big one, but I think a lot more of my horse than I do of a purse even of that size," said Vanderbilt.

"He is recovering from the sickness that forced him into early retirement and I think the rest will do him a lot of good. He has all next season on the big track before him, so why should I take a chance with him on one race.

"I would have liked to have had him hook up with Equipoise this fall, and I'm sure he'd have beaten him, too, but that also is out of the question."

There's a bitter feud existing between Wayne D. Wright and Don Meade, the two leading jockeys in Maryland, growing out of the close race that desulted during the Laurel meeting where Wright nosed out Meade on the closing day of that session by riding three winners, giving him a total of twenty-nine to twenty-six for Meade.

Just how bitter is the feeling between the lads is illustrated by the daring and rough and tumble tactics employed by them whenever they hook up together. Some believe that one or the other may be knocked over the rail if they continue to throw caution to the winds.

Incidentally Wright and Meade were the two riders who were supposed to have been in cahoots during the New York racing season. This charge was openly made to newspapermen by Isador Bieber, the firebrand of the metropolitan owners. However, if Bieber was ever wrong in his deductions it is forcibly demonstrated by the feud on tap at Baltimore. The kids like each other just like poison.

Bitsy Grant, having again been passed up in the selection for United States Davis Cup tryouts, is expected to be the next amateur tennis player to join up with Bill Tilden's pro troupe. . . . Bill Ingram, California coach, considers the tackle posts the hardest to play in American football. . . . Paul Waner, the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, entered the Miami-Biltmore golf tournament . . . and he can whack the pill even better than he can a horsehide. . . . Reno, Nev., was the first city to pull more than $100,000 for a boxing match . . . when Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries drew $270,000 for their title go there July 4, 1910.

Three Games To Decide Holders Of Famous Mug

Goes to Kelowna

TOMMY FORBES

Well-known Victoria athlete, who left on this afternoon's boat for Vancouver en route to Kelowna where he will take up residence. Tommy, who has been associated with the sporting goods firm of Hocking and Forbes since its opening some time ago, will continue in this line of business in the Interior town. Tommy has built up a wide circle of friends in this city through his activities in tennis, basketball, baseball and badminton and they all wish him the best of luck in his new surroundings.

WALLACE TO FIGHT AGAIN

Rematched With Billy Townsend For Bout Dec. 11; May Risk Title

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Gordon Wallace and Billy Townsend, who fought fifteen rounds here just three weeks ago for the Canadian welterweight title—as approved by the Vancouver Boxing Commission—have been rematched.

They will fight again on Tuesday, December 11, this time in aid of the Santa Claus fund. Wallace is willing to stake his title in a few days more than a month since he won it, if the boxing commission will give its sanction to this rematch as a title bout.

Promoter Jack Allan, who is staging the bout, will make formal application at the next meeting of the commission and it is expected that the dukes will offer no objections.

Wallace, confident that he can pound out another decision over the rugged Townsend, put his title on the block without hesitation.

"I beat Billy decisively last time," he said, "and I'm not afraid of him."

Townsend, who has been clamoring for another shot at the boy who whipped him, is just as confident that he will make a better showing this time.

NOT SO EASY

"I hadn't had a fight for seven months before that last go and my timing was all off," he remarked this morning. "That fight with Wallace was just what I needed. This time Gordon won't find it quite so easy."

Wallace knocked Townsend three times to his knees for the count of nine in the first battle, but was unable to put Townsend out.

Townsend, decisively outpointed in the early rounds, fought a gallant rearguard action and actually took a couple of rounds from his opponent as the battle neared the limit.

The first bout was over the fifteen-round route—the first one of that duration here in several years—the length of the new match is as yet undecided. Jack Allen favors the longer distance, but the final decision as to the length will be left to the judgment of the Boxing Commission.

A strong supporting card is being lined up and another capacity house is expected. The first bout packed the Auditorium and several hundred were turned away.

Vancouver Soccer Referee Passes

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Tragic coincidence moved yesterday to again break the ranks of Vancouver's soccer referees. A year almost to the day since Jack Gray died from pneumonia contracted after refereeing a game between two Wednesday Soccer League clubs, Jim Wilson, fellow referee, died yesterday from a similar illness after refereeing a match between the same two teams.

Wilson, twenty-eight years old, and one of the youngest soccer referees in the province, was formerly goalkeeper for St. Saviour's Club of Vancouver in the Senior Intercity League. He retired from active competition two years ago to take up refereeing.

A cold, caught while handling the game two weeks ago in a pouring rain, developed into pneumonia. He was taken to hospital Sunday night.

Boston, Nov. 29.—Bert McInenly, Ottawa defence player, yesterday was returned to Boston Cubs by Boston [illegible] of the [illegible] Hockey League.

Varsity Will Play Victoria in Only Engagement Here on January 12

CALIFORNIANS HERE DEC. 26

Vancouver, Nov. 29. — Difficulties which for a time threatened to force abandonment of the McKechnie Cup intercity rugby series have been ironed out by the British Columbia Rugby Union, with adoption of Victoria proposals for a three-game series.

Union delegates yesterday evening decided the series will open here Christmas Day with Vancouver Reps meeting University of British Columbia. Varsity will visit Victoria January 12 for the second game, and the Islanders will return here to meet Reps on January 26.

Dates for games with an all-star California team, which will tour the province Christmas week, were set by the delegates. The visitors will play at Victoria December 26, then move to Vancouver to meet Varsity December 29 and Vancouver Reps January 1.

PROVINCIAL SERIES

The meeting decided also that the Rounsefell Cup competition, to decide the provincial rugby championship, will be played in Victoria in February, but the date was not set. It will be announced later.

Victoria delegates won their point in connection with distribution of gate receipts at the McKechnie Cup series. The Vancouver Union favored giving the union complete control of the series, but the island delegates objected and asked that the gate be split, with 75 per cent going to the home club and the remainder to the union.

The Victoria resolution was carried by a six to three vote.

Previously, the series had been a six-game affair, but on motion of the Vancouver Union this was reduced to the three games for this year.

The delegates also accepted the California proposal that each of the clubs represented on the tours put up $500, with a similar amount guaranteed by the British Columbia Union. Information from Harry Maloney, San Francisco, president of the California Rugby Union, stated that the California clubs had already put up their required sums.

H. J. Ketchen, Victoria, honorary secretary of the British Columbia Union, who has been ill for some time, attended the meeting and received the congratulations of the delegates on his recovery.

Replay Matches In English Cup Soccer

London, Nov. 29. — Stockport County and Lincoln City, English League elevens tied by minor outfits in the first round proper of the English Soccer Cup last Saturday, finally won through in yesterday's replays of tied games.

The results were:

Lincoln City 4, Shildon Colliery 0.

Exeter City 5, Charlton Athletic 2.

Hartlepools United 2, Halifax Town 0.

HOCKEY OPENS AT PORTLAND

Buckaroos Meet Seattle Sea Hawks in First Game of Season To-night

Seattle, Nov. 29.—Sammy McAdam will be a busy young man this evening when the Sea Hawks help Bobby Rowe's Buckaroos open the professional hockey season in Portland.

Seattle's tricky little centre ice man may have to play about fifty minutes of hockey, as Johnny Sheppard, the former Chicago Black Hawk, who shares the pivot duties with Sammy, is slightly ailing, having a heavy cold and a strained leg muscle.

The Hawks will be playing against two of their last season's teammates this evening. Gordie Fraser and Jack Arbour will both see service on the Buckaroo defence, sharing those duties with Art Townsend, who did his bouncing for the Edmonton Eskimos last winter.

Those three, with the efficient Red McCusker of last year's Calgary Tigers in the nets, gives Rowe a pretty fair defence. With Peaches Lyons, Jimmy Evans and Ralph Blyth, Bobby has a dangerous starting forward line. His second forward wall of Vern Kunsman, Chub Scott and Rusty Hemmerling is more or less of an experiment.

Percy Williams Is Starter For Meet Here To-morrow

Hero of the 1928 Olympic Games and by far the greatest sprinter ever developed in Canada, Percy Williams to-day accepted the job of starter for the Kiwanis-sponsored indoor track meet at the Armories to-morrow evening.

In a telephone communication with Archie McKinnon, director of the meet, Percy expressed his willingness to look after the highly technical starting question. He will be over in the official capacity of coach for the Varsity squad, which meets the Flying Y in dual events starting at 8.15 o'clock.

CLEVELAND WINS GAME

Vail's Goal Late in Third Period Defeats Windsor in Hockey Clash

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 29.—A goal by "Sparky" Vail on a pass from Milt Halliday late in the third period gave Cleveland Indians a 2 to 1 win at the expense of Windsor Bull Dogs in an International Hockey League game here yesterday evening.

Vail's goal came less than three minutes before the close of the third period, shattered a 1 to 1 tie and pulled Cleveland out of a prolonged losin streak.

George Patterson Sent to St. Louis

Detroit, Nov. 29. — Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, announced yesterday that George Patterson, Red Wings forward, has been sent to St. Louis Eagles with an option of purchase for $3,500.

Adams said Detroit would receive Mickey Blake, young defence man, from St. Louis for a trial, and that if Blake is retained, Detroit would take him in the deal for Patterson.

M'NAMARA IS SPORT MARVEL

Veteran Australian Will Start in 113th Six-day Bike Race Next Week

New York, Nov. 29.—The ageless wonder of the athletic world, grizzled Reginald McNamara, climbs aboard his bicycle, next week, to compete for six days and six nights—for the 113th time in his career—against bulgy-legged, leather-lunged riders, in Madison Square Garden's semi-annual bike marathon.

There is nothing new about six-day bicycle races, but there is something growingly amazing about this fifty-year-old Australian, who, at a time when he might be expected to be sitting back with his pipe and carpet slippers, watching the world go by, is down in the saucer, pedaling, instead.

IS A WONDER

No other athletic competition, with the possible exception of golf, which scarcely compares in rigors to six-day bike riding, boasts a top-line competitor approaching McNamara's age. Babe Ruth, at forty, is on the sidelines. Jack Dempsey quit at thirty-three. Only Bill Tilden, of the active patriarchs, continues to play pro tennis at forty-one.

McNamara, paired with Dave Lands, New Jersey, next week, holds all records for recuperative power.

"When he was twelve, hunting rabbits with his brother, in New South Wales, he stuck his hand into a log after a hiding bunny and was bitten on one finger by a snake. His rugged brother decided there was only one way to save his life. So he chopped the bitten finger off with a hatchet.

MANY INJURIES

In the thirty years he has been riding bicycles professionally, he has been taken apart and put together again like a grandfather's clock, by one doctor after another. His wound stripes include eleven fractures of the collar bone, three broken ribs, fractures of the skull, nose, jaw, both arms and one leg. He as been in and out of hospitals so much he married a nurse.

Yet he has won sixteen races, finished second eleven times, third sixteen times, fourth twelve times, and, like Rabbit Maranville, he does not see how this younger crop can hope to get him out of there in the immediate future.

"They will have to build them faster and stronger," he says, "or they won't ride me off the saucer until I'm sixty."

Philadelphia In Minor Hockey Win

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—A last period scoring spree good for two goals netted Philadelphia Arrows a 2 to 0 Canadian-American Hockey League victory over New Haven Eagles yesterday evening. Stan McCabe got away in the closing minutes to net the two tallies. In each instance Roy Burmeister was credited with an assist.

Navy, Bays Tied For Soccer Lead

Sailors Beat Garrison and Storemen Trim Maccabees; Spencers Take Measure of Rangers in Wednesday League Games

Running in a 3 to 1 victory over the Garrison at Work Point yesterday, Navy soccer players moved into first berth in the Wednesday Football League in a tie with Hudson's Bay, who trimmed the Maccabees 5 to 0 at the Athletic Park. Spencers registered their second win of the season against the Outer Wharf Rangers 4 to 0 at Heywood Avenue.

The sailors opened the scoring early against the Tommies in the closest game of the day. Dave Marr took a rebound close in and banged the ball home for the opening counter.

GARRISON NETS PENALTY

At half-time the score was 2 to 1 for the sailors, who were still pressing.

In spite of sustained attacks in the second half the Tommies could not put in the equalizing goal, as the Navy backs turned in airtight defensive performances.

SPENCERS WIN

Smart goal tending by Stewartson and the inability of the Rangers to make their shots count gave Spencers their 4 to 0 verdict over the Outer Wharf team on the slippery Heywood Avenue pitch.

Bissell started the ball rolling for Spencers ten minutes from the start, when he scored in an empty net after Ken Fleming had fallen in an attempt to clear.

The squads maintained a fast pace throughout the half, but no further attempts counted.

Bob Browne paved the way for the second department store goal, finishing off a rush down the wing with a long shot. Fleming failed to get the ball away and Borde closed in on him to make sure of the counter.

Spencers — Stewartson; Munroe Cann; L. Bradley, Moir, D. Bradley; Browne, Bissell, Clarke, Borde and Morgan.

Hudson's Bays had matters pretty much their own way in the other game of the day, but lost Tubby Stevens, who left the field for questioning the referee's decision and then back-chatting.

Five minutes from the start Tommy Musgrave beat Poole in the Maccabees' net for the opening counter. Stevens put the storemen two up fifteen minutes later, and Wally Stewart, outside left, made it 3 to 0 before the interval with a smart shot from the wing.

In the second half Charlie Richards added another tally to the Bays' total, following a corner.

High School Cagers Victors Over College

In the first inter-school match of the season the Victoria College girls' cagers went down to defeat when the Victoria High School quintette chalked up a 42 to 14 victory in the High School gym yesterday.

The half-time score stood at 22 to 4 in favor of the High School.

The High School hoopsters played a fast game and were always in front. The two high scorers for the High School were Doreen Beere with sixteen points to her credit, and Margaret Purdy, who chalked up fourteen.

Mona Miller refereed.

Victoria High School—D. Anderson 4, D. Beere 16, M. Purdy 14, Virginia Graham 8, E. Gaunt, H. Smith, V. Sinclair and Jessie Parr.

College—Jessie McDonald 4, K. Coates, V. Hannah 10, F. Graham, G. Gardiner, N. Peterson, M. Kennedy, P. Luckley and J. Chatham.

ANDERSON IN TOUGH BOUT

Bob Cummings Will Be Stiff Opponent For Seattle Star on Local Mat Card

Des Anderson, idol of northwest wrestling fans, will make his return to Victoria after an absence of several months, on Saturday evening at the Tillicum gym in the semi-windup bout of five eight-minute rounds against Bob Cummings, Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Anderson returns after triumphs in eastern Canada and the United States. Without a doubt one of the cleverest men to ever appear here, the fans will remember Des for the great battles he waged here a year or so ago.

CUMMINGS GOOD

Cummings is a recent arrival on the Pacific Coast. He has been meeting the best grapplers in the east with remarkable success, and welcomed the chance to meet so formidable a foe as Anderson. Bob is a rough house grappler, who also combines science in his mat attack. Des is used to meeting rough opponents, and is quite capable of handling himself in the ring.

Cummings comes here rated as a very capable middleweight. He has headlined wrestling cards in all sections of the world, and is looking forward to his bout with Anderson as a chance to establish himself in this section of the counry.

By popular demand Danny McDonald, Toronto, and Bob Wagner, New Hampshire, will meet again in the main event of eight ten-minute rounds.

In a special local bout Pat Griffin and Johnny Masters will meet in a four five-minute round engagement. In the local opener Gardiner meets Hay.

West Road Cagers In Smart Victory

Defeat Lake Hill 38 to 23 to Retain Second Place in Men's Senior B Division; Black Hawks in Great Rally to Win; Cardinals Hang Up Third Straight Victory

Forcing the play all the way, West Road cagers chalked up another victory at the expense of Lake Hill, 38 to 23, in the men's senior B division of the Victoria and District Basketball League at the High School gym yesterday evening. The win kept the West Roaders in second place in the standings.

Black Hawks surprised the fans with a 33 to 28 win over Fernwood Merchants after trailing for over three-quarters of the game. Cardinals continued their string of victories in the intermediate A girls' division by beating the Maroons 20 to 18 in a hard-fought tilt.

The men's senior B "classic" developed into a rare old-time battle between two old rivals—Lake Hill and West Road. If the quality of basketball left much to be desired the enthusiastic spirit displayed by players on both squads certainly gave the fans forty minutes of spills and thrills.

As seems to always be the case when these two outfits meet, the game opened at break-neck speed. West Road dominated play for the first ten minutes, and took a 11 to 3 lead on some uncanny basket shooting on the part of their forwards. As the half drew to a close, R. Mitchell, right forward for Lake Hill, went on a scoring spree, which, assisted by the rest of the forward line, soon cut West Road's lead to three points, and by half time the score read: West Road 15, Lake Hill 12.

Both teams threw all basketball science to the winds at the outset of the final stanza, and the game took on the aspects of a first class rugby tussle. The score remained close for the first seven minutes, but on the home stretch Lake Hill went completely to pieces and resorted to individual rushes down the floor.

CARINALS WIN

Nosing out Burnetts by a lone field victory in four starts against their vitory in four starts against their only opponents. With the exception of the first two quarters, when the winners got away to a 6 to 0 and 10 to 6 lead, the game was bitterly contested. Burnetts were slow in getting started, and spent the entire first period on the defensive.

Burnetts failed to line up their sights in the first ten-minute session, and at the one minute interval were trailing 6 to 0. The losers managed to make up two points of this deficit in the second quarter on baskets by Miles and Wilson, but were still on the wrong end of a 10 to 6 score at the half.

Chiefly due to the close checking, Cardinals hung on grimly to their four-point lead, and although their opponents were finding the basket with more regularity as the game progressed, the three-quarter mark found the winners out in front, 17 to 13.

Burnetts played their best ball during the final ten minutes, and had their opponents pretty well held in their own territory. Two quick field goals, one of them of the long variety and the other from close under, ran the score to 18 to 17 as the Cards took time out. A centre tip off play made it 20 to 17 for the winners, as Purdy completed the scoring with a free toss.

FINE VICTORY

Staging a spectacular rally, after trailing 13 to 19 in the first half, Black Hawks overtook their opponents four minutes from the end of the game, and sent the Fernwood Merchants down to a defeat. The game was featured by the deadly shooting by young Sparks, who was finding the basket from every conceivable angle on the floor. He was in practically every offensive play engineered by the Hawks, and was a big factor in his team's victory, scoring eleven points.

In the first half the Merchants held the upper hand and gained a six-point lead at the interval.

Merchants opened up fast at the start of the last period, and boosted their lead to 23 to 13. With ten minutes to go, the Black Hawks began to click, and their rushing tactics, especially under their opponent's basket, soon had its effect on the Merchants, and the lead started to slip from their grasp.

Eight minutes from time the score stood 25 to 23 for Fernwood Merchants as they called time out. On resumption of play the Hawks notted the count, but their opponents came back with a free throw to push them once more to the front. Once more the count was tied, and then the Hawks made their final bid for victory with a dazzling offensive drive, led by Sparks, Myers and Cliff that netted them six points in less than a minute to place them in the lead for the first time during the whole game. Merchants attempted to pick the game out of the losing column with a basket just before the bell, but the damage had been done, and they found themselves on the short end of the score.

Teams and scorers follow:

OBJECT TO U.S. PROPOSAL

British Golf Authorities Will Not Allow Cotton to Play in Cup Series

London, Nov. 29.—Samuel Ryder, donor of the trophy for which British and United States professional golf teams compete annually, said yesterday he was not in favor of the American suggestion that Henry Cotton, British open champion, be permitted to play in the next matches.

Cotton, though British born and bred, is the professional at the Waterloo Club, in Brussels, Belgium, a foreign affiliation that disqualifies him from the team under the deed of gift.

"If there is a single exception to be made, let both sides agree to it. Alteration would mean the thing could go on indefinitely."

London, Nov. 29.—Great Britain flatly rejected, yesterday, the suggestion that Henry Cotton, British open golf champion, be included in the Ryder Cup team that will meet the United States professional forces, next summer, in the fifth of the international series.

Samuel Ryder, donater of the cup, and Commander R. C. T. Roe, secretary of the British Professional Golfers' Association, both turned down the suggestion of George R. Jacobus, president of the United States Professional Golf Association, that the greatest golfer in all Great Britain be allowed on the team, despite the fact his residence and work in Belgium bar him under the rules of the deed of gift.

Patrick Starts To Shake-up Rangers

Manager of New York Rangers Announces Release of Vic Ripley; Bill Cook Will Be Moved Back Onto Forward Line; After New Defenceman; Two Games To-night

New York, Nov. 29.—Word came from headquarters of New York Rangers, yesterday, that Vic Ripley had been released outright, and Bill Cook moved from defence back to his old stand on the forward line. Manager Lester Patrick hastened to announce that these moves did not foreshadow a wholesale shake-up in the National Hockey League team, which has been [illegible] in the yet-young season, but it was reported unofficially that the blueshirts are dickering with St. Louis Eagles and two other clubs for new playing material.

Bill was shifted to the rearguard this season and played there in the Rangers' first six games, only two of which have resulted in victories for the men of Patrick.

Meantime the front lines have not been clicking and the old scoring punch has been sorely lacking.

Manager Patrick said, "We would gladly make some replacements now if money would buy the particular players who would help us. The return of Bill Cook to the forward line will necessitate the buying of another defence player, and we are now making a determined effort to get one. I am hoping a deal will be closed before the end of the week."

One Canadian and three American teams go into action in to-night's scheduled contests in the National Hockey League. Montreal Maroons will entertain Detroit Red Wings while in New York Chicago Black Hawks and the Americans clash.

Maroons need a victory to ensure maintaining their clear hold on second place in the Canadian section. On the other hand a Red Wing victory would enable the Detroit outfit to draw abreast of Boston Bruins, second in the standing.

Win or lose, Black Hawks' hold on top of the American section will not be threatened to-night. If they drop the verdict to the Amerks, who are trailing Montreal Maroons in the Canadian section by only two points, they still will have a one-game margin over Boston. If they win, they will have an advantage of four points.

Lionel Conacher, the big train, will be back in Maroons line-up. The big defenceman missed several games through a knee injury. One or two other line-up changes have been arranged by manager Tommy Gorman. Paul Haynes, said Gorman, will be the pivot of the first string line, supported by Baldy Northcott and Jimmy Ward.

Hull, Que., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Aurore Degenais was acquitted yesterday afternoon in the court of King's Bench of a charge of murdering the two young sons of Gregoire Raymond, Lachute Mills butchers, who died last February from eating [illegible] Mr. Justice Louis Cousineau dismissed the charge, saying the crown had not brought forth any evidence connecting Mrs. Dagenais with the case.

Florence Oates and Hocking Win Titles

Defeat Doreen Swayne and Tommy Forbes, Respectively, to Capture Garrison Badminton Club Crowns; Three Championships to Hocking

Ross (Bud) Hocking and Florence Oates won the singles championships of the Garrison Badminton Club in the finals staged yesterday evening at the Armories. Hocking took the men's singles for the second successive year by turning back his sidekick Tommy Forbes in straight sets 15-4, 15-8.

In all other divisions the defending champions came through in grand fashion, and at the conclusion of the play Miss Swayne was the only champion to lose out. The spectators for the finals witnessed some first-class badminton, with all the players displaying great skill and first-class knowledge of the popular sport.

WINS THREE TITLES

Hocking was the outstanding played on the courts, lifting no less than three titles during the evening. In addition to the men's singles he partnered with Helen Nicholson to capture the mixed doubles from Forbes and Swayne, after an extra set, and paired with Hugo Rayment to take the men's doubles from Flett and Forbes, 15-11, 15-12.

The women's doubles saw the defending titleholders, Miss Oates and Miss Swayne, turn back the challenge of Mrs. Moscrop and Miss Nicholson, 10-15, 15-8, 15-3. After dropping the first set the champions put on the pressure, and took the next two in somewhat easy fashion.

Too much experience pretty well tells the story in the men's singles finals. Forbes tried hard to hold Hocking, but the latter had too great a variety of shots for his younger opponent.

A KEEN FINAL

Outstanding final of the evening was seen in the mixed doubles. After winning the first set from their opponents Hocking and Miss Nicholson lost the second after extra points at 18-17, but rallied in the final set and won it 15-7.

Mrs. W. H. Dobbie, wife of Major W. H. Dobbie, club president, presented the prizes at the conclusion of the tournament, and congratulated the winners and runners-up as they came forward to receive their trophies.

Jimmy McLarnin Returning Home

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Jimmy McLarnin will be home in two weeks. Preparations were under way in town to-day for a reception for the lad who regained the world welterweight championship in a return bout with Barney Ross at New York.

Jimmy wired home yesterday from the Beverley Wilshire Hotel in Hollywood where he is holidaying at present. He said not a word of fight plans. His main idea is to get home in time for Christmas. In ten years or so Jimmy has been campaigning on foreign fight fronts he has missed getting home for the Yuletide just once.

U.S. RIDERS WIN CLASSIC

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Consistent riding by the United States army team yesterday evening gave them a decisive victory in the international officers' team challenge trophy, outstanding event at the Royal Winter Fair horse show.

The trophy, presented by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner at London, is open to all nations for teams of three jumpers.

The Irish Free State army team, last year's winner, put up a strenuous defence, but ten faults made by the first rider lost their chances of victory.

The United States, which won it in 1932, had only nine faults scored against it, three by each rider.

The Chilean outfit with fifteen faults, were shunted into third place. Twenty-one faults sent the French squad into fourth place, ahead of the Canadian team, which scored twenty-eight faults.

Commission Hears Stores' Suggestions Of Regulation

HOURS OF WORK

"2 Standard hour week.

"I am entirely in favor of a standard hour week in the food retailing industry, provided always that all members engaged in the industr come under its provisions.

"3. Loss leaders.

"I am leaning more and more to the idea that a minimum mark-up should be required in the food retailing industry, and that such would be of benefit to the operators and wage earners of the industry, and, eventually, to both producers and consumers."

LEGISLATION ADVOCATED

"We believe that proper legislation covering minimum wages, standard hour week and loss leaders would be beneficial to the industry, and could be put into operation without any ill effects to the consumer, providing, of course, that this was made to apply to all types of retail food stores whether chain stores or independents.

"We believe government supervision and control should be covered by proper legislation, and believe it will be necessary to have this whole matter under government supervision and control."

MATCH BOXES

Referring to deceptive packages, Mr. Crowder told of the Eddy Match Company of Hull, Que., putting 400 matches in one box and 300 in another, both packages being the same size, although there was a difference in price, the box with 300 costing more proportionally.

Mr. Crowder made a plea for standardization for packages and containers. He suggested:

1. Fewer sizes of packages or containers of government standard.
2. Simple descriptive names of grades.
3. Commercial courts instead of criminal courts for offenders who do false advertising or use sub-standard packages.
4. Government officials to enforce commercial regulations.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION

At yesterday's session of the commission pegged prices for foodstuffs, drugs and retail staples were proposed by Joseph Crowder, Toronto merchandising investigator. To forestall chain and department stores from forcing down general price levels by underselling among themselves, he suggested that manufacturers' distributors be empowered to fix prices for their goods below which no retailer could cut.

In a comprehensive report on chain stores and their effect on general retailers and manufacturers, Mr. Crowder, formerly a Vancouver druggist and chain manager, gave numerous examples of ruinous price competition among mass buyers. In recent years, manufacturers, he said, had been powerless to maintain decent prices for their products, and had been forced to accept the dictates of chain and department store buyers.

PRICES REPORTED

Through mass buying and mass advertising, chain and department stores fixed prices for their own competitors, and eventually for the trade as a whole, Mr. Crowder said. He gave many examples of drug and food chains selling at cost or a fraction of a cent above, while independent merchants were unable to purchase the same goods at prices several cents higher.

An example of mass buying was given by Mr. Crowder in the candy trade and its effect traced back to factory wages. In April, 1934, National Grocers bought a carload of jelly beans from William Paterson limited of Brantford, Ont., at prices of 9½ and 9¾ cents a pound, which was 13.6 per cent below usual chain prices and 36.6 per cent below the prevailing list price.

In the Paterson factory at Brantford, "wages are shocking," Mr. Crowder said. Seventeen examples were cited showing girls working for as little as $3.60 a week, the maximum indicated in the list being $10.70.

Another candy manufacturer, W. Robertson of Robertson Brothers, Toronto, had refused to bid for the big volume of cut-rate business, and their production had decreased in consequence.

RESTAURANT WORKERS

Mr. Crowder turned to the situation in cafes, showing employees to be working seventy-five hours a week for $6 and meals. A dishwasher who received this wage was an English ex-service man, married, who had served in the war from the spring of 1916 until demobilization.

Illustrating the "dominating position" of chain stores in retail merchandising, Mr. Crowder produced exhibits of advertising in Toronto by these organizations for one day in November, 1933.

"The amount of space dominated by the price-feature advertising of foodstuffs totals eight pages," said Mr. Crowder, "a veritable newspaper itself."

Similar copies of advertisements were produced for the drug chains.

"An interesting feature of the chain store advertising is that the druggists now advertise on Wednesday and the grocers on Thursday," said Mr. Crowder. "The grocery advertising so dominates the Thursday issue that the druggists insert their advertisement on Wednesday to receive attention."

The dominating postion enjoyed by the chains was out of all proportion to their importance as distributors, he said, since they had only 18.3 per cent of the total sales volume of Canada's retail business.

Kingsford-Smith Is Seeking Work

Associated Press

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 29. — Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, addressing members of the San Francisco commercial club at a luncheon in his honor, said he was looking for a job.

The flier said that unless circumstances should alter his plans he would fly back to Australia early next year in the monoplane Lady Southern Cross, or some other plane.

"It is not definite. I have to eat, you know," he added.

LIST EASIER AT MONTREAL

Canadian Press

Montreal, Nov. 29.—A slightly easier trend prevailed among issues in the Montreal Stock Exchange at the close to-day.

Leaders were quiet, with Brazilian Traction losing a small fraction. Montreal Power dipped ⅛ at 30⅛ while the debentures sold at 47½, ex-interest of 75 cents.

On the curb Distillers-Seagrams was the featured stock with a loss of ⅛ at 16¼ after rising from a low of 15. B.C. Packers preferred lost a point.

MINE SHARES VARY LITTLE

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 29. — The mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange staged another penny share day, and even that group was on the slow side. Hardly any business was transacted in the senior issues.

On a proposal to reorganize Granada that issue dropped four cents to 13. Firm spots included Bobjo and Kirkland Lake.

San Antonio, Siscoe, Pickle Crow, God's Lake and Buffalo-Ankerite were firm or a little higher at the close. Buffalo-Ankerite gained thirty cents to 3.10.

Bralorne closed at 12.75 for a small recession, while Pioneer dropped eighty cents. Teck Hughes, Hollinger and Noranda steadied.

Silver issues were nominally unchanged. Castle was off ½.

DISTILLERS IS FEATURE

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Distillers Seagrams was the whole show on the industrial section of the Toronto exchange to-day. Other shares were quiet, due chiefly to the New York market being closed for Thanksgiving holiday.

Distillers held around 15¼ to 15½ until the last hour, but closed with a small gain. Walkers common closed ¾ down at 27 and Industrial Alcohol A dropped ¼ to 8¼.

Oils were soft. Volume was thin in the foods and implements lost fractions.

Joint Market Plan Proposed

Mainland and Island Growers May Work Together on Potato Sales

Negotiations between lower mainland and Vancouver Island potato growers with a view to joining in a marketing scheme under the B.C. Natural Products Marketing Act, were entered into here yesterday afternoon.

Representatives of both groups met here and discussed the matter with the Provincial Marketing Board.

A committee working in the interests of the island men feels that full co-operation with the lower mainland is necessary to prevent chaos on the market, as the mainland produces 40,000 tons of potatoes, against 5,000 on the island. Producers on the island are being asked for their opinion on this point.

A scheme for co-operation with the mainland has been tentatively drafted. Either the island would be given representation on the joint board, or the mainland board would work with an island board by specifying that all potatoes originating in the mainland area and sold on the island market would be sold by the island board's agencies. Similarly island potatoes would be sold on the mainland through the mainland board.

When these details are settled, it is expected the potato marketing scheme will be completed for recommendation to the government. It is understood to involve a pooling arrangement for returns. Revenue for the control boards would be raised by refunds through the selling agencies.

Winnipeg Follows Overseas Decline

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Nov. 29. — The steady advance of Liverpool prices was halted to-day and wheat futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange were quick to follow the decline of the overseas market. Values closed one cent lower.

December finished at 77¼, May 82⅛-¼, and July 82⅞ cents.

Moderate export sales of Canadian wheat totaled 500,000 bushels. Heavy selling by American interests was reported from Liverpool, where prices closed 1⅛-1½d lower.

Another reported cause of the Liverpool slump was the heavy liquidation at Buenos Aires, where prices declined 1⅜ cents, due to the setting of minimum-price levels on wheat in Argentina at levels under current world prices.

Argentine wheat was "pegged" at the same levels as last year, 5.75 per quintal, equal to 52 cents per bushel in United States funds.

Cash wheat demand from the United States to-day was quiet. Premiums, however, remained firm. Coarse grains futures prices declined in sympathy with wheat.

SEES NO BOOM YET IN CANADA

Tribute to West and Plea For Reduced Government Services in Bank Address

Canadian Press

Toronto, Nov. 29.—While there is a general growth in Canadian business, "there is nothing to indicate a boom, for which we may be thankful," remarked Frank A. Rolph in his presidential address at the annual meeting of the Imperial Bank of Canada here to-day. The general encouragement which has taken place throughout the year looks encouraging for the future," he said.

He paid particular tribute to the people of the west for the way they had stood up under adversity.

"We admire our western people for the way in which they meet adversity and carry on under trying conditions. Notwithstanding the severe losses suffered through drought the country as a whole shows an improved condition over 1933."

Mr. Rolph spoke of the cost of government and public services and declared "we have altogether too much government. We need a federal government but we do not need more than half of the provincial administrations we have and in municipal affairs we have four or five times what is required." He also mentioned the annual deficit of the Canadian National Railways and said that while he disliked the idea of a monopoly he thought that in unification lay the only solution.

A. E. Phipps, general manager, reported net profits for the year slightly higher than for the previous year, and a slightly larger amount carried forward to the credit of profit and loss. He noted that throughout the year the bank maintained a dividend rate of 10 per cent.

MORE MONEY FOR CRUISES

Expensive Suites on Ss. Empress of Britain For World Trip Reserved Already

Montreal, Nov. 29.—The traveling public has money to spend again—and is spending it. This winter cruises are being booked earlier than ever before and people are looking for luxury instead of bargains. All of which, says Wm. Baird, Canadian Pacific Steamships passenger traffic manager, is an added indication of the economic improvement that has shown itself in many other lines of business.

"The most significant feature of this winter's cruise business," Mr. Baird said when interviewed to-day, "is that this year, six weeks in advance of the departure of the Empress of Britain on her cruise around the world, every suite has been reserved, and we have twenty-five per cent more bookings than were recorded on an equivalent date last year."

During the past few years, according to Mr. Baird, while there had been a fair percentage of demands for expensive accommodation, the emphasis had been laid principally upon travel bargains. A significant feature of this early booking activity, he said, which in itself is looked upon as indicating economic confidence, is the fact that steamship companies all report their advance bookings in the higher brackets, with accommodation still available at the lower fares. "This is a direct reversal of last year's situation, when at this time practically all the lower-priced accommodation had been taken," Mr. Baird stated.

A new cruise has aroused interest. Comparative figures are not available with regard to this Mediterranean-South Africa and South America cruise of the Empress of Australia, the steamship executive said, but the unusual itinerary is arousing considerable interest.

"There is a distinct interest being displayed in South Africa throughout Canada just now, Mr. Baird said. "Whether it is a result of the affinity between two Dominions that produce most of the world's gold supply, I do not know, but undoubtedly the selection of South Africa for a cruise has become very popular."

MAKES HUNDRED PACIFIC TRIPS

Capt. S. Takahashi of Ms. Hiye Maru Is Veteran of Pacific Sea Lanes

Capt. Shigehiko Takahashi, veteran Japanese shipmaster, who is well-known at this port, completed his one hundredth transpacific crossing when he reached Vancouver last week-end aboard his ship, the Hiye Maru. When he returns to Yokohama next month he will be feted by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha at a banquet in Tokio.

Before the N.Y.K. withdrew its ships from the Victoria call, Capt. Takahashi was a frequent visitor here, Victoria being his first and last port of call on voyages from and to the Orient. He was deservedly popular with shipping men at this port.

A modest man, of small stature, Capt. Takahashi is the most widely read Nippon mariner serving northwest ports. He is a great student of evolution, and is known as the philosopher of the transpacific routes.

Capt. Takahashi has a well-stocked library in his cabin aboard the Hiye Maru, containing books on history, mathematics, geography and other subjects. He has quite definite theories on evolution and other subjects which he delights to discuss with his passengers.

The first born of five generations of the Takahashi family have been priests, and the captain is the first one of his generation to be a master mariner.

The 100 Pacific voyages were made by Capt. Takahashi in the Aki Maru, the Kaka Maru, the Inaba Maru, the Mishima Maru, the Kitano Maru, the Tatsuno Maru, the Hiye Maru and a training ship of the Japanese merchant marine.

Piles Go Quick

Under Dr. Leonhardt's Internal Method

Large numbers of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine, when salves do not help and wish is to escape operation.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and help to heal the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt was one of the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for large numbers of patients with a fine record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist, with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

So isn't it wise when other ways fail to go to MacFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores, who say, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your Pile misery or money-back."

Thinks Books Already Found

Arctic Explorer Reaches Montreal and Will Give Lectures in United States

Montreal, Nov. 29.—Any log books Sir John Franklin may have left before he perished almost a century ago in the Arctic would most likely have been found by now, Captain Peter Freuchen, Arctic author and explorer, answered here to-day when questioned as to the chances of F. K. Pease, an adventurous young Briton, finding any records of Franklin's epic voyages.

Pease passed through Montreal two months ago with a dog and thirty tons of equipment, bound for the Arctic wastes and a search for documents dealing with Franklin's northern saga he thought he might discover.

Captain Freuchen arrived here to inaugurate a series of lectures on Arctic conditions which will take him to the larger centres of the United States.

Progress of The Pas and Churchill, Man., in eight years, is a subject of wonderment to the tall, bearded expert on Eskimo folklore. Last summer he traveled to Churchill in a Pullman coach and ate lovely meals in a diner. "When I was last there eight years ago," he recalled, "we came through the Straits and things got so bad we were forced to eat some of our dogs on the overland trip after leaving our base."

Baldwin's Peace Plea Sent to World Powers

Sir John Simon Believes Speech in British Commons Will Clear Away Suspicion; Britain's Defences Debated

Canadian Press

London, Nov. 29.—A new British policy in dealing with Germany—one of direct and frank contact regarding disarmament and other matters—has been inaugurated by the government in its attempt to have Germany clear up suspicions of the Nazi rearmament programme by tearing away what Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, calls "a veil of secrecy."

Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, revealed in the House of Commons yesterday evening in concluding a one-day debate on empire defences that Mr. Baldwin's speech yesterday, in which he urged Germany to abandon her isolation and secrecy, had been communicated to Chancellor Adolf Hitler before it was delivered in the House of Commons.

He said Mr. Baldwin had felt his statement regarding German rearmaments should be made "only after Germany had been informed what we were about to do." Contents of the speech also were communicated to the United States, France and Italy, the Foreign Secretary said.

AMENDMENT REJECTED

After Sir John had concluded the debate, the House rejected an amendment to the address in reply to the throne speech moved by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, which declared British defences, particularly in the air, were entirely inadequate. The House then approved the government's address in reply.

Sir John asserted the problem of German secrecy, which he said was a direct cause for uneasiness in Europe, was not merely an Anglo-German problem. "It is a European problem—a world problem," he declared.

Sir John's announcement climaxed an all-day debate on Empire defence, during which Mr. Baldwin spoke.

The Foreign Secretary emphasized there was no difference of opinion in Britain on the question of defence. There were no advocates of unilateral disarmament.

He said Mr. Baldwin's plea that Germany ease the condition of nervous apprehension in Europe by tearing away the veil of secrecy, had helped clear away a great deal of suspicion. That speech had been delivered to world powers, he said, "because this is not an Anglo-German proposition, but a European and world proposition."

"We have thus helped to clear away a great deal of suspicion. [illegible] communications to other governments constituted a new development and might create a new situation if we can get international agreement.

AT LOWEST LEVEL

"We should like an agreement on disarmament at the lowest possible level. If we cannot get an unattainable idea we must seek an agreement at the lowest level possible. We stand for regulated limitation as opposed to competition and unregulated arming.

"We ask the House to help us treat this as constituting a new opportunity, aiming at promoting for Europe a policy of peace based not on prescriptions of the post-war period, but a new effort to establish more firmly and securely the peace of the world.

REPORTS EXAGGERATED

Accusations of German rearmament and inadequacy of existing defence forces found the government unperturbed, however. Mr. Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, speaking for the government in reply to the charges, declared most reports of German rearmament were exaggerated. He specifically denied that the German air force would be larger than Britain's by 1936 and stated the big expansion programme for the British air force was well in hand.

LLOYD GEORGE'S OPINIONS

Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George, making his first speech in Parliament in many months, agreed with Mr. Baldwin that there was no danger from Germany for two years at least, but he disagreed with Mr. Baldwin's plea that Germany reveal how far she is rearming. That would be a direct challenge that France could not ignore, he declared.

Mr. Lloyd George, reviewing the world-wide situation, urged Britain should again attempt to persuade the nations to carry out the obligations of the peace treaty and disarm, France in particular. He asked that Britain give a lead to the world, away from the shambles awaiting it, "inevitably, at the end of the journey it is traveling blindly to-day."

WOULD CONSULT DOMINIONS

The Dominions should be consulted as to policy before the British government decides on the country's defensive system, Mr. Lloyd George urged. He said the government must "think imperially." Air defences would be given a considerable fillip by development of empire air services, he pointed out. He added that the Dominions joined voluntarily in the last war and he saw no reason to think they would not join in the next.

CLOSELY WATCHED

Mr. Baldwin assured the House the government was closely watching all developments and, should an emergency develop—of which he could see no signs at present—the government would not be caught unprepared.

Further, he declared, the government was determined that not under any conditions would Britain accept any position of inferiority in regard to any forces raised in Germany in the future.

He laid most stress, however, on the need for Germany herself removing the attitude of fear an distrust that had arisen among her neighbors since the advent of the Nazi regime. "Situated where Germany is, she is very dependent on the friendship and trade of her neighbors. When will the day come when she will recognize it?" he exclaimed.

"If she does that (ends the secrecy in regard to armaments) she may be able to resume conversations with her neighbors, all of whom are ready to help her in regard to trade and exchanges," he said "But so long as she stays by herself, having no direct communications with other European statesmen, so long more and more suspicion will grow and it may be that more and more her own troubles will grow."

ADDITION OF PLANES

Dealing with Britain's defence measures, Mr. Baldwin recalled the government had announced last July it would virtually double the British air strength by a long-range building and restoration programme. He indicated this had been speeded up so that it would be practically complete within two years.

In 1935 and 1936, Mr. Baldwin informed the House, twenty-two squadrons would be added to the home defence, and three squadrons to the fleet air arm. The whole twenty-five would be additional to the four already being formed in the current year.

First-line air strength would thus be increased by 300 aircraft, plus the necessary reserves, which the Royal Air Force considered would be ample. He mentioned that Britain's latest types of military planes have a speed of more than 230 miles an hour.

The first-line strength of the Royal Air Force, home and overseas, at present was 880 aircraft. There were also Auxiliary air force and special reserve squadrons with a total of 127 aircraft. In Europe the R.A.F. had altogether 690 machines available for the first line, with sufficient in reserve to replace current wastage. Building plans, increasing and altering old stations, furthermore were "well in hand," he told the House.

ASKS ABOUT LEAD

Lord Winterton, supporting the Churchill amendment, asked Mr. Lloyd George how Britain could give a lead in a question between Japan and the United States, or between France and Germany, when the latter was clamoring for equality which France would never give.

Mr. Churchill interjected a question to Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, as to what was his information in regard to the German army.

Sir John replied his information [illegible] 300,000 men was being organized in twenty-one divisions with mechanized formations and cavalry. He was unaware, as Lord Winterton had suggested, that Germany was equipped with 6-inch guns. (The Versailles Treaty limits the Reichswehr to 100,000 men).

OPINION IN DOMINIONS

Sir Edward Grigg, Conservative, thought the Dominions, like the United States, had a definite fear of a European situation they did not understand. But it was the opinion in the Dominions they could be appealed to with success at present to come to the support of Britain in undertaking some definite responsibility for supporting the League of Nations principles in both western Europe and the Far East.

Opinion in the Dominions has been growing steadily in the last two or three years, Sir Edward said, in favor of taking greater responsibility in enforcing world peace.

SEES HOPES FADING

The hope of permanent peace had gone by the board if Britain should recognize as inevitable that Germany should re-arm and have a military status equal to the French and other great powers, declared Rt. Hon. George Lansbury, Labor leader. Unless the peace treaty was implemented, then war and the destruction of civilization would come about, he asserted.

AMERY'S VIEWS

Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery endorsed the summoning of the Empire to British counsels at the earliest possible moment. He suggested the government ask a loan of £100,000,000 for defence. Nothing, he said, would help the world like knowing England was going to make good the breaches in her defences.

Nominating Money Posted By Whitney For Equipoise In Santa Anita Handicap

Los Angeles, Nov. 29.—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney posted $100 nominating money with the Los Angeles Turf Club to-day as his answer to the question of whether Equipoise would use the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap here as a possible stepping stone toward the title as the world's leading money winner.

The nomination of the great thoroughbred for the February 23 classic came three days ahead of the closing date for nominations for the race that is expected to attract Gallant Sir, Cavalcade and a host of other great runners.

Government to Sign Bridge Agreements

The government will sign agreements this week for two bridges over the Fraser River, Premier Pattullo said yesterday.

One will be the contract with the Fraser River Bridge Company, which is to build the new structure at New Westminster for the government. It is proposed to make a start as soon as possible on borings for the piers.

The Ladner Bridge agreement, under the charter granted by the Legislature, is to be ratified by Saturday, December 1.

Both agreements [illegible] to the Legislature next session.

FRASER LISTER GUEST ARTIST

Will Give Two Groups of Songs For Schubert Club

For the forthcoming recital of the Schubert Club to be given in the Shrine Auditorium next Wednesday, in aid of the Sunshine Inn, Fraser Lister, guest artist, will sing two groups of songs, which will include Harlequin by Sanderson, and The Green Eyed Dragon by Wolseley Charles.

Mr. Lister is well known for his interpretive singing and these numbers will be much enjoyed.

The choir is preparing some fine choral numbers including among several of Schubert's compositions the beautiful and much loved "Impatience" ("Thine is My Hear") which has been so finely sung by Richard Tauber in the film of the same name, which thousands have enjoyed at the Dominion Theatre this week. Another of the finest of Schubert's lyrical setting is "To Music," in which Georgina Watt will be heard in the solo part. A very descriptive setting "Sunset," by W. G. Marsh, and of rare beauty, which was given by this choir some two years ago with great success, will be one of the outstanding items on this programme.

The public is again reminded that admission to this concert is to be in the form of a gift of food or cash, the entire proceeds to be given to the Sunshine Inn to help in the splendid work it is doing here. As the need is greater every day as the winter season approaches a generous response is anticipated.

ENGLISH GIRL INVENTS GAME

"Spotting the Newlyweds" Is New Pastime, and All London Takes It Up

London, Nov. 29.—London has discovered a new game and the whole country is taking it up as it did "Beaver," a few years ago. It is called "Spotting the Newlyweds," and it has the great charm that you can play it by yourself, and even if you play someone else at it, you never know who wins.

The idea was originated by a lady called Miss K. Fowler Tutt of Lewes, in Sussex. She started it all by saying that when you go out to tea you can tell the nationality of your hostess quite simply by observing her "sugar habits."

If she puts a lump of sugar in the cup, she's English.

If she passes you the bowl, she's Irish.

If she asks "Have you stirred it yet?" she Scottish.

The new game, which can be played in any public place, consists in detecting from the behavior of those around you whether they are married, hope to be married, or how long they have been married.

A cake makes the best "pitch." If you hear a girl wearing a wedding ring rather ostentatiously say: "Two lumps or three, dear?" then you can be fairly certain that they have not been married very long.

If you are observant you can tell at a glance, from such little things as inquiries about whether they take sugar, or if they like toast and strawberry jam—it is really too simple.

If the man passes the sugar, and insists on putting it lump by lump into his companion's cup—smiling rather inanely all the time—it would be absurd to suppose that they have been married for long.

As you see, it is a very good game for the "long winter evenings."

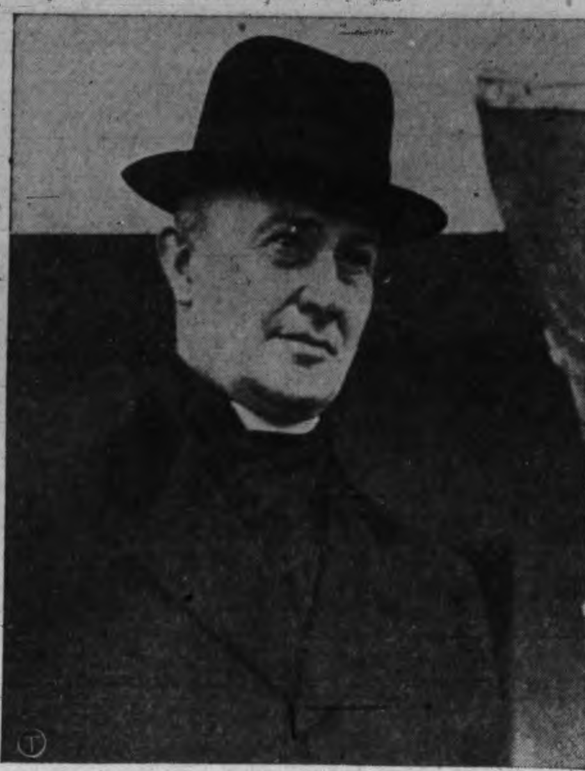
WELCOMED TO NEW HOME IN VICTORIA



RT. REV. J. H. MacDONALD, D.D.

newly-appointed Bishop of Victoria, shown above as he stepped ashore yesterday afternoon from the Ss. Princess Alice to receive a welcome from the Provincial Government and the city members of the Roman Catholic Church. Bishop MacDonald was installed at impressive ceremonies at St. Andrew's Cathedral yesterday evening, and to-night members of his congregation will be given an opportunity to personally greet him at a reception in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

With all seated on the red-carpeted altar, with the candles gleaming softly in the background, special prayers for the new bishop were read by Father Beaton, after which Rev. Father A. B. Wood, pastor of the Queen of Peace Church at Esquimalt, read the papal bulls which appointed Bishop MacDonald. This document, in Latin and English, bore the signature of Pope Pius XI., given at Castel Gondolfo, the summer papal residence.

HOMAGE OF CLERGY

The bishop was then led to an improvised throne, the regular throne being occupied by Archbishop Duke, Metropolitan of the diocese. Clergy of the Vancouver Island diocese formed a semi-circle in front of the bishop, and after Father Beaton had read a welcome on behalf of them, they approached singly and kissed the episcopal ring of the new prelate.

From the main pulpit of the church Archbishop Duke delivered his sermon, which told of the happiness with which Bishop MacDonald had been welcomed to the west.

"To-day is a day of happiness for the people of Victoria," His Grace said. "It has been a day of religious expectancy. This day has brought to you your new bishop, and to us a co-worker in the archdiocese of Vancouver, and I am sure your hearts are filled with joy and happiness.

HISTORIC SEE

"The new bishop has come to-night to take possession of this historic see of Victoria. Rome seems very near to Victoria and its people in a ceremony of this sort. Your new bishop's duties will be many and of various forms. His main concern will be teaching.

"He is sent to all men, irrespective of race or color or condition in life," the archbishop continued. "He must make plain to them all things whatsoever Christ commanded. He is concerned principally with spiritual truths by which he will enlighten souls. He is concerned indirectly with natural or scientific, economic, medical, legal or even political truths in so far as they affect the souls of men.

"Bishop MacDonald, we rejoice with you and welcome you to the west, and may you ever obtain from Heaven those blessings and graces necessary to the dignity of the position to which you have been called. To the people of Victoria I say you will learn to know and love him as did the people in another province down by another ocean. You, Bishop MacDonald, have come to one of the most beautiful cities in Canada, and to a province great in natural wealth and missionary possibilities, and to a public sympathetic to our faith, and to a clergy and people who are second to none in devotion to the Holy See. Shortly you will feel at home in Victoria."

BISHOP REPLIES

[illegible] Bishop MacDonald said, "I want to thank you all for the kind reception you have given me. I feel most unworthy of the great honor that has been bestowed upon me, and I rely on the co-operation and prayers of the good people of this diocese. There have been some sacrifices attending my transfer. Transplanting when the roots are young means very little but when plants have reached maturity it is a far different matter. So it is with men. My roots were planted pretty deeply into the soil of my native province—a most kindly soil because of the religious fervor of the people.

"But there has been ample compensation in the kindness and warmth of generosity of my reception in Victoria. I bring you greetings from the people and clergy of many dioceses I visited during my trip across Canada. I was very pleased to observe on the prairies and in British Columbia how strong the faith had been planted during the early years."

He greeted the sisters and brothers who are in the schools and hospitals; the mothers and the fathers and the children of those homes "which are and which will be the bulwark for the protection of civilized society against which so many inroads are being made." He pledged his co-operation to the elected heads of the people.

"I assure them, if it is anything at all, I shall be only too glad to render any service which I can to the elected heads of the people who are working for the protection of the common good.

"I am glad to be here, and I hope you will help me, especially with your prayers. I will need them all the time. I have come, not to spend my time in leisure, but to work for the spiritual good and to co-operate with the officials of the city and province for the economic welfare. Let us all pray for one another."

EPISCOPAL BLESSING

Following the sermons, His Lordship gave the Episcopal blessing after which he officiated at Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Bishop MacDonald and the other prelates, accompanied by the priests and acolytes, then filed out of the cathedral and returned to the Bishop's Home by View Street.

Special sections in the cathedral were reserved for various religious bodies. The Sisters of St. Ann, the Christian Brothers of Ireland and members of the Holy Name Society occupied special pews.

The choir was conducted by Arthur Cownden, with Miss Marguerite McKay at the organ. Miss McKay played the National Anthem as the Lieut.-Governor and his party, who were met at the main entrance by Rev. Father J. A. Gaudette, were conducted to their seats.

Bishop MacDonald was attended during the ceremony by Rev. Father C. E. Evans, rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral and by Rev. Father J. R. Buckley, pastor of Lourdes Church at the Willows

INVITED GUESTS

Specially invited guests, besides the Lieut.-Governor, Premier Pattullo and Mayor Leeming, were Hon. John Hart, Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Hon. Gordon Sloan and Hon. A. Wells Gray, representing the B.C. government; D. B. Plunkett, M.P.; Reeve R. W. Mayhew of Oak Bay, Reeve William Crouch of Saanich, Reeve Alex Lockley of Esquimalt, Major-General E. C. Ashton, Herbert Anscomb, M.P.P.; Aldermen James Adam, P. R. Brown, T. W. C. Hawkins, J. D. Hunter, Walter Luney and John Worthington; Judge P. S. Lampman and Judge McIntosh, Magistrate George Jay, Commander G. C. Jones, R.C.N.; Commander J. E. W. Oland, R.C.N.; Colonel H. C. Greer, Colonel J. L. Potter, Lieut.-Colonel C. B. Russell, Lieut.-Colonel M. A. Kent, Major J. R. Kingham, Lieut.-Commander F. L. Houghton, R.C.N.; Lieut.-Commander G. Gauvreau, R.C.N.; Lieut.-Colonel J. H. McMullen of the Provincial Police, Major W. H. Dobbie, Major R. O. G. Morton, G. Hamilton Harman and G. H. Stevens.

TO-DAY'S AFFAIRS

This morning Bishop MacDonald officiated at his first mass in Victoria. It was said in the historic chapel at St. Ann's Academy. This chapel was the first Roman Catholic Cathedral in Victoria and one of the first in the west.

This evening His Lordship will be the guest of honor at a public reception at the Empress Hotel, commencing at 7.30 o'clock and to-morrow morning he will say his first mass at the cathedral. He will then pay visits to the various institutions connected with the Catholic Church. Later he will make a tour of inspection of all churches in his diocese of Vancouver Island.

FRANCE GIVEN WHEAT QUOTA

Export Proposal Said to Be 20,000,000 Bushels; Canada Smaller Quota

Budapest, Nov. 29.—Representatives of six wheat exporting countries, meeting here yesterday, decided to grant France an export quota for 1934-35, provided their respective governments approve.

The decision came after three hours of discussion, following the adjournment of the full wheat conference yesterday.

Draft of the agreement, which United States delegates described as "very complicated," was sent to the seven governments, including France, for approval. Meanwhile delegates refused to reveal the size of the quota offered France.

This was the first time an export quota had been offered France, and it meant that other exporters, particularly Canada and Argentina, which between them expected to get two-thirds of the total quota of 600,000,000 bushels, must take less.

It was believed the net figure proposed for France was between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 bushels.

CONFERENCE IN MARCH

It was officially announced the next conference would be held in London March 5, "subject to the discretion" of Ambassador Robert W. Ingram of the United States, the permanent chairman of the conference whose place was taken here by John Van Antwert MacMurray of the United States.

CENTENNIAL

An interesting and enjoyable time was spent by the Young People's Society of Centennial United Church on Tuesday evening. The meeting took the form of a travelogue. Jim McCague and Ernest Hatch, who were in charge of the programme, led off from the church shortly after 8 o'clock, followed by seven carloads of young people. The first stop was made at the headquarters of the fire department, where a demonstration and description of all the modern fire-fighting appartus was given by the firemen. The construction and use of various extinguishers was explained, and first-aid equipment shown. From the firehall the group proceeded to the power plant of the Empress Hotel, seeing the dynamos, large furnaces and refrigeration plant. The travelers then proceeded to Stevenson's Cafe for refreshments.

DR. D. COBB DIES

Chapel Hill, N.C., Nov. 29.—Dr. Dollier Cobb, seventy-two, professor of geology in the University of North Carolina and renowned for his egological research work, died yesterday.

TWO SECONDS to be sure of her Hair*

Less than a minute—less than a penny—to be sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to know you have no dandruff.

That's what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And no amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night when you comb it, makes an amazing difference in the way any hair looks all the time!

When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going helter-skelter. When you pay a dollar for a wave, Danderine will help you keep it. It isn't sticky dressing, or an oily tonic, and it doesn't leave a telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance is gone so quickly after applying—but not that very marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness!

With all the care a woman gives her hair, it is a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It is no trouble. Yet you can hardly believe anything so mild and delightful as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy Danderine at any drug store for thirty-five cents; larger sizes for 60c and $1.00.

For Better Or For Worse?

New York, Nov. 29.—Six years ago a certain top-spot vaudeville actor was very much in the money, what with a large salary and some lucky market investments. He took a little chorus girl out of a cheap night club, wooed her with lavish gifts, married her within a month. They went abroad for a year and indulged in every luxury. He had not known, until the bills came in, that there were so many jewels and gowns in Paris. But he paid.

They came back to Broadway, and in a few months he was broke. By the time they were divorced, he was in debt. For years he struggled along without finding bookings. Finally he took a job as cashier in a well-known restaurant. His ex-wife, who is on her way up in the show world, comes in occasionally for lunch. When she is alone, which is seldom, she places her check and money before the cashier without a word or sign of recognition. "Thank you," he says impersonally, handing back the change.

London, Nov. 29.—Dr. Arthur Berresford Pite, seventy-three, former professor of architecture at the Royal College of Art and well known church architect, died here yesterday.
